

THE DAILY BEE. COUNCIL BLUFFS.

OFFICE NO 12 PEARL STREET. Delivered by carrier in Any Part of the City...

MINOR MENTION. N. Y. Plumbing company. Coalwood, E. E. Mayne, 619 B'way.

The city council meets this evening, and the electric light ordinances will receive a thorough overhauling.

The funeral of G. A. Stavelly took place yesterday from the residence, on East Pierce street, Rev. Dr. Phelps officiating.

D. McCullum was arrested Saturday night for passing a forged check. He was towed in by Officers Fowler and Isenberger.

The funeral of the late Mrs. J. B. Rue will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the family residence.

Miss Wilson and Miss Griffiths, two Iowa ladies who are on their way to occupy missionary fields in China, will speak at the Broadway Methodist church this evening.

Ed. Glenn was raising a disturbance on Broadway yesterday afternoon by using profane and obscene language when Officer Thomas happened along and kindly took him in.

Thursday evening next the Methodist ladies and others interested will meet at the home of Mrs. Allen, corner of Mynter and Seventh streets.

The musical part of the services at the Congregational church yesterday was furnished by a male quartet, consisting of Messrs. Westcott, Ogden, Allen and McDaniel, with Mr. De Normandie at the organ.

There was a meeting of the Press club at the parlors of the Ogden house at 10:30 yesterday morning, but owing to the small number present, no business was transacted and an adjournment was taken for two weeks.

Every member of the board of trade should be on hand to-morrow evening to consider the proposed amendments to the constitution. It is a matter of great importance, and it is desired to have a full attendance to act upon the question.

The ladies who are engaged in getting up the benefit of the St. Bernard's hospital will give a quadrille party at Masonic temple Thursday evening, February 7, the proceeds to be devoted to purchasing articles for the bazaar. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance, to encourage these charitable ladies who are working for so worthy an object.

The grand opening of Messrs. Fotheringham, Whitelaw & Co., on Saturday, was, in its way, a revelation to the people of Council Bluffs. The taste and originality displayed in the arrangement of their elegant stock is not surpassed outside of the largest cities.

Travel on the motor line yesterday was fully as heavy as on any day since the line has been in operation. The cars were crowded and it was almost an impossibility for the conductor to pass through. The platforms were filled, and during the entire day Omaha's citizens poured in and out of the city. Hundreds of the Bluffians also crowded the river, and the constantly passing throngs of pleasure-seekers and sight-seers made it the liveliest Sunday the city has witnessed in some time.

Simon Eisenman, of the firm of Henry Eisenman & Co., will leave the latter part of the present week for New York and other eastern points to purchase goods for the spring trade.

Have our wagon call for your soiled clothes. Cascade Laundry Co.

Houses and lots to sell on monthly payments by F. J. Day, 39 Pearl st.

All grades soft coal, C. B. Fuel Co.

Home Entertainments. The Entertainment Bureau just started in Council Bluffs is meeting with great encouragement. It is a monthly devoted to giving outlines for home entertainments for churches and societies, pastimes for the home, help for Sunday schools, etc.

Churches and societies all over the country are asking for new entertainments. This little monthly gives these, and suggests many other amusements and modes of raising money for charitable and religious purposes.

It has subscribers in almost every state in the union, and at only $1 a year, it serves as a standing committee for every church and society, reporting promptly all new forms of entertainment.

The Entertainment Bureau also furnishes costumes and properties for such entertainments as "An Evening With Art," the "Quiz Sociable," etc. It also publishes "The Old District School," with full details at $1. Samples are sent at 10 cents. All orders should be addressed to Entertainment Bureau, J. E. Harkness, manager, Council Bluffs.

Parties having temperance billiard halls and restaurants will do well to take the exclusive sale of my temperance beer. L. M. FINKELSTEIN.

Heating stoves at cost to E. Odell & Bryant.

Send all orders for bottled beer to L. M. Finkelstein, Omaha.

Gas is Cheap! And gas fixtures are cheaper at the N. Y. Plumbing Co., 114 Main st. A discount of thirty per cent from list price will be given for thirty days.

Try our XXX bottled beer. Special rates on all orders from Iowa. L. M. FINKELSTEIN.

IMPROVING LAKE MANAWA.

The Work Already Started and Great Changes Promises.

A NEW METHODIST CHURCH. An Old Settler Dies in Jail—Funeral of Neil Voorhes—Variety Items About the Bluffs.

Improving Manawa. A number of Omaha gentlemen visited this side of the river yesterday, and in company with several of the Bluffians took a trip to Lake Manawa to look over the ground and discuss proposed improvements.

The time for the degrading slavery of the wild western mustang has come, says a New York dispatch to the Globe-Democrat. Within a few months he has been brought to a standstill, and at present, on the Third Avenue Surface railway, at least, he outnumber the eastern horse in the ratio of nearly five to one.

