Waterworks in Trouble.

The question has been recently raised as to whether the American Waterworks company have taken the necessary legal steps in establishing their plant at Fiorence, and the result of the investigation will, it is thought, a suit in ejectment against that company by the city of Florence. During the summer of 1887 the officers of the corporation en deavored to get possession of the necessary amount of property situated in Florence on which to establish their works, and succeeded in having an ordinance passed by the mayor and council vacating all the streets and alleys running through that por-tion of the city on which the company is now operating. The ordinance vacating the streets and alleys is said to be void, as it was not constructed and passed as the law governing cities of the second class in such cases provides. The whole matter, it seems, is in the hands of the mayor and council, and that body was, it is stated, not governed by the advice of the city attorney, the waterways combut by the agents of the waterworks company, whose object, apparently, was to get possession and then to run the risk of being ejected by the city authorities. The mayor of Florence in 1887 was Henry

SOUTHARD'S VINDICTIVENESS. Leads to an Order to Brain Councilman Lowry. A pretty condition of affairs was discov cred at what was supposed to be a meeting of the city council as a board of equalization vesterday morning.

According to an advertisement published in a morning paper, the taxpayers of Omaha are notified that the city council will sit as a board of equalization from day to day in the city clerk's office for the purpose of hearing complaints. The city council delegated the duty of holding daily sessions to a committee composed of Councilmen Burnham, Balley and Lowry, who are supposed to sit from 9 o'clock every morning until 5 o'clock every evening. Councilman Lowry and City Clerk Southard, it is said, are bitter enemies. Yesterday morning a Bug reporter dropped into Comptroller Goodrich's office. Councilmen Burnham and Lowry and W. J. Hahn, who is acting as clerk to the board, were there, and in Mr. Hahn's possession were the city assessment rolls for 1889. Taxpayers were coming in, and Mr. Hahn was permitting them to look at the books.

While Charley Collins was engaged in looking up his assessment Councilman Lowry brought his hand down on the coun-ter, with the exclamation: "Mr. Huhn, as a member of the city council and one of the committee of the board of equalization, I protest against business of any nature being transacted here. Before any business as a board of equalization is transacted, I insist that the books be returned to the city clerk's office and the board hold its sessions there in a legal manner. The notices sent to tax-payers and the official advertisements specify that the meetings shall be held there, and any business transacted elsewhere will invalidate the work of the board.

validate the work of the board."
Councilman Lowry was asked to explain the unusual proceeding.
"City Clerk Southard objects to my presence in his office," he said. Saturday noon he secured a strong padlock and chain and instructed his deputy, Mr. Counsman, to place them on the gate that leads behind the counters in his office, and lock it. He further instructed him that if I sought admission behind the counter to refuse it, and, if I attempted to force my way inside to brain me with a ware.

force my way inside to brain me with a paper "But you have a right to enter, Mr. Lowry.

"But you have a right to enter, Mr. Lowry, have you not, not only as a member of the council, but in the discharge of your official duties as a member of the equalization board?" asked the reporter.
"Of course I have. A bloody scene was only averted Saturday afternoon by Councilman Buraham informing me of the inended conduct of the city clerk and his sub

"What course do you intend to pursue!" "The books must be returned to the city clerk's office and the board will hold its sesion there or not at all.' "What reason has City Clerk Southard for objecting to your presence?

"I voted against him and fought his elec-ion as city clerk, and this is the method he adopts to get even with me. Some very slipshod work is being done by the board, which you can satisfy yourself of if you in-The Bee man sought Deputy Clerk Couns-man, who refused to talk. He referred the reporter to his superior. Messrs. Southard and Burnham were in-dulging in an animated conversation across the counter, which The Bris man overheard. The result was that the city clerk dis-mounted from his high horse and agreed to permit Councilman Lowry to sit with the other members of the board in his office. The books were returned and the sessions esumed in a legal way. "Did you refuse Mr. Lowry admittance behind your counter Mr. Southard?" asked

"Did you instruct Deputy Counsman to brain him with a paper weight if he attempted to force his way in!"

the reporter.

