The captain says that business has not been so dull and money so scarce in St. Paul for years as now. Merchants are complaining bitterly and the people are buying very closely, and only such necessaries as they absolutely have to have.

While the officers were on her track, her step-father, Mr. Mason, who lives eight miles south of Nebraska City, promised to see that she returned the article provided they would not arrest her. The officers agreed to this with the above result. She is said to be in a Kansas City bawdy house.

There were four suits of attachment entered in Justice Wade's court yesterday against John Bestelmeyer for moneys and for goods. The plaintiffs are Arvit Goslin, John Pearson, W. N. Bridge and Strock & Mars, and the total amount involved is $200. The ttachments were issued, and the plaintiffs filing affidavits that the property was perish able, an order of sale was issued and the property sold. Bridge now seeks to intervene on the other three cases, claiming that some of the property sold under this order was his, and consequently he has the right to intervene and claim restitution out of the money in the hands of the court. The J. J. Hardin Blaze. A fire that occurred in John J. Har dm's sporting goods depot, corner Thirteenth and Dodge streets, Sunday morning, turns out to have been much more disastrous than was at first supposed. A hasty appraisement puts the loss anywhere from $3,800 to $5,000, in goods in the basement store-house, damaged by both fire and water. Mr. Hardin is fully insured, as he holds policies for $2,600 in each of the following companies: Etna, of Hartford; Fire Insurance Association, of London, England; Manufacturers and Builders' Insurance company, New York, and Williamsburg City Fire Insurance company, New York.

A New Contempt Question.

Yesterday was the day Judge Shields of the county court should have appeared before himself to answer of a summons garnisheeng certain money in his possession belonging to Hodson & Babcock, collected by him on a judgment obtained in his court against Parsons & Johnson. In the meantime the Union National bank secured judgment against P. W. Hodson for $200. An execution was issued and placed in Constable Carrol's hands for collection. He returned the process endorsed "no property found." The bank at once commenced proceedings to possession of Hodson's portion the Parsons & Johnson judgret possession of Hodson's portion of the Parsons & Johnson judgment held by Judge Shields. He accordingly issued a summons for himself, and had it served by the constable commanding him to appear before himself to-day and show cause why the money in question should not be turned over to the bank.

The judge left Omphalest Friday evening. The judge left Omaha last Friday evening, and sent back a dispatch yesterday stating that he will not be home until Wednesday. Now the question arises, is he in con-tempt of his own court! Suppose he fines himself, who will collect the fine! This is probably the most novel suit ever commenced in a Louglas county court.

Byron Reed, administrator of the estate of John Campbell, deceased, brought suit yes-terday in the county court to recover $405 from H. A. Cherry, claiming that the amount is due for rent of the premises at 1709 Dodge street.

An amended petition in the $5,000 damage case of Johanne Christensen, deceased, against James C. Brennan, was filed yesterday in the district court. The plaintiff's hus band was killed Dec. 10, 1887, by being crushed to death by an embankment. Last March F. L. #### THE GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT. An Impression That it Will Go by the Board.

There seemed to be some doubts among railroad officials vesterday about the so-called 'Gentlemen's Agreement" being exactly what it has been represented to be, and the matter is eliciting considerable discussion. It is learned that very few of the presidents have signed it except conditionally. Adams, of the Union Pacific, is probably the only official who stands tooth and toe nail for the scheme. That, doubtless, is due to the fact that he is virtually the father of the plan and is most sincere in his advocacy of its adoption. While a goodly number have signified their intention of signing, they seem to manifest an indifference that indicates suspicion and coldness. Up to date the Illinois Central has stood out as being heartily opposed to the agree ment, consequently neither the Burlington nor Alten consent to surrender and come into camp. An official of the Milwaukee said yesterday that under existing cir-cumstances he considered the issue as knocked out and thinks nothing more will be heard of it after this week. Two or three general managers and as many passenger men were seen, but they refused to express their opinious. It was noticed, however, that each man, when the question was put a met it with a peculiarly significant #### smile, as much as to say, chestnuts. The New Time Table.

Two division superintendents and half a dozen helpers sailed into the new time table work at Union Pacific headquarters yesterday in order to get the document out before next Sunday, when it goes into effect. At that time the Union Pacific and Northwestern deal, by which the latter will run through trains between Chicago and Denver, also becomes an established fact. It is reported that these trains are to be the equal in point of luxury and to any ever sent out here. There seems to be an existing impression, too, that this combination which is made in opposition to and affects the Burlington, has much to do with killing the "gentlemen's agreement." The point is plain enough and needs no discussion.

Ticket Commissions.

The Omaha general agents of eastern lines received a circular yesterday from Commissioner J. N. Abbott, of the Western States Passenger association, giving them the new schedule of commissions allowed or ticket sales. Between Omaha and St. Paul, Chicago, Peoria, Bloomington and St. Louis the commission is fixed at $1; to interm diate points, a pro-rated per cent of that sum.

