Mysterious Window Smashing.

Within a short time two large windows have been rather mysteriously broken in Everett's block. One was a large plate glass in Foster's drug store, the other in the Milwaukee & St. Paul office. Both widness were broken by bullet, apparently fired by an air gun or "nigger shooter." The damage amounts to two or three hundred dollars. Mr. Everett has been investigating the matter and is of the opinion that the window breaking is done by some of the boys connected with the Western Union telegraph office. It is said that the boys have been mischievously firing from the upper windows of the block opposite in which the tele-graph office is located. Mr. Everett is threatening to commence suit for damages. It seems that some way should be found to discover the ones who have done this mischief, and for bringing them to such punishment as will stop further breakages.

After a Forger.

Chief Lucas went down to Plattsmouth vesterday morning to get one G. W. Wilson, who is wanted here for forgery. Wilson endeavored to dispose of a note bearing the signature of Jacob Neumayer at the bank of Officer & Pusey, but the suspicions of Mr. Pusey were aroused and he declined to purchase the note, but offered to give the stranger a receipt for its deposit and collect the note for him. Wilson accepted the receipt and departed. The signature of the note was found to be a forgery, when seen by Mr. Neumayer. Wilson had gone and nothing more was heard of him, until a telegram was received from Plattsmouth, asking about the receipt. Wilson was then under arrest for forgery and the receipt was found on him. The chief will back Wilson if he will come without a requisition, and be prosecuted for the forgery of Mr. Neumayer's name,

Rev. Mr. Mackay Needed Here.

It is reported that Rev. T. J. Mackay. rector of St. Paul's church, has been given a very tempting call to an eastern parish. It is to be hoped that he will not consider it favorable, for he has such a strong hold upon this community, as well as being heartily supported in his work by his church, that this seems to be his fit field of labor. Council Bluffs cannot afford to part with such a man, and his church most certainly wants to retain him.

The Day in Court.

Judge A. B. Thornell arrived in the city Tuesday evening and was in his place on the bench when the district court convened yesterday morning. The forenoon was devoted to calling the equity docket and assigning causes for trial. The first three weeks of the term will be devoted to the trial of equity causes, and the petit jury was dismissed until the 11th of February. An assignment of causes was made for the first week. The court announced that the contempt cases would be given precedence over others, and would be called whenever the prosecution is ready. A number of injunction cases are among those already set down for trial. In the afternoon, as the court was about to call the grand jury, Colonel Sapp called the attention of the court to the fact that certain members were drawn who were on the grand jury last year, and therefore ineligible. He stated that there was a clique in Hazel Dell township which had endeavored to keep certain men off the grand jury, and alleged that Mr. Leonard, the member drawn this year, had not been returned by the trustees, and in behalf of that gentleman asked for his release.

This lead to an investigation, and the county auditor was called into court with his poli and election books, and his testimony showed that six of the twelve grand jurors drawn had not been duly returned for this year, but were instead among those returned for last year. It was shown that a correct list had been given to ex-County Clerk Shea, who drew the grand jury, and that left the explanation with Mr. Shea. That gentleman professed entire ignorance regarding the matter, said that the only explanation he could give was a supposition, which was that the list for last year had been left in the box and the later list of names for this year had been dropped in on top of them. As the explanation was perfectly plausible and the only one that could satisfactorily account for the mammoth mistake, it was accepted. It was a piece of gross carelessness, and resulted in considerable delay and inconvenience. After hearing the testimony in the matter the court rendered the following decision: "It appearing to the court that the grand jury summoned to appear at this term, and for the year 1889, has been illegally drawn, therefore it is ordered by the court that said percept for said grand jury be and is hereby set aside; and it is further ordered that a percept be issued to the sheriff of this county commanding him to summon a sufficient number of persons from the body of the county to serve at this term of court; and the court gives him twenty-four hours in which to make that selection. The jurors who had been summoned were discharged, and the clerk directed to issue warrants to pay them for their attendance. Sheriff O'Neill will have another grand jury on hand at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

For the present term of court the re porting will be done by Captain J. H. who exchanges with Reporter Van Pelt, on account of the illness of Mrs. Clark, who prefers to remain in this city. Hereafter Mr. Clark will report for Judge Macey.

