A county warrant that was issued ten years ago was yesterday presented at the office of the county treasurer for payment. It was issued to C. Heiser, and was presented to Barney Grahl. It had never been endorsed so it had no drawn interest.

Work was resumed on the Eisenman block yesterday. A large vault is to be constructed, extending through the cellar to the second floor. Next week work will be commenced on the walls.

He claimed to be a pugilist, and in trying to convince the officer who arrested him of this fact, he had furiously butted his head against the officer's club, to the serious detriment of his appearance. His case was continued to allow his disfigured physiognomy to regain its normal appearance.

The dry goods stock of Harkness Brothers has been sold to Fotheringham, Whitelaw & Co. These young men, lately from Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Binghamton, N. Y., are thorough dry goods men, having served their apprenticeship in Glasgow, Scotland. They will occupy the store so long held by Harkness Brothers, and having identified themselves with the commercial interests of Council Bluffs through the board of trade, they are being warmly welcomed. I bespeak for them the recognition and good will of the community, where they now make their home.

J. E. HARKNESS.

TOO MUCH CONFIDENCE.

A Young Man Pays a Hundred Dollars For Experience.

THE SQUATTERS STILL IN COURT

Stretching Electric Light Wires—Indicted for Murderous Assault—A Wayward Daughter—Official Reports.

The confidence man bobbed up serenely yesterday morning and sprung his threadbare check racket without the slightest suspicion of a patch to cover its nakedness. George Engelmeier, a fresh young man with more money than brains, was the victim. A well dressed, nice appearing fellow approached him at the corner of Pearl and Willow avenue, and said that he must raise $100, and offered a check for $1,650 on a Portland, Ore., bank. It had been stamped "ceofified" with a rubber stamp, and George swallowed the bait at a gulp, without even winking.

The stranger then had business upstairs in the Beno block, and wouldn't his friend please wait a minute? Why, of course he would be delighted to still further accommodate him. The $100 and the stranger went up the stairs on the Pearl street side and down again to the Main street entrance, and George is still waiting. The police are helping him wait, but the stranger cometh not.

The District Court. The squatters cases are still on trial in the district court. Although there are thousands of dollars involved, these cases excite but little interest among outsiders except in a general way, the curiosity manifested being as to the final result. The history of the cases has previously appeared in these columns. The recorder's office is turned upside down and books and records without number are introduced in evidence. Aside from the attorneys and witnesses there are few parties in the court room, and the matter will be decided with very little excitement.

No new indictments have been returned by the present month, but not by many another report this afternoon. That body will not finish its labors today, but will probably manage to complete its investigations about the latter part of next week. An enormous amount of work is being done, and the indictments will occupy the attention of the court for some time.

Making Ready For Light. The Council Bluffs Electric Light company has a large force of men at work preparing for the starting up of the incandescent plant. Wires are strung through the city, and the buildings of subscribers are also being wired. Wires are put up at the rate of about fifty lights per day, and about five hundred have thus far been put up. As there are subscribers for about two thousand lights, the work will be completed by the present month. The work is also progressing rapidly at the power building, and the walls will be up in two days. The new machinery is on the road. There are two engines of 125 and sixty horse power, and two dynamos, one of 1,300 and the other of 750 lights capacity. This makes 2,250 incandescent lights of sixteen candle power each, which will be started up as soon as they can be put in readiness.

A Bloody Assault. The three parties against whom indictments were returned Thursday have since been arrested and are now in the county jail. They are John Farrell and George and Joseph Wolf. They are indicted for assault with intent to commit murder. Farrell was arrested Thursday night while in the bed at his home in Weston, and the Wolf brothers were arrested at an early hour yesterday morning.

The City Finances. City Auditor Hammer makes the following report of the city's finances for the month of January, 1890:

Table with 2 columns: Category and Amount. Includes Improvement, walk and library fund, $17,155.23; General fund, 7,593.29; Total, $24,964.75.

A Boyish Scrape. Last Wednesday afternoon, Lennie Stubbs, an eleven-year-old boy, visited the store of Eisenman & Co. and showed an order for a suit of clothes and other material, signed by Captain L. Kirsch, the grandfather of the boy. The articles were given him, although the order was pronounced a forgery by the bookkeeper. Yesterday it was discovered that such was the case, and Chief Lucas was put on the track of the boy. The youngster visited Dohany's stable in company with another boy named Baker, and presented another forged order for a couple of ponies. They were secured, and the boys started out, closely followed by the officer. They abandoned the animals on Upper Broadway, where they were tied to a haystack. The fugitives then started out on foot, but the officer caught up with them in Glasgow, Scotland. They will occupy the store so long held by Harkness Brothers, and having identified themselves with the commercial interests of Council Bluffs through the board of trade, they are being warmly welcomed. I bespeak for them the recognition and good will of the community, where they now make their home.

THEY ARE NOW DESPERATE

The Wind Castle Leaders "Jumping" on the Reporters.

THEY ARE NOW DESPERATE

THEY FAVOR THE PRIMER SANDHILL—ETC., ETC.

The portals of the Jeffersonian wigwam were locked yesterday, and were opened by a small boy after the reporter had a few lusty knocks upon their panels. "You'll have to send in your name to Mr. McArdle," said the diminutive guardian of the entrance into the presence of the great agitators.