"For what purpose did you purchase the padlock and chain and place them on your rate! Was it for the purpose of locking Mr. "I have the right to make such purchases without disclosing the reason," was the tart reply.

The city clerk was very much mistaken. conversation with Burnham revealed the fact that he refused Mr. Lowry admittance. While in a semi-drunken condition Saturday afternoon be indulged in the assertion that he "would fix the s— of a b—— so he wouldn't get behind his counter."

"Here's a fine mess," said a heavy tax-payer to The Bee representative. "My opin-on is that this method of doing the city's business will invalidate the whole tax levy. The city council has no power under the charter to delegate the duty of hearing complaints and passing on the assessment rolls to three members of the rolls to three members of the council. The charter plainly states that the council shall sit as a board of equalization, and not any portion of the council. They might just as well delegate the duty of holding regular business sessions of the council to a com-mittee. My opinion is that at least a majority mittee. My opinion is that at least a majority of the city council should be present at each session of the board to make any action legal. I am going to look into this matter."

City Attorney Webster was seen. He thought the council had a perfect right to delegate the work to a committee. He said it was the usual course in all legislative bodies. Whatever the outcome, there is a pretty condition of affairs existing between one member of the committee and the city clerk.

Mr. Wells. The case of Mr. Isaac Maxwell versus Mr. T. A. Wells attracted profound interest in the police court yesterday. Mr. Weils is has a young and attractive mulatto wife. Mr. Maxwell has the purest of African blood in his veins, and is proud of his Hottentot ancestry. In the trial, despite the efforts of the city attorney to get nothing but the facts in the fight, the following story was un-folded with elaborate details: Mr. Wells, his wife and Mr. Maxwell are all members of the same church and also attend the same night school in the Izard building. Mr. Maxwell has been paying court to Mrs. Wells, and according to the old man's story. Maxwell makes a point to escort her home from school every evening. Wells decided to put a stop to these attentions. Last Friday evening he lay in wait with a heavy hickory club near the corner of Twentieth and Izard and when the wife of his bosom approached with Maxwell the latter was sud-denly punched in the ribs with the hickory club and asked what he meant by his con-duct. Being unable to give a satisfactory reason he next felt the hickory club over his head and a tussel ensued in which Mr. Wells got both of his eyes badly swellen and discolored for his trouble. He swollon and discolored for his trouble. He then attempted to stab Maxwell, but the weapon was taken away from him. He next rushed home and retting his shot gun went to Mrs. Harris' where Maxwell had taken refuge, and endeavored to coax him out.

Other parties interfered before any more blood was spilt and Maxwell caused Wells' arrest. The latter admitted that he had as-saulted Maxwell and was only sorry that he had not disabled him. The shot gun he said he used only to "skeer" him as it was not loaded. He was fined $28.

Colonel Forbes Dies After Two Week s of Unconsciousness.

Colonel Alexander H. Forbes answered the inevitable call of the messenger of death at ten minutes before noon yesterday. It will be remembered that the colonel met with an accident while returning to this city from a suburban resort two weeks ago and was so injured that he remained unconscious up to the time of his death, passing away without shedding light upon the manner in which he had met with the needent. The deceased was born at Woodstock. Canada, about 1847. He came to Omaha about twenty-four years ago, and has made this section his home ever since. He was popular among the saloon men of the city, and for years back he was the trusted manager and complete of Eders Bethew. He had a for years back he was the trusted manager and employe of Edgar Rothery. He had a firm loyalty for a friend, and would face death rather than betray a confidence. This morning word was conveyed to this city that he was dying, and a large number of friends, including Edgar Rothery and his brother, C. E. Forbes, who is postmaster at St. Paul, Neb., hastened to his beside and were there when they are the state of the second control of the s master at St. Paul, Neb., hastened to his bedside, and were there when the spark of life went out. The remains will be removed to this city late this afternoon. Andrew Forbes, a junior brother of the colonel, is buried at Detroit, Mich. but it is thought that the remains of the latter will be con-veyed to his former childhood home for in-terment in the family countery at Woodterment in the family cemetery at Wood-

