A building permit was issued to Henry Carter for a $1.100 residence to be crected at the corner of Sixth street and Twelfth avenue. The young ladies who participate in the trades diplay will meet for drill at Armory hall on Saturday evening, February 16, at 7:30 sharp. All members of Council Bluffs Lodge

No. 270, A. O. U. W., are requested to be in attendance at the regular meeting to-night. Business of importance. A new plate glass front for the building occupied by Sargent & Evans is one of the projected Broadway improvements that will soon be completed. The new racing cart for the Eiseman hose team has been placed on exhibi-tion at the Manhattan, where it is greatly admired by all who see it.

The stone pier blocks for the columns of the Eiseman block have been placed in position, and Contractor Chris Bosen will begin to put in the floor joists next

This afternoon Mrs. N. W. Williams will entertain her lady friends at a 5 o'clock ten. About sixty invitations have been issued and the affair promises to be a most enjoyable one.

Little Nellie Haworth, who is only five years old, will sing a solo at the Little Old Folks' concert this evening. She is a charming song-bird, for one so wee, and is an attractive feature of the

The conductors on the motor line were yesterday supplied with breast registers, and the indicators in the cars are being taken out. The new style resisters are much more easily handled, and are appreciated by the conductors. The M. V. Hendry adultery case was set for a hearing before Squire Schurz yesterday, but the prosecuting witness, his wife, failed to appear, and on motion of Colonel W. F. Sapp, attorney for the defense, the defendant was discharged. The jury in the case of Knepher vs. Burchard returned a verdict yesterday for the plaintiff for $10.60. Suit was brought to recover $30 for rents. The case was tried before Squire Schurz, and it was during its trial that Attorney Lundt was fined for contempt.

A marriage license was issued yesterday to John W. Weston and Nellie A Romans, and last evening the couple were united in the bonds of matrimony at the residence of the bride's parents about four miles south of this city, by Rev. Dr. Cooley, of the First Baptist

The children's concert promises to be a grand affair. More than four-hundred tickets have already been sold. It is safe to say the anticipations of the purchasers will not be disappointed in the pleasure they will de-rive from this evening with the little

The statement in THE BEE yesterday morning that there are but four graduates of the university of Michigan in this city, was incorrect, as George H. Gable, esq., who has been here about one month, is entitled to be ranked among the Ann Arbor alumni, and his name is added to the quartette previously published.

Dr. Cooley was surprised after prayer meeting at the First Baptist church Wednesday evening by the members of his church, who presented him with a handsome bible of the Oxford edition The reverend gentleman was highly pleased as well as surprised, thanked the donors in a very feeling manner.

Charles Thompson and J. H. Page were yesterday fined $7.60 each for drunkenness and George Delahayes was sent to the county jail for thirty days for vagrancy. Delahayes is the fellow who was arrested a few days ago, but was discharged with a scorching reprimand by Judge Aylesworth, and given two hours to get out of the city. He failed to go and was again run in.

Yesterday afternoon one of the motor trains, in passing another on the bridge, met with a slight accident. The brake failed to work for some reason and the train ran off the switch and up against the side of the bridge Luckily no more serious damage was done than the splintering of one end of the roof of the motor car. It was a lively scare for the passengers.

Raymond, the seven-year-old son of Robert and Elizabeth Currie, died Wednesday morning at his home at Underwood. He fell from a horse Sun day, but it was not supposed that he was seriously injured until shortly be fore he died. Death resulted from internal injuries. The funeral will take place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the residence. The remains will be interred in the Crescent City cemetery.

The business men and merchants on Upper Broadway are making a most vigorous kick against the use of that thoroughfare for a driving park. For a long time G. W. Boynton has used certain other streets as well as Broadway as a breaking ground for colts. About two years ago he was prohibited the use of the streets for this purpose by the police, but of late has disregarded the police order, to the serious inconvenience of the traveling and business pub lie. Complainants threaten to put their kicks in a more tangible form if the matter complained of is not discentinued at once.

St. Bernard's Hospital.

The Sisters of Mercy have just completed and laid before the public their first annual report of St. Bernard's hospital. The facts stated show the institution to be in a most flourishing condition. They are given briefly by the sisters as follows:

Kind Friends and Benefactors-We present to you our first annual report with feelings of gratitude to Almighty God, and to you, that we have been able to struggle successfully through this year of trials; refusing admission to none who asked it. Besides taking care of and providing for our sick, we have fed at the door during the past year about two hundred persons.

We have paid during the past year

$1,000 on our $15,000 debt; also paid $200 nsurance for five years; $1,000 must be paid on the first payment ($5,000) this spring; also interest on the other $10,000. The present property was secured by the payment of $200 down May 24, 1887, and $2,800 was paid on the 22d of June, 1888.

During the year 132 patients have been received at the institution. Of these ninety-two were males and forty The results of the treatment received reflect great credit upon the corps of self-sacrificing men and women whose lives are given for the benefit of others, as well as upon the medical attendance furnished. This latter embraces many of he leading physicians of the country. They are C. H. Pinney, M. D., president; J. M. Barstow, M. D., J. H. Cleaver, M. D., C. Deetken, M. D., John Green, M. D., H. W. New Hellos. Important changes are now being perfected at the telephone exchange that will greatly improve the service For some time complaints have been made to the effect that subscribers are not promptly disconnected when through talking. This was sure to result when subscribers on different see tions were connected, as the operator was unable to hear. As soon as these changes are made this will be entirely done away with. The service may be a trifle slower, but it will be more uniform. Heretofore, some of the connections were made almost instantly, while for others the subscriber had to wait en or twelve seconds. At the office subscribers are grouped in sections of 100, and numbered consecutively. The first section consists of Nos. 1 to 100, the second 101 to 200, etc. After these changes are completed, the subscriber calling up central will give only the number of subscriber wanted. If this subscriber is upon the same section the operator will repeat back the number and make the connection. I the number asked for is upon any other section the caller will be instantly switched to that section, and the opertor there will say "Number," upon which the caller will repeat the number desired, and be connected. This will do away with the echo of "forty-three on six," "258 on four," and other similar sounds that are familiar to the average telephone subscriber. Connections with outside towns will be called up by "No. 901." The changes will be completed and the new order will go into

Short on Stars.

