MINOR MENTION.

N. Y. Plumbing company.
 Conland wood. E. E. Mayne, 619 B'way.
 The school board meets in regular session this evening.

The Council Bluffs debating club meets tonight at Dr. Seybert's office.
 St. Alban's lodge, K. of P., will give a ball and banquet Tuesday evening.
 The ladies of St. Paul's church are planning on clearing $1,000 by entertainments before Easter comes.

A plow factory, a lock factory and an oat meal mill are among the new enterprises promised to Council Bluffs.
 Real estate transfers in the Bluffs on Saturday footed up $23,550, and yet the spring boom has not commenced.

The fire department was called out about 5 o'clock yesterday morning by a blaze in a barn on Scott street, belonging to Lawrence Hecht. The flames were quickly subdued, and the damage was very slight. The cause of the fire is not known.

Preparations are now making for the second annual concert and ball to be given by Dalby's military band and orchestra at Amory hall, Thursday evening, February 28. It will be a grand affair, and promises to be most enjoyable. An orchestra of twenty pieces will furnish delightful music.

The trades' display at the Masonic temple hall Tuesday evening promises to be one of the most novel entertainments of the season. Each young lady will be costumed to represent some one business house in the city. The costumes thus made of goods and wares from various stores will be very unique.

Rev. Mr. Mackay having accepted the call to Deadham, Mass., and the vestry of St. Paul's having accepted his resignation, it becomes necessary, if he is retained here, for the Deadham parish to release him. St. Paul's church has extended him a call and he promises to accept this—or in other words, remain here—if $8,000 of the debt is raised. This week an effort will be made to secure this amount, and if it is raised, for a failure to do so will result in his going.

The city election will be held two weeks from to-day, and three members of the city council are to be elected. Candidates are not bobbing up as so readily as might be expected, but this is doubtless because very many men are not willing to take the extraordinary amount of cussing that falls to the lot of a Council Bluffs alderman for the paltry sum of $50 a year and the attendant amount of rather questionable glory. Victims who are willing to sacrifice themselves should so report at once.

The Board of Trade.
 A special meeting of the board of trade was held Sunday evening to discuss the union depot project. There was quite a lively debate, and a committee was appointed to visit Chicago and confer with the managers of the railways centering here in regard to the matter. This committee consists of Hon. George F. Wright, Judge J. C. Jamison, City Railway Commissioner Spencer Smith. This was the only action taken and the board adjourned. The committee will visit Chicago as soon as Mr. Wright returns from Nebraska.

The Court Programme.
 The first case to be heard in the district court this morning will be that of Sapp & Lyman vs Aiken, Underwood & Co. The other cases on the day's assignment are Overturf vs Simpson, damages; Hewitt vs North, attachment; Gainer vs City of Council Bluffs, damages; Connor vs Stewart, debt; McDonald vs Frum, attachment. The witnesses in the case of Fair vs City of Council Bluffs were subpoenaed yesterday, and it is stated that that case is ready for trial. The circumstances of the case are familiar to the majority of Council Bluffs' citizens. Several months ago, Fair was going home, somewhat under the influence of liquor, it was stated by those who found him, and walked or fell from the bridge over Indian creek on Benton street. He was severely bruised and had one or two ribs broken, and was confined to his home for some time. He now sues the city for $10,000 damages for neglecting to place a proper railing along the side of the bridge.

THE ENLARGED ELECTRIC PLANT.

One of the Sermons of the Day—To-Day's Bill of Fare For the District Court—Cold and Dull Streets.

Darkies Musn't Gamble.
 At an early hour yesterday morning Officers Isenberger, Mullen, and Fowler, raided the joint on lower Broadway, near the Northwest depot, kept by Mrs. Pralor, and arrested a gang of six, who were gambling in a back room, and whirled them to police headquarters in the patrol wagon. The prisoners gave the names of C. B. Drisdon, George Smith, John Sampson, Beverly Field, J. Venable, and J. H. Smith. They are all colored individuals, and some of them are well known to the police. Drisdon was the only one who could furnish bonds, and he was released, but the others spent Sunday in the city jail.