One of the conspicuous features of the court room is the notice on the clerk's desk, and reads as follows: "Please Notice-This is no hat rack. All hats. coats and canes found hereon will be appropriated to the use of the bailiffs and their families. H. J. Chambers. Considerable interest is manifested in the sensational damage case of Robert Wilson vs C. R. Hannan. The plaintiff sues for $50,000 as a fair compensation, alleging that the defendant has alienated the affections of plaintiff's young wife. The divorce suit in which Mrs. Alice Wilson is plaintiff is based upon charges of habitual drunkenness and cruelty. To this Mr. Wilson has filed an answer and cross bill in which he claims that he has always been a good, loving and dutiful hus-band, but that his wife has been untrue to him, and has become unduly infatuated with Mr. Hannon. He further claims that "on or about August 19 1888, in Pottawattamie county, Iowa, and at divers other and different times before and after said date, too numerous to relate. Defendant is informed and believes and charges the facts to be that the plaintiff had clandestine meet ings and carnal and craminal intercourse with a man other and different than her busband. Yesterday the plaintiff, through her attorneys, Wright, Baldwin & Haldane. filed a petition asking that Wilson be required to file more specific charges as to the time, place and occasion of al leged sexual intercourse.

Robbing the Clothes Line. About 10 o'clock yesterday merning a bundle containing four shirts was found under the porch at the parochial residence erected by St. Francis Xavier's parish for Rev. B. P. McMenomy. As the bundle was not there on the preceding evening, it was evidently placed there Tuesday night. The janitor of the church was engaged in throwing wood into the basement when a darkey appeared, and after engaging in conversation with the janitor, pretended to discover the bundle. He was on the point of walking away with it when the ianitor interfered and took possession of it. The coon stated that he was employed at the court house, but that is false, as no darkey is employed at the county building. The bundle was taken to the police station and the matter reported to the police. The darkey was immediately set down as the thief who had stolen the clothes, and concealed them until an opportunity was presented for removing them to some more favorable hiding place. A search was instituted for him, but no trace of him was found. The temporary hiding place selected by the thief was a novel one, and the superstitious pilferer evidently had great faith in the sanctity of the grounds to keep him from harm. The clothing bore different marks, some of the articles being marked "C. W. Bryant" and others "J. C. M." These gentlemen can doubtless tell where they have their washing done, and some clue given to the police. The clothing was evidently taken from some dwelling, as the laundrying was complete and ready for delivery to the owners.

They Want Reform.

The objections raised against the form of petition first drawn up for presentation to the city council in the interests of reform, have led to another form less objectionable. The following is the petition which was adopted by the Presbyterian, Congregational and other churches, and endorsed by some who could not agree with the statement made in the one presented at the Methodist

To the Honorable Mayor and City Council of Council Bluffs, Iowa: Gentlemen: The congregation of Council Bluffs, on behalf of the many interests of persons, families and community, which are injured or imperilled, hereby appeals to you, as the duly appointed conservators of the public interests of the city, for relief from the prevalent disregard, in our community, of certain laws of Iowa, and ordinances of our city, which is persistently manifesting itself as follows, viz.: 1. In the saloons, which in large numbers, are open for the illegal sale of intoxicating

2. In the gambling rooms, in which the enticing games of chance, for gain, are attracting hundreds of people, to the peril, or injury, or ruin, of both their finances and character. 3. In the houses of ill-fame, which in considerable numbers, are prosperously pur-suing their illegal and nefarious traffic. This disregard of these laws and ordinan-ces, if tolerated, tends, with alarming rapid-ity, to the enfeebling of all law and all respect for law, in our midst; and for this reason, if for no other, is an incalculable njury and peril to our city. These vices also, every one of them, are fruitful causes of intense suffering in many of the homes of this city. This very suffer-ing appeals to us all, and to you, more than all others, because of your official positions,

All this is also giving our city an unsavoury reputation abroad, which must injure every interest of the city, far more than our words can tell, or than there is any need to tell to men of your judgement, social and business standing, and official positions.