The London "Tailor" is the place to get your clothes made. 637 Broadway. Dohany's was crowded last evening, every seat being occupied, and standing room commanding a premium. The occasion was the first presentation here of "A Dark Secret," and to say that the audience was highly pleased would begin to expose their feelings. The reporters were fairly carried away, and at the finish of the boat race many left their seats and yelled with enthusiasm.

The Second Republican Hascall. A meeting of the residents of the Second ward was called at Mueller's hall Thursday night to discuss the proposed consolidation of the citizens of that neighborhood who had a quiet and free discussion in order that they might decide upon the course to pursue next Tuesday.

The Citizens' Preparations. The local firemen's association held a meeting last night at their rooms on Broadway and transacted considerable minor business regarding the coming tournament. Several committees were appointed, and the matter of having Nebraska companies here to participate was discussed at length. The preparation of the program, known to be completed, it is quite probable that our sister state will be represented here. Several companies have expressed a desire to come, and they will be received with open arms.

Fotheringham, Whitelaw & Co., who bought the stock of Harkness Brothers, have been making some great improvements. To-day they open the store with a new stock and many attractions.

Blank books made to order. Can furnish patent binding for parties wishing the same. Call and see samples at room 1, Everett block, Pearl street.

MORRISON & CO. SUNDAY-SCHOOLING BY W. R.

The Unique Bible Class Held by Tennesses Teachers.

The latest fact, and one more likely to be productive of good than the majority of these outgrowths of our rapid civilization, writes a Chattanooga, Tenn., correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, has recently developed among the night operators on the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad, between Nashville and Chattanooga. The operators have organized a Sunday school, which meets at different points along the wire, and is being conducted at 2 o'clock. This novel association is opened by prayer by the superintendent, J. B. Blumfield, night operator at Watrass, Tenn. After the prayer and reading of the scripture lesson the regular instruction, school, and religious classes are organized, and the pupil with the quickest mind and nimblest fingers captures the circuit, and his generosity will have to be rebuked by the superintendent on answers and give all a fair showing. Of course singing is impossible. No amen corners can be established, and no flirting with the pretty girl in the next class will ever trouble the secretary of this Sunday school.

The first regular lesson was on last Sabbath morning. The theme was the cleansing of the leper, the old pathetic story of his faith and healing as it is told by St. Mark in the first chapter of his epistle. Reverent fingers sent the words over the magic wires. "If Thou wilt Thineans' make me clean;" then from another sleeping town came the murmur as if in answer to the prayer of each soul so mysteriously in communication with other souls by this God-given mystery, "I will be thou clean." Some one along the line was not aware of these solemn words, and the worshippers were startled by the next dispatch, which announced: "And he straightway charged him—Cabbage, 12c per lb; potatoes, Irish, 15c/20c, and forty with sent in a sack, at the market closing dull on wheat."

There has always been a feeling of pity for these boys of the wires, who, through the night long must do nothing but listen during the ghostly hours to the monotonous tick, tick of the instruments, and have greatly desired to paint some soft tinges on the hard tragedy of their every-night life which they needs must live. But down here in the sleepy southland these electric knights have solved the difficulty for themselves. Think of what an era of religious activity we may expect to see when, instead of beginning religious services with Sunday school lessons, we read aloud along the line there will be Sunday school services beginning promptly at 2 a. m. and continuing one hour.

The following shows how Chamberlain's Cough Remedy stands where it has been sold for years and its intrinsic value is well known. "I sell large quantities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and have never sold goods that gave more general satisfaction. The purchaser almost invariably returns for more when again in need of such a remedy." C. H. LEWIS, Druggist, Des Moines, Ia. Sold by all druggists.

His Life Imperilled by a Yawn. Becoming tired after writing for several hours, Frank T. Lacey, a traveler for a New York cloak house, attempted to yawn. In so doing he ruptured some of the cords in the vertebrae. Since accident he has no power to move his head and is in a critical condition, though conscious.

should forget these personal matters at times like these. "Forget nothing," I'm not going over there, an' that's all there is in it." And he wouldn't go either. Jim Creighton went alone and while he was gone George Heindorf, Judge Benecke and Charles Fanning came in. Louis Schroeder and his nephew happened along, and the former, being an advocate of Farnam street, there was a regular "shindig" for a time. Jim Creighton came back and went into consultation with Pat Ford and Charles Fanning.

The reporter's nose was pushed into the conference. "Get away from here," cried Jim Creighton, getting red in the face. "You're always showing yourself in where you are not wanted. Can't two or three gentlemen sit and talk together without one of you—d impudent reporters coming along. You're impudent, sir, I say you are impudent and I want you to go away. Leave sir!"

"Don't mind him," said John A. Creighton, as the abused reporter left the conference and stepped to another part of the room. "He's got a good deal on his mind." "Something on his conscience, too, perhaps," suggested the reporter.

"Oh, no; but he's worried, you see." "I cannot but stand awed by admiration for the disinterestedness and anxiety for the public weal exhibited by you Jefferson square advocates," said the reporter, addressing Pat Ford.

"I don't claim to be disinterested," said Pat. "Rosewater used me until he could do so no longer an' then he began to abuse me, an' I intend to get even. The little case may be able to write better than I can, but I can talk more and drink more than he can, an' I tell you, I am going to carry this election against him by 1,000 majority," and Mr. Ford went to join the conference in the rear of the room.