The Pralor ranch bears rather a hard name, and several rackets have originated there. It was there that a man named Holen was shot to death some time ago. The charge placed on the police register opposite the names of the men arrested yesterday is to the effect that they were "gambling Sunday morning."

The inference is that, according to the standard of morality adopted by the city administration, gambling during the week is right and proper, but that after midnight Saturday and until midnight Sunday, a different rule is in force, and that then, and then only, does gambling become a crime. However, even the slightest improvement is to be commended, and the attempt of the officials to enforce the law even one day in the week should meet with public approval.

The hearing of these cases will come this morning before Judge Aylesworth.

Preparing for More Light.
 A part of the machinery for the new incandescent electric light plant of the Council Bluffs Electric Light company arrived yesterday, and will be placed in position as soon as possible. The two large dynamos, 1500 and 750 light-capacity respectively, together with the small companion dynamo for each, known as the "exciter," are now here, with all necessary connections, as well as the "converters," which are to be along the circuit where the house wires leave the main line. The object of these "converters" is, as their name implies, to convert the current in suitable quantities from the principal wire to smaller branch lines. The work of putting in these "converters" will be commenced at once. As soon as this is done, the remaining work will be directed to the two ends of the line—to place the drops in the buildings and to connect the dynamos and engines in position at the other. It will be impossible to set up the dynamos immediately as the building is not quite ready. The walls are all up and the main work completed, but the building is not quite enclosed. It will probably require the greater part of the present week to finish it. The engines that are to furnish the power to run the new plant are on the road, and it is time that they were here. It was expected to have the plant in readiness for operation by the 1st of March, but the weather of the past few days has been unfavorable and it will possibly be a week later than intended before everything is complete. The gang which has been stringing wires has that work well under way, and the central portion of the business houses of hundreds of the subscribers are already wired.

Dull Chillsiness.
 The effect of the sudden cold snap was noticeable on the streets yesterday. The principal thoroughfares were nearly deserted, and even the motor cars, which usually present such a lively appearance with their crowds of passengers, looked desolate and lonesome as they glided quietly by. The churches were not as well filled as they ordinarily are, and the average Bluffite seemed to prefer to stay indoors, rather than face the chilly atmosphere and uninviting appearance of the outer world. About noon it tried to snow, but the weather was too cold, and the attempt was frustrated. The mercury lingered bashfully around the zero point during the entire day, and could not be prevailed upon to look up. The sun was evidently absent on some foreign mission, and failed to put in an appearance. In fact, it was just the kind of a day that the clerk of the weather might dish up simply for spite, and was doubtless owing to the fact that that erratic individual had just awakened to realizing some of the situation and was determined to get in a little genuine winter this season, before his last opportunity had passed.

Neglect of the Scriptures.
 "There is a gross neglect among christian people in the searching of the scriptures," said Rev. James Haynes yesterday morning in precluding his sermon at the Broadway Methodist church. "The scriptures contain the 'words of eternal life,' says the Apostle John. The 6th chapter and thirty-ninth verse has this injunction: 'Search the scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and these ye which testify of Me.' In Christ was eternal life given to the world, and the scriptures are the testimony of God and men, not only concerning Jesus himself but of the plan through which life is given to a dead world.

"An intelligent knowledge of these all-important facts cannot be gotten by any means other than a personal searching of God's word. It will not do to trust to the expositions of commentators. They are but human and are liable to err. Even their translations are often faulty. As salvation is a personal matter, which no other can share our responsibility, so our education in the things that pertain to that salvation rests entirely upon us.

A mere superficial reading is not what the scriptures are for. It means that the bible is to be read by course, from Genesis to Revelation, although by this means a perfect familiarity with the book is gained. It means that the scriptures are to be searched, studied, investigated, thoughtfully, prayerfully, to get the testimony of eternal life and the process of its giving to men.