We appreciate many good things secured to the city by your administration of affairs. We also appreciate the difficulties of the task, which we are urging upon you; yet we do, most earnestly and respectfully, petition you to use that power, with which you have een entrusted by the confidence of the peo ple of this city, to secure the just enforcement of the laws and ordinances referred to. for the relief of so many and important in-terests, and which are so grievously sufferng, or threatened.

Done at a meeting of the tion, of Council Bluffs, Ia., at their house of worship, on Sabbath morning, January 20, 1889, and ordered to be respectfully conveyed to the mayor and city council by a commitee, consisting of the following persons, viz. Pastor, -, Clerk.

Viewing Manawa.

Engineer Bunkinbine, Chairman Mc-Connell, of the Manawa improvement committee, and several other interested gentlemen visited Lake Manawa yesterday morning for the purpose of looking over the ground and devising plans for the improvement of the lake. The plan favored by Mr. Birkinbine is to cut two channels, turning the Mosquito and Indian creeks away from the lake, the former into the other lake south of Manawa, and the Indian creek directly into the river.

He also proposes to dam up the outlet of the lake, and put in an engine and pump to keep the lake filled with water. He deems it unwise to attempt to flume water into Manawa from the south lake, as a spring freshet would cut out all work of the kind that could be done. He states that the plant necessary to keep the lake filled would cost about $3,200, and the man who would be required to run the engine, would look after the dykes and dams.

The pump would be necessary for two months during the summer and early fall, and at other times could be used for pumping out the sand at the bottom of the lake. The pump would throw 75 per cent sand and the deposit could be piped to the shore. He favors the idea of putting down about forty two-inch drive-wells on the island southeast of the hotel, and thinks that by going forty feet would strike another stratum of water, and it could be pumped at small cost. The committee authorized him to write for prices for the necessary machinery, and in the meanwhile will go ahead with the work of shutting off the water of the Mosquito and Indian creeks. The method of filling the lake is not yet determined, but the city sewerage will be shut out of the lake and the bathers will doubtless appreciate even that much improvement.

New Abstract Books.

For the past fourteen months the ofice of the county recorder has been occupied to a greater or less degree by a large corps of abstractors, aside from those who regularly haunt that office. in the interest of the various abstract offices of this city. This corps was in the employ of the firm of Watson & Bell, Omaha abstractors, who had contracted to get up a complete set of abstract books for the Pottawattamie County Abstract, Warranty and Trust company, which was incorporated in this city about fifteen months ago. The contract price for getting up was $12,000, and the contracting firm has since that time had a force of from six to eighteen abstractors at work. The work was to have been completed on the 1st of January, 1889, but the time was extended until the 25th of the mouth, as it could not be completed at the specified date. The work will be completed to-morrow, and the books will be turned over to the new firm. The incorporators are George F. Wright, C. R. Hannan, A. B. Walker, C. J. Colby, Avoca bank, Exchange bank of Walnut, J. B. Johansen, Walnut, L. B. Robinson, Oakland, Citizens' bank, Oakland, and B. F.

The completion of the work will relieve the recorder's office of several of the abstractors who have been busy there for over a year. Before the removal of the county offices to the court house, the large force was a veritable nuisance, but lately they have occupied a room in the basement of the court The effect of the completion of this set of abstract books will be felt by the other abstract companies, as several of the banks in the county are interested in the new company, and all of their business will necessarily go to