Yesterday noon a drunken man was creating a disturbance at the Kiel hotel, and a call was turned in for the patrol wagon. Neither wagon nor a policeman appeared, and the police station was called up by telephone. It was found that the call had been received all right, but there was no one there to drive the wagon. The regular driver had gone to dinner, and there was but one officer at the station, and he could not leave. No officer could be found, and the fellow abused the patrons of the hotel to his heart's content and created quite a disturbance.

He was twice ejected from the building by the proprietor, and finally placed under arrest, but had to be released as no policeman appeared to take him to the station. The comments that were heard on all sides were not flattering to the police system that leaves the headquarters almost deserted during the noon hour, and throws the patrol wagon temporarily out of service

INGERSOLL'S TRIBUTE.

The Orator's Eulogy of the Late Mary Hewins Fiske. Following is the oration recently de ivered by Colonel Ingersoli at the funeral of Miss Mary Hewins Fiske in New York city:

"Friends: In the presence of the two great mysteries, life and death, we are net to say above this still, unconscious house of clay, a few words of kindness of regret, of love and hope.

"In this presence let us speak of the goodness, the charity, the generosity and the genius of the dead. Only flowers should be laid upon the tomb. In life's last pillow there should be no thorns. Mary Fiske was like herself. She patterned after none. She was a genius and put her soul in all she did and wrote. She cared nothing for roads, nothing for beaten paths, nothing for the footsteps of others-she went across the fields and through the woods and by winding streams, and down the vales, and over the crags, wherever fancy led. She wrote lines that leap with laughter and words that were we with tears. She gave us quaint thoughts and sayings filled with the pert and nimble spirit of mirth. Her pages were fleeked with sunshine and shadow, and in every word were the pulse and breath of life. Her heart went out to all the wretched in this weary world, and yet she seemed as joy-ous as though grief and death were nought but words. She wept where others wept, but in her own misfortunes found the food of hope. She cared for the to-morrow of others, but not for her own. She lived for to-day.

"Some hearts are like waveless pools satisfied to hold the image of a star, but hers was full of motion, life and storm. She longed for freedom. Every limita-tion was a prisoner's wall. Rules were shackles, and forms were made for erfs and slaves. She gave her utmost thought. She praised all gracious deeds, applauded the struggling and even those who failed. She pitied the poor, the forsaken, the friendless. No one could fall below her pity, no one could wander beyond the circumference of her sympathy. To her there were no outcasts—they were victims. She knew the inhabitants of palaces and penitentiaries might change places without adding to the injustice of the world. She knew that circumstances and conditions determined haracter; that the lowest and worst o our race were children once as pure as light, whose cheeks dimpled with smiles beneath the heaven of a mother's eves. She thought of the road they had traveled, of the thorns that pierced their feet, of the deserts they had crossed and so instead of scorn she gave the eager hand of help. No one appealed to her in vain. She listened to the story of the poor, and all she had she gave. A god could do no more. The destitute and struggling turned naturally to her. The maimed and hurt sought her door, and the helpless put their hands in hers. She shielded the weak, and attacked the strong. Her heart was open as the gates of She shed kindness as the sun shed light. If all her deeds were flowers the air would be faint with perfume. If all her charities could change to melodies a symphony would fill the sky. "Mary Fiske had within her brain the divine fire called genius, and her heart the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin.' "She wrote as a stream runs, winds and babbles through the shadowy fields and Barrett is not to be dissolved, says a Boston dispatch. Mr. Barrett said to me to-night:

"Mr. Booth will be entirely under my management next year, as he is this year. That has all been settled." When I mentioned Mme. Modjeska he added: "Mme. Modjeska will be Mr. Booth's leading support. She will appear in his plays and will be underlined equally with him."

In further conversation Mr. Barrett "Our plans for next season are fully matured. Mr. Booth and I will open the season together, playing as now. Then Mr. Booth and Mme. Modjeska will start out together under my management, while I, myself, shall pro duce a new play. Then we shall come together again and finish the season with a new play entitled 'Ganelon,' a play of the time of Charlemagne." Mr. Barrett was indignant when it was suggested as a reason for the re-ported intention of Mr. Booth to separate from him that he had proved an artistic drawback,

"I wish," said he, "yon could ask Mr.
Booth about that, Mr. Booth is my dear, loving friend." There was pathos in this last sentence as it was uttered.

It does this under a complexity of circum stances which conspire to heighten its impropriety. This picture may be seen It is evening. The hour is late. There is a delicious intoxication of motion and music-perhaps of wine-in the blood There is a strange, confused sense of being individually observed among s many, while yet the natural, nobl shame which guards the purity of mar and woman alone together is absent Such is the occasion, and still hour after hour the dance whirls its gay kaleidoscope around, bringing hearts so near that they almost beat against each other, mixing the warm breath together, darting the fire of electricity between the meeting flugers, flushing face, and lightening the eyes with a quick language.'