Aside from the lake itself, the surroundings and accommodations are to be greatly improved. The motor line service is to be greatly increased. Colonel Reed has just completed negotiation with the other interested parties and has given a bond for $5,000 that he will put on additional motors and coaches as soon as the season opens, and will run them daily the year round.

In consideration of this, the other parties give up all their claims on the road, and Colonel Reed has an unrestricted franchise.

Drives to the lake will be greatly improved, and Eighth street will undoubtedly be paved to the city limits, as the majority of the property owners along that street are anxious to have the work done. The money necessary to prosecute all this work to completion is not yet all raised, but the greater part of it has been subscribed. It will require about $12,000, and of this amount Colonel Reed subscribes $2,500, the Electric Motor company $2,000, C. P. Hanson $1,000, and the other parties $600 each.

Money loaned on furniture, pianos, diamonds, horses, buggies or anything of value at low rates of interest. No publicity; fair and honorable dealing. A. A. Clark & Co., office cor. Broadway and Main, over American express.

Sad End of a Long Life. About 6 o'clock yesterday morning Jacob Smith, an old resident of this city, died at the county jail. The deceased had reached the advanced age of eighty-one years, and was not confined in the jail for any crime, but simply because he was homeless and had no where else to go.

He had spent considerable time there, and was supported by the county. His family lived on Harrison street, but his only child, a daughter, married and moved into the county, and as the old folks could not agree, the property was divided, and the wife went to live with the daughter. The head of the family had several hundred dollars, and boarded for years at the various hotels of the city until his money was gone.

Homeless and penniless, he could do nothing at his advanced age but become a public charge. He was sent to jail several times as a vagrant from the police court, and spent his last years behind the bars with hardened criminals. He was not seriously ill, but his appetite failed, and he passed away, worn out by old age. The remains were taken in charge by Undertaker Morgan, and yesterday interred in the potter's field.

This case again draws attention to the need of a county poor farm. No provision is made for the maintenance of the public poor at a suitable place, and they are left to the care of the county jailor, and end their days amid the cheerless surroundings of prison walls. Citizens think it is time some move was made to change this condition of things, and hope that the county board will consider the matter.

Blank books made to order. Can furnish patent binding for parties wishing the same. Call and see samples at room 1, Everett block, Pearl street. MOREHOUSE & CO.

The New Methodist Church. The Methodists living in the southwestern part of the city, which is rapidly filling up with new residents, have therefore organized themselves into a separate church organization, which they have named the "Trinity Methodist Church." In order to centralize the forces there and awaken new interest a series of special services began last evening and will be continued during the evenings of the present week.

This organization has grown out of the religious gatherings which have been held in Lacey's block for some weeks past, and here the meetings of this week will be held. A Sunday school and the various phases of distinctly Methodist organized work are also supplied. When the organization shall have gathered a little more numerical strength an effort will be made to erect a church edifice at a point best suited to the demands of this rapidly increasing portion of Council Bluffs. It is probably that this effort will be made during the present year.

I have moved my office to Omaha, at which all orders will be received and from which all deliveries will be made by wagon. L. M. FINKELSTEIN.

Notice the beautiful finish given collars, cuffs and shirts by Cascade Laundry company.

The funeral of the late Neil Voorhis will take place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from St. Paul's church, Rev. T. J. Mackay officiating. Friends wishing to view the remains will do so at the house, as the casket will not be opened at the church.

THE VOLUNTEER FIREMEN. All members of the Volunteer fire department of Council Bluffs are requested to meet at Rescue engine house, corner North Main and Bryant streets, Monday at 2 p. m. sharp for the purpose of attending in a body the funeral of the late Neil Voorhis, formerly a member of Rescue engine company No. 3. All old firemen are cordially invited to attend.

By order of committee. ATTENTION, BLUFF CITY. The members of Bluff City Engine company No. 1 are requested to meet at No. 8 engine house Monday, February 4, at 1:30 p. m. sharp for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late Neil Voorhis, formerly a member of Rescue engine company No. 3. Foreman, F. H. GASKILL.

4, at 1:30 p. m. sharp for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late Neil Voorhis, of engine company No. 3. Foreman, F. H. GASKILL.

ATTENTION, PHOENIX. All member of the Phoenix Hook and Ladder company No. 2 are hereby notified to report at No. 3 engine house Monday, February 4, at 1:30 p. m. sharp for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late C. D. Voorhis of engine company No. 3. T. W. COOPER, Foreman.

All members of the David Bradley company, hook, are requested to join with us attending the funeral of our deceased comrade. J. G. TIPTON, real estate, 527 B'ldway

MUSTANGS FOR STREET CARS. Thousands of the Wiry Little Beasts Being Used in New York.

