

THE DAILY BEE. PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION. Daily Morning Edition, including Sunday, for six months $10.00, for a year $18.00.

CORRESPONDENCE. All communications relating to news and editorial matter should be addressed to the Editor of the Bee.

BUSINESS LETTERS. All business letters and remittances should be addressed to THE BEE PUBLISHING COMPANY.

The Bee Publishing Company, Proprietors. E. ROSEVATER, Editor.

THE DAILY BEE.

Sworn Statement of Circulation.

Table with columns for dates (Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday) and circulation numbers (Total, Paid, Free).

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence this 21st day of February, 1889, State of Nebraska, N. P. FEIL, Notary Public.

George R. Tschuck, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is secretary of the Bee Publishing Company, that the actual average daily circulation of THE DAILY BEE for the month of January, 1889, is as follows:

A PLETHORIC MONEY MARKET. Even New York financiers are astonished at the remarkable accumulation of money which goes to swell the reserve fund of the banks.

GENERAL HYPOLYTE, according to Hayti advices, has won a famous victory. He has also earned the title of butcher.

Now that Omaha is assured of its city hall and postoffice the project of building a union depot should be urged all along the line.

The council has determined that twenty hundred pounds shall constitute a ton, and the short-weight coal man will have to go.

A COMBINATION has just been effected among the manufacturers of sewer-pipe. That is the kind of a trick which will smell to heaven.

WIFE beating seems to be becoming fashionable in certain classes of society. It is a peculiar heinous crime, and merits the severest punishment.

COUNCIL BLUFFS is agog over what seems now to be a serious case of defalcation. Apparently the loose method of doing municipal business is in part to blame.

The capitalists and property holders should no longer hesitate to carry out their plans of improvement which were so rudely interrupted by the city hall controversy.

LYNCHERS occasionally excite great indignation by their brutality, but the habit of bringing them to justice is still in the future. Possibly this habit is in process of formation.

The women of Adams county, Nebraska, who bombarded a disreputable gambling house with lumps of coal will please take the pedestal once occupied by the women of Marblehead.

The committee on public lands and buildings can evidently find sufficient material for investigation at the Lincoln insane asylum. If it be true that the ill-fated boilers have not been inspected for the past six years.

The accident at the state insane asylum exposes to hardship a class of patients ill prepared for it. The matter should be closely investigated.

It was a happy thought on the part of Senator Palmer, of Michigan, whose term will expire with the present congress, to entertain at a dinner the newspaper correspondents in Washington.

The account of expenditures submitted by the state live stock commission doesn't quite answer the requirements of an itemized exhibit, but it discloses sufficient to show that the principle of economy has not been carefully respected by the commission during the past two years.

The letter of President Perkins to the secretary of the commission is pacific and conciliatory. He indicates that the appeal to the courts was made from a sense of the great importance of having the law judicially interpreted, and closes with the expression of a hope that the cooperation of the commissioners in the further hearing and the final and satisfactory settlement of the whole question.

Should Not Go Unheeded. Whatever may be the findings of the coroner's inquest into the catastrophe that has cost so many lives, one thing has been manifest. There is altogether too much anxiety on the part of our fire department to preserve dead walls and wrecked frames after a fire.

Should Not Go Unheeded. What may be the findings of the coroner's inquest into the catastrophe that has cost so many lives, one thing has been manifest. There is altogether too much anxiety on the part of our fire department to preserve dead walls and wrecked frames after a fire.

A Country Opinion. Broken Down Republicans. While the democratic party may not have the courage to favor prohibition, thousands who have heretofore affiliated with that party will protest against the ruin traffic being authorized by the constitution of the state.

THE POTENTIAL PASS.

At the last session of the Ohio legislature measures were introduced aimed at the railway corporations of the state, one of these being a two cent fare bill. This measure was overwhelmingly endorsed by public sentiment and a valiant fight was made in its behalf, but it failed to pass.

Of course the Lecky is right both as to its explanation and its suggestion, but it is strangely optimistic if it supposes that men who will sell themselves to the railroads for a free ride can be induced to abolish the pass evil.

The credit for the emphatic rebuke administered to the railroads is chiefly due to the business men of Omaha. Realizing the position in which this city was placed before the railway traffic, they all along the line against the relaxation scheme.

The later State Commerce commission, which has just held a meeting at St. Paul, Minn., to regulate certain irregularities in rate cutting, will lay its heavy hand, in the future, upon delinquent railroad managers.