Tapping the Jeffersonian Bar'l. "Give them all of the First, Second and Seventh and half of the Third and Fourth wards and still win. It looks awfully scarcy, but Pat says it's so and I guess it's all right." The most august secretary of the Jeffersonian combine, McArdle the great, was sitting alone in his sanctum when a reporter dropped in about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and so deeply lost in meditation was he that the entrance of the visitor, for a time, passed unnoticed. The most potent secretary had evidently been reading the lurid declaration made by Pat Ford a few days ago to the effeet that if the First Second and Seventh wards should go nearly as a unit in favor of Farnam street as the site for the city hall, and half of the Third and Fourth wards hould go the same way, the Jeffersonian boodlers would yet carry the election. The only McArdle evidently found the dose a difficult one to swallow, and was trying to ease its passage by frequent readings of the

The sachems were late in arriving at the wigwam. J. B. Furay wandered in about 9:30, and was followed half an hour later by Jim Creighton, both looking as though the drowsy god had ceased to visit their couches. The injunction of the second comman iment, to remember the Sabbath day and keen it holy, was not obeyed by the sachems of the wigwam Ail day and far into the night they were together endeavoring to de vise schemes by which they hope to throttle the public will at to-morrow's election. A more moticy crew than was gathered in the halls and entrances leading into John and Jim's sanctuary, waiting their turn to be ushered into the presence of the supreme council, could scarcely be imagined. Italians struggled with negroes for a choice of position, white representatives of other nationalities either took a hand in the general push or looked on in more stolid indifference, according to their temperament. But they were for revenue our way, sartin. I kaint git them fellows down there to vote right widout some thin' to kinder grease the wheels." "Where have you been working!"

"Down in the Third ward."

"Do you think any of the colored people down there will vote for Jefferson square?" "Not many of 'em unless de mosses grease de wheels. "I'se been workin' and a-workin wid one ole man down there who has a tole able lot of influence an' he says he kain't see what's dere's anyting in it fur him Dat's what I'm up hy're to see 'bout.'' Leaving the crowd about the sachems door, the reporter started on a visit to the Farnam street site.

'Lordy," said the elevator boy as he pulled the rope and started the elevator down, "but won't I be glad when to morrow is over. I've nearly pulled my arms off the past week carrying people up to room 23 (the wigwam). That's all you hear now. They're a cranky lot, too. If I don't run the machine from the bottom floor to the fifth in a second when they're waiting, they raise a howl." Up at the Farnam street site a half dozen parties of from two to five persons each were examining the foundations. "All I've got to say," said one whose dress betokened the workingman, "is that if the people of this town don't vote to build the city hall here it will be a shame. That all fired good a foundation to be wasted. "How are the laboring men going to vote for the greater part!" inquired the reporter of the same speaker.

"Well, I've talked around amongst them a great deal, and I think that nearly all of them see now that Creighton. Swift and all those fellows are scarcly what they have been cracked up to be as friends of the work-ingmen, and that it is giving us all the 'taffy' they have been piling on lately, their object was simply to capture our votes in aid of their big scheme. I think they will get fooled, and that you'll find the workingmen on the right side to morrow."
About noon Furay and Creighton, whe were in consultation in room 24 in the Ware block, were joined by Pat Ford and P. W. Birkhauser and the two went into close con-ference. The rooms, which had been opened to the public during the earlier hours of the morning, were cleared and guardians placed at the entrances.

The Jeffersonians are making desperate efforts to capture the colored votes of the Third ward and were devoting much attention to that district yesterday. The colored people as a rule refuse to listen to them, but occariously a weak heather will be contract by sionally a weak brother will be captured by, if the negroes are to be believed, a more potent argument than mere words.

An Evening With the Irish. An evening of unusual interest was that afforded by the last programme at Park Place. The subject under discussion was one of great and absorbing importance, viz. 'The Irish Question," not however, in its popular sense, but viewed from a purely literary and historic standpoint. The seven essays were panoramic sketches from the Druidical period of the Brst five centuries down to eatholic emancipation and the land agitation of our own times. The introduction dealt mainly with the difficulty of treating a history beset with such distracting problems, bristling with such thorny contro versies. It was a long, dark road with many blind alleys, many sudden turnings, many unaccountable crooked pertions, disclosing the strangest and most perplexing chapter of human history and human destiny. The other essays treated of the invasion of the other essays treated of the invasion of the Northmen, the passionate thirst of the Irish for knowledge, Strongbow's invasion of Ireland, and the English dominion dating therefrom.

Miss Lee, of Fremont, Neb., dilated in graphic language on the period of persecution and the penal laws, Miss McHugh told of the brief period of aniss McHaga told of the brief period of national life of which marked the latter half of the eighteenth century. The sketch on the Irish leaders was a remarkably able summary of the work and influence of Gratan, Flood, Emmet and O'Connell, and the reading did credit to Miss Babcock's appreciation of her subject.

The music, both instrumental and vocal. was quite in keeping with the essays. The national music of the land of song was brought into requisition on harp and pianos. Irish airs, which played so large a part in the strengthening of Ireland's sons and in the conciliation of Ireland's most bitter enemies found voice in the tenderest and most thril ling of Moore's melodies.

Refinement and good taste were the special characteristics of this enjoyable literary and musical feast, which closed a very successful ession at the academy.

During the past week the pupils have undergone their semi-annual review and examination in English and mathematics, and begin, on February 1, the second term of Finest Trains to Washington. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad is the only line running through trains from the west to Washington, and they have recently improved the service by putting on two vestibule trains, one which leaves Cincinnati daily at 7:30 p. m., and the other leaves Chicago laily at 7:05 p. m. All cars in these trains are vestibuled, including baggage cars, day coaches and Pullman Buffet deepers, thus wholly overcoming the swaying motion imparted to ordinary trains when rounding curves at high speed. The trains are heated by steam drawn from the locomotive. Porters are in attendance in the day coaches as well as in the sleepers to wait upon passengers. In accordance with its long-established policy, the B. & O. exacts no extra fare for passage on these trains.
