Colonel Daily will argue the question of the jurisdiction of the court in the east end of the county to try Harmeister for seduction. The defendant was indicted by the grand jury of the eastern end of the county, and Colonel Daily maintains that the indictment is illegal, as the law provides for but one grand jury in a county, which should consist of the Pottawattamie, the two counties of the Avoca grand jury cannot legally indict. He argued the question of jurisdiction in the case of the State vs. Byrd, which was tried before Judge Carson, and the case was held for trial here. The question is one of considerable interest, and there are several fine points of law involved.

Young Burke's Accounts. The investigation of the accounts of Deputy Clerk Burke is progressing rapidly, and last evening all books had been checked through with the exception of the license stubs. The shortage thus far is about $2,200, and it will not exceed $2,500 at the close. The license stub book from April, 1887, to April, 1888, is said to be missing, but no particular importance has been attached to its disappearance by any of the investigating committee. It is freely charged that an attempt is being made to make political capital out of the affair. The finance committee is freed censured for its gross neglect in not checking up the books monthly, as should have been done. A stricter and more searching investigation of all matters connected with the case will be made after the present examination of the books is completed. The examination thus far has been all on the part of the city. Burke and his friends are yet to check up, and they may explain a large portion of the alleged shortage.

The Council Takes Prompt and Decisive Steps.

PLANS WANTED IMMEDIATELY.

The Ordinance Against Defacing the Streets With Poles Goes Through By an Overwhelming Majority.

Council Proceedings.

Bailey, Boyd, Charles, Ford and Haswell were the absentees last night when the city council met as a committee of the whole. Councilman Wheeler took the chair and the council spent some time discussing the merits of an ordinance declaring certain acts unlawful. It was known as the misdemeanor law, and was a relic of the old council, which had been in consideration when the fall elections cut short their term of office. It defines vagrants, disorderly persons, suspicious characters, and other unfortunate who are generally considered as the legitimate prey of the police, fixing the penalty to be enforced when it is proved that the offender has committed the offense. It includes many provisions without an engagement, patrons of dog fights, prize fights, and corner loafers, persons found with concealed weapons or burglars' tools, those found ensnaring birds, or destroying nests, or cruelly using animals, and committing various other offenses. It also mentions, and gives Judge Berka the privilege of fining them or sending them to the jail. One clause called for the punishment of one or more of any of our found distributors or sanctioning the distribution of medical pamphlets containing advertising matter, or of private advertisements, or anything of a similar nature bordering on the obscene. The penalty called for a fine of from $5 to $100, or imprisonment for not more than 30 days. It also prohibited any house of ill repute within the city limits, but said nothing about the city's monthly fine collected from the inmates. It also prohibited the sale of lottery tickets, prizes, and other articles, and prohibited the sale of lottery tickets, prizes, and other articles, and prohibited the sale of lottery tickets, prizes, and other articles.