Only a Difference in Name. There is a striking resemblance between the new journal, Lies, recently established in New York, and a former, but now happily defunct paper called Truth.

Mr. Childs Vouches for This. There was left at the Ledger office on Saturday Mrs. E. J. Torbune, as an evidence of the method of a true cherry tree containing three fully expanded blossoms.

Prohibition Among the Puritans. It had been supposed that the descendants of the Puritan fathers, Cotton Mathers, and the other translated worthies down in New England, were setting examples of sobriety and abstemiousness.

A Warning to the Sphinx. Every man who has a touch of romance in his constitution has been thrilled by the news that the peripatetic ball players from this country are to play a game under the shadow of the Sphinx.

They Ought to Go. Three humbugs that the legislature ought to abolish—the tin-horn soldiers, the board of transportation and the live stock sanitary commission.

A Good Chance to Choose. He must be a hard man to suit who cannot find a side of the submission question that will suit his views.

She Is Indispensable. A clergyman of Omaha, on last Sunday, entered into the defense of the much abused mother-in-law.

A Country Opinion. Broken Down Republicans. While the democratic party may not have the courage to favor prohibition, thousands who have heretofore affiliated with that party will protest against the ruin traffic being authorized by the constitution of the state.

MR. STOREY AND THE SPIRITS.

The Great Editor a Firm Believer in the Supernatural. Two Ethereal Beings Whose Word Was Law—A Drape of the Mediums—Irreverence at a Seance.

Polito's Reminiscences. Polito, one of the men whose writings helped to place the Chicago Times in the forefront of western journalism, contributes the following reminiscence of his great chief to the Chicago Herald.

There is talk of erecting a woolen mill at Tilton. The crane for roller skating is again on at Denver. The horse breeders of the Black Hills will form an association.

McNickle's Course. One day, some months after the death of "Bonnie," as he always called her, he said to me one evening at his house.

Senator Pickett's Conscience. Captain W. W. Abley, of the state live stock sanitary commission, was at the Murray yesterday, and with the view to gleaming information of the work accomplished by that body.

Forgo Ho! Torches. The young woman who waded into the lake the other day with the intention of drowning herself, but who changed her mind on finding that the water was cold.

Prohibition Among the Puritans. It had been supposed that the descendants of the Puritan fathers, Cotton Mathers, and the other translated worthies down in New England, were setting examples of sobriety and abstemiousness.

A Warning to the Sphinx. Every man who has a touch of romance in his constitution has been thrilled by the news that the peripatetic ball players from this country are to play a game under the shadow of the Sphinx.

They Ought to Go. Three humbugs that the legislature ought to abolish—the tin-horn soldiers, the board of transportation and the live stock sanitary commission.

A Good Chance to Choose. He must be a hard man to suit who cannot find a side of the submission question that will suit his views.

She Is Indispensable. A clergyman of Omaha, on last Sunday, entered into the defense of the much abused mother-in-law.

A Country Opinion. Broken Down Republicans. While the democratic party may not have the courage to favor prohibition, thousands who have heretofore affiliated with that party will protest against the ruin traffic being authorized by the constitution of the state.

THE OMAHA DAILY BEE.

The people of Nebraska are progressing and will not go backward in this matter. The watch word will be forward and to victory in 1890 with a majority of from twenty to thirty thousand, Omaha to the contrary, notwithstanding.

What Bourbons Will Do. It will not be necessary for the democrats of Nebraska to take any active part in the approaching prohibition campaign.

No Need to Mention Names. Wood River Gazette. The people of Nebraska, as a rule, are very ambitious and believe that within our borders are men competent to fill any office of the federal government.

Simply a Monopoly Howl. Some of the papers throughout the state have been howling at the heels of Attorney General Lesse because he is not physically able to perform the duties of his office.

Only a Difference in Name. There is a striking resemblance between the new journal, Lies, recently established in New York, and a former, but now happily defunct paper called Truth.

Mr. Childs Vouches for This. There was left at the Ledger office on Saturday Mrs. E. J. Torbune, as an evidence of the method of a true cherry tree containing three fully expanded blossoms.

Prohibition Among the Puritans. It had been supposed that the descendants of the Puritan fathers, Cotton Mathers, and the other translated worthies down in New England, were setting examples of sobriety and abstemiousness.

A Warning to the Sphinx. Every man who has a touch of romance in his constitution has been thrilled by the news that the peripatetic ball players from this country are to play a game under the shadow of the Sphinx.