The time for the degrading slavery of the wild western mustang has come, says a New York dispatch to the Globe-Democrat. Within a few months he has been brought to a standstill, and at present, on the Third Avenue Surface railway, at least, he outnumber the eastern horse in the ratio of nearly five to one.

They have been tried, and unwittingly passed their lives successfully. They eat less than a big horse, they keep in better condition, they are less subject to disorders, they have much more endurance, and after they are once trained they work together with quite as much ease as their more civilized brothers.

But before they are trained they are not inclined to peace, and are so familiar with their hostlers that the latter, in order to keep whole clothing on their backs, are compelled to endow their charges with muzzles of the wrought iron order. The mustangs purchased in the west, particularly in Texas, by agents of the company, which no longer depends upon the horse trading talents of firms in this city. They are sent here in batches of twenty and forty, and are as wild as the wind.

Their training is done in the stable on Sixty-fifth street. For a considerable time they won't eat, but by and by, as a driver describes it, "they get so hungry that their insides get all knotted up and they eat their stall."

As this is not particularly nutritious diet, the mustangs begin to show a longing for hay, but what they really delight in is bran. When this main difficulty of eating is overcome the little horses are turned to work. They are old, settled-down car horses as their mates, and, with poles, are driven around the stable. They have a particular fondness for climbing posts and trying to get on the top of the cars, but by means of several hundred whips that such conduct is not tolerated in civilized communities, they manage to center around a little. Two days are generally sufficient to convince the mustangs that there is a point where obstinacy ceases to be a praiseworthy attribute. But there comes another difficulty. Despite their utter detestation for all manner of tamed horses, they are harnessed to old tagers and begin their trips down town. At the appearance of every train they endeavor to climb up the pillars, but being restrained by the other horse and the repeated evidences of dissatisfaction from their driver, they settle down to endurance. Two weeks of this sort of thing and a set of harness generally brings a consignment of mustangs into an appreciation of the dull realities of eastern life. After that they are harnessed to one of their own race, and pass their lives in exchanging memories of the Texas plains and drawing the cars.

The Bustle Must Go. Many well known women in New York are now issuing their manifestoes against the bustle. Several of them object to bustles before Mrs. Cleveland said anything on the subject. Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox has discarded the bustle long before Mrs. Cleveland. Celia Logan thinks she gave Mrs. Cleveland her first idea of abolishing bustles when she went bustleless to a reception at the white house two years ago. Belva Lockwood has always discarded bustles "dress distorter" and Lillie Blereux Blake has discarded them ever since she put on long dresses, years and years ago. Kate Field says: "The bustle is an invention of the devil. While showing my dress to a friend a few days ago Mrs. Brown Potter said: 'If you can find a dress pad or a spring or a steel tugged away in any one of them I will give you the whole wardrobe. The back, if one has a good back, has a lovely curve, and the bustle wants to display—not an artificial back of cotton, wool and sawdust. The bustle is barbarism.'"

Though opposed to a very little one," she says: "A well-formed woman can hardly dispense with a little fullness at the back of her gown. I can't agree with Mrs. Potter. She says her form is so pretty that she doesn't need a bustle. Now if she doesn't need one that is proof on the face (or the back) of it that her form is not good at all." Mrs. Langtry regards bustles as "hideously ungraceful," and Mary Anderson speaks of them as "essentially unartistic." Fanny Davenport also declares that the bustle must go.

The Indiana Skunk Farm. James Clark, living south of Columbus, Ind., near the little village of Perry, is engaged in the most enterprising of skunk farming. About one acre of ground is inclosed with a tight fence constructed out of thick boards, and in this inclosure are over three hundred skunks. Clark takes great delight in the peculiar occupation, and takes great pains to make his visitors' calls as pleasant as possible under the circumstances. In the lot where the skunks are confined a long trench has been dug, into which the animals have carried nearly a ton of hay and manure, where they raise their young, which average nine or ten at a litter. The business has proved a profitable one, as the animals are raised for their fur and oil. There is only a coarse rope of the land and fence, as the skunks feed on dead sheep, horses, cows, apples, potato parings, and refuse of all kinds. They breed like rabbits, and the furs are taken off in the winter and shipped to the New York market, where they bring $1 apiece. Clark takes great care to weed out all colors but black from his flock. The stench which is emitted from the enclosure makes it a disagreeable place to visit.

He Jacet Poor Bow-Wow. A lady in Dumbartonshire, England, whose pet dog recently died, was much afflicted by the loss of the creature, and she manifested her grief by having its carcass placed in a wooden mahogany coffin with brass mountings, which was deposited in the family burying ground in the neighboring cemetery.

Our Servants. Paris Figaro, Marie, these chairs are covered with red velvet. That is not surprising, madame; nobody has sat upon them to-day yet!