A piano solo by Miss Julia Officer, and a duet, "Larboard Watch," by Messrs Westcott and McDermid, closed the musical programme. Both were artistically rendered and warmly applauded. The drill of the guards was finely exocuted, and much appreciated by the spectators. Lieutenant Aitchison was the officer of the day. Captain A. W. Home of His Sweetheart. The sudden prominence of Elijah Halford, the president-elect's private ecretary, recalls a story of his youthful days, says an Indianapolis letter to the New York World. Even private secretaries of presidents sometimes have disagreeable adventures at this early but interesting periods of their lives. of no little moment to get a fellow's courage up to the point of calling upon girl for the first time. It takes a brave heart when everything goes smoothly, and when there are breakers ahead in the way of opposition by the parents it takes the grit of a soldier to e successful. If there is anything inclined to ruffle the tender sensibilities of a young man it is to have a thoughtless parent insinuate that he is too to call upon his daughter and that she is too young to receive his attentions. It was thus that they sought to crush the youthful Halford. He wasn't crushed, however. At every attempt he bobbed up bigger than before. About this time the family went to the neighboring town of Bloomington to spend a week. The young lady re-mained at home. During their absence Major J. B. Mulky, an old friend of the amily from that place, was called to Indianapolis on business, and the par-ents of the girl told him to be sure to go around and spend the evening with their daughter. "She would be so lonely," they said. They were mistaken, however. She was not lonely. Neither was Halford. A jollier couple could not have been found when the bell rang at about 8:30 that evening. but the cold chills chased up and down his spine when she said: "Oh, what if should be pa and ma!' that wouldn't stop in the parlor long if it was, so after a few moments' consultation Halford was securely hid behind a ittle high-backed divan which stood neross the corner of the room. The door was opened, but it wasn't oa and ma. It was Mulky. He ambled n and ensconced himself upon the cozy divan and informed the young lady that he had come to fulfill his promise to her parents to help her pass away the long evening. The thermometer was in the 90's, and the major often referred to the fact as he mopped his manly brow. If it was hot for Mulky, what was the state of temperature for Halford? He was hotter than he was at the Gresham men in the Chicago convention. Mr. Halford was a devout Methodist, but was not accustomed to remain upon his knees for hours continuously. Hence it was fortunate that Mulky occupied the divan, for the prisoner could occasionally rise and get a breath of air and the benefit of a fan with which the thoughtful young lady had provided her caller.

After one glimpse of Halford's face she opened all the doors and windows and gave Mulky a larger fan than ever. He waved it unceasingly, and was probably instrumental in preserving Halford's life, for which service he will doubtless expect an appointment. To resume: The major carried on the principal part of the con-versation unaided. He talked over the political situation—and of his own aspirations in that direction. He then took up the subject of chess-at which game he is an expert-and told her of his various victories, entering into the de-tails and intricacies of this sprightly and interesting game. Meanwhile, in order to keep his blood circulating and obtain air, Halford moved carefully and noiselessly about like a caged from and arose and fell like a Roman empire in his efforts. At 9:80 the visitor arose and said that he regretted he could not remain

His Extraordinary Adventure s Dupli-

Strohm, son of Abraham Strohm, of New Paris, who was last year captured and held prisoner by cannibals on the Island of Guan, one of the South sea group, finally making his escape, has been heard from, says a Wabash, Ind., special. The young man is now on his way home, and when he reaches this section he will have completed the circuit of the globe. Young Strohm has had many strange experiences during his long voyage. He left home March 2, 1887, to see the world. He did not run away, but the consent of his parents was given reluctantly. The boy was only sixteen years old. He made his way to San Francisco, where he shipped before the mast on a whaler bound for the Arctic ocean. Young Strohm did not find life on the ocean wave all that his fancy had painted, and he was subjected to very rough treat ment, which he resented. When the vessel put in at the island of Gaun, Strohm watched his opportunity and made his escape from the boat. Six months later a vessel arrived on the island, on which Strohm secured passage to Manilla, one of the Phillipine islands, 1,100 miles away. At Manilla Strohm received the kindly aid of A. R. Webb, United States consul at that port, who interested himself in the youngster. Secretary Bayard wrote to Consul Webb to extend all needed assistance to Strohm, but the consul answered that Strohm was rebust and hearty, and appeared well able to take care of himself.

From Manilla Strohm went to Hong Kong, China, where the United States consul, who had heard of his case, proffered assistance, which was declined with thanks. From Hong Kong Strohn continued his journey and landed in Sidney, Australia, where on October 18 he shipped before the mast of a vessel bound for London. The only human being who knew of the old woman's demise was the good priest of the parish, who administered the sacraments of the church and gave her absolution. For eight years she has lived in seclusion, shunning her neighbors and venturing out only when it was necessary to lay in a supply of food, or when going to church.