They Ought to Go. Three humbugs that the legislature ought to abolish—the tin-horn soldiers, the board of transportation and the live stock sanitary commission.

A Good Chance to Choose. He must be a hard man to suit who cannot find a side of the submission question that will suit his views.

She Is Indispensable. A clergyman of Omaha, on last Sunday, entered into the defense of the much abused mother-in-law.

A Country Opinion. Broken Down Republicans. While the democratic party may not have the courage to favor prohibition, thousands who have heretofore affiliated with that party will protest against the ruin traffic being authorized by the constitution of the state.

MR. STOREY AND THE SPIRITS.

The Great Editor a Firm Believer in the Supernatural. Two Ethereal Beings Whose Word Was Law—A Drape of the Mediums—Irreverence at a Seance.

Polito's Reminiscences. Polito, one of the men whose writings helped to place the Chicago Times in the forefront of western journalism, contributes the following reminiscence of his great chief to the Chicago Herald.

There is talk of erecting a woolen mill at Tilton. The crane for roller skating is again on at Denver. The horse breeders of the Black Hills will form an association.

McNickle's Course. One day, some months after the death of "Bonnie," as he always called her, he said to me one evening at his house.

Senator Pickett's Conscience. Captain W. W. Abley, of the state live stock sanitary commission, was at the Murray yesterday, and with the view to gleaming information of the work accomplished by that body.

Forgo Ho! Torches. The young woman who waded into the lake the other day with the intention of drowning herself, but who changed her mind on finding that the water was cold.

Prohibition Among the Puritans. It had been supposed that the descendants of the Puritan fathers, Cotton Mathers, and the other translated worthies down in New England, were setting examples of sobriety and abstemiousness.

A Warning to the Sphinx. Every man who has a touch of romance in his constitution has been thrilled by the news that the peripatetic ball players from this country are to play a game under the shadow of the Sphinx.

They Ought to Go. Three humbugs that the legislature ought to abolish—the tin-horn soldiers, the board of transportation and the live stock sanitary commission.

A Good Chance to Choose. He must be a hard man to suit who cannot find a side of the submission question that will suit his views.

She Is Indispensable. A clergyman of Omaha, on last Sunday, entered into the defense of the much abused mother-in-law.

A Country Opinion. Broken Down Republicans. While the democratic party may not have the courage to favor prohibition, thousands who have heretofore affiliated with that party will protest against the ruin traffic being authorized by the constitution of the state.

MR. STOREY AND THE SPIRITS.

The Great Editor a Firm Believer in the Supernatural. Two Ethereal Beings Whose Word Was Law—A Drape of the Mediums—Irreverence at a Seance.

Polito's Reminiscences. Polito, one of the men whose writings helped to place the Chicago Times in the forefront of western journalism, contributes the following reminiscence of his great chief to the Chicago Herald.

There is talk of erecting a woolen mill at Tilton. The crane for roller skating is again on at Denver. The horse breeders of the Black Hills will form an association.

McNickle's Course. One day, some months after the death of "Bonnie," as he always called her, he said to me one evening at his house.

Senator Pickett's Conscience. Captain W. W. Abley, of the state live stock sanitary commission, was at the Murray yesterday, and with the view to gleaming information of the work accomplished by that body.

Forgo Ho! Torches. The young woman who waded into the lake the other day with the intention of drowning herself, but who changed her mind on finding that the water was cold.

Prohibition Among the Puritans. It had been supposed that the descendants of the Puritan fathers, Cotton Mathers, and the other translated worthies down in New England, were setting examples of sobriety and abstemiousness.

A Warning to the Sphinx. Every man who has a touch of romance in his constitution has been thrilled by the news that the peripatetic ball players from this country are to play a game under the shadow of the Sphinx.

They Ought to Go. Three humbugs that the legislature ought to abolish—the tin-horn soldiers, the board of transportation and the live stock sanitary commission.

A Good Chance to Choose. He must be a hard man to suit who cannot find a side of the submission question that will suit his views.

She Is Indispensable. A clergyman of Omaha, on last Sunday, entered into the defense of the much abused mother-in-law.

A Country Opinion. Broken Down Republicans. While the democratic party may not have the courage to favor prohibition, thousands who have heretofore affiliated with that party will protest against the ruin traffic being authorized by the constitution of the state.

Advertisement for Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. FULL WEIGHT PURE. DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER. MOST PERFECT MADE.