Death of Lawrence Duggan. Lawrence Duggan, one of Omaha's oldest citizens, died at midnight Sunday night at his residence on Thirteenth and Pacific streets. Mr. Duggan was born in Ireland and came to this country when quite a young man. He first located in the south and came to Omaha twenty years ago. He was one of the first drivers of an express wagon in the Gate City. He followed the business until he amassed a competence. He owned considerable valuable property in the neighborhood of Thirteenth and Pacific streets. He leaves a wife and daughter, now grown to woman-hood, to mourn him. Mr. Duggan was an industrious citizen and was respected by a large circle of friends.

Pleading for Her Lover. John Shulz took in a dance with his best girl at Sheeley's Sunday night, and became howling drunk. For a few minutes he managed to run the ball room to suit himself. His reign of terror was very brief, however, because the proprietor gave him a pair of black eyes, attacking him from behind with the toe of his boot, and sending him sprawling the toe of his boot, and sending him sprawling through the doorway. A mounted policeman was called, and after some trouble Shulz was corralled. A pair of brass knuckles was found on his person, and he pleaded guilty on arraignment to the charge of carrying concealed weapons. He was break $27.50 and account to the charge of carrying concealed weapons. fined $27.50 and sentenced to five days in the county jail. His best girl and his brother chipped in enough to pay the fine. The young lady, who is an artless German maiden, then entered a plea for her lover to have his seatence revoked. She claimed he was a nice boy and she was going to marry him. He had paid his way into the dance and was only paid his way into the dance and was only having a "leedle fun." She said furthermore that somebody must have put the knuckles into the young man's pockets, and she had felt in all his pockets before they started, and he did not have any weapon. The gallant judge was moved by the eloquent pleading of the rosy-cheeked lass and kindly revoked the scattence of imprisonment.

ment. The Legislative Contest.

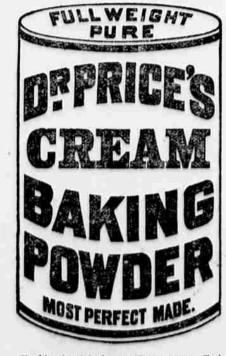

The legislature is now considering the work of the legislative contest committees which was performed in this city about a month ago. Seven ballot boxes of the First, Second and Third wards have been sent to the state capital, but as the county clerk has the keys to them he will have to be subpenned to appear at Lincoln before they can be opened. A. E. Cady, chairman of the election committee of the house of representatives, requested County Clerk Roche this morning to send an abstract of the vote cast at the recent general election of Douglas county for state representatives. Mr. Roche expects to be summoned before the legislature to-morrow.

How a Young Man Got Relief From a Distressing Condition.

FRED WALWAY. "Shall I tell you the history of my case? Well, it was a year or more ago that it commenced. I had been feeling more or less under the weather, when I noticed my symptoms were becoming more or less trooblesome. I had quite severe pains in my chese, often very painful on taking a long breath; headaches came on and I had them nearly all the time, sometimes dull and heavy, sometimes sharp and shooting. I would often get very dizzy so that I would almost stagger. It seemed as if I had a cold in my head continually: it was all stopped up. My throat was dry and uncomfortable, and felt as if there was something lodged there that I could not remove. In the morning I would hem and spit a great deal. My appetite was variable, and the result is, I improved gradually but surely, until now I can say that my troubles have ceased; the pains in my chest are gone; my headache has passed away; my head feels clear, my appetite good and no distress. I feel bright and refreshed after rising in the morning, and go to work with a zest. I can enjoy life, feel strong and well, and am pleased to give this testinonial."