A personal knowledge and understanding of the scriptures will defeat any skepticism and the arguments of infidelity. The reason why christians are often overcome by these sophistries is because they do not know what the bible says concerning these things. No matter for what purpose the scriptures are searched they are sure to lead one to Christ. If infidels will study the Word carefully they will find such arguments against their theories as will force them to abandon their positions and embrace eternal life.

"You do not find any poor syntax in the bible. God guided the hands of the apostles when they wrote so that what was written is as plain as the revelation of Himself and His will. The bible says exactly what it means. Its verbs, nouns, tenses, etc., are just what and where God would have them. I have not had a personal proof of all the statements in the bible contents, but many of them I have proven in my own experience. I never saw the righteous forsaken nor his seed begging bread. Did you? The whole bible is in perfect keeping with the christian experience. It contains the world's main stock of facts. This it is taken out of the realms of faith and put upon the broad plane of universal experience. The facts it contains have been verified, either in your observation or in the christian experience. It will prove to be the most interesting reading, and lead the soul to the perfect understanding of God's plans concerning His creatures."

Capitulation.
 Rev. Wilcott is recreating in Stanbury, Mo. Mr. Dell Rogers and wife visited friends at Fairview, Neb., the last of the week.

Miss Maggie Becker of Fairview, Neb., is the guest of Miss Helen Starnes.

Mr. Macdon, of Kansas, is shaking hands with old time friends in Omaha.

At 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, February 6, the friends and relatives assembled at St. Margaret's church to be present at the ceremony by which Miss Maud Royce was united in marriage to Mr. George Smith of Omaha. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Worthington of Omaha. After the ceremony the friends repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where a delightful marriage breakfast was served after which a happy couple left for a visit among friends in Kansas City and Denver. On their return they will make their future home in Omaha.

Rev. Braden, the Presbyterian evangelist of Fremont, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church Sunday morning, the 10th inst. A large number of converts were secured by his preaching, and he will attend the party here here report a jolly time.

Miss Lizzie and Mary Slothover of Kansas are visiting their uncle, Mr. Jacob Slothover, of this place.

Mr. J. Brown, of Uching, Neb., visited Miss Carrie Wilcott.

The revival meetings at the Presbyterian church, conducted by Rev. Braden and Rev. Weeks, are still in progress, and attract large audiences. There is a strong religious interest in this church, and should it continue the meetings will be held indefinitely.

Stanley in Omaha.
 Mr. T. W. Blackburn, formerly of Omaha, now associate editor of the Los Angeles Tribune, contributes the following to the columns of that paper:

The San Bernardino Times states that Stanley was formerly a writer on an Omaha paper and fell in love with a widow in that city. His suit being rejected, he left Omaha in disgust, becoming the famous Alaskan explorer. The Santa Barbara Independent, and Johnson's encyclopedia think the San Bernardino paper is in error, as the sketch of the explorer's life in the encyclopedia makes no mention of the Omaha connection.

The facts are that Henry M. Stanley went to Omaha as a correspondent of the New York Herald in 1858 or 59. His instructions when he left New York were to go to Pike's Peak, the gold excitement in Colorado being at that time at its highest pitch. Finding that Omaha had good a location to obtain Pike's Peak news as Colorado itself, the gifted newspaper man remained there, and wrote his series of articles on the gold excitement in that city. Stanley was young, handsome, something of a gallant, and fond of adventure. He fell in love with an actress, who was then on the boards of the academy of music—a Louisville actress by the way. She was a coquette and flirted with young bloods of the city who had more money than Stanley. When Stanley got perfectly crazy in his affection for her, she arranged a meeting with him in the performance and, posting her friends, among whom was an Omaha Herald reporter, had them stationed behind the scenes to observe the results. Stanley, honest in his intentions, went to the woman and protested desperately. She amused herself at his expense for some time and then called in her concealed friends, much to her lover's surprise and disgust.

The reporter, fearing the consequences if he ventured to relate the incident in his own paper, went over to Council Bluffs and inserted a highly colored account of the affair in a Council Bluffs newspaper. Mr. Stanley met him soon after it appeared on the corner of Fourteenth and Farquar, where the Paxton hotel now stands, and gave him a sound thrashing. The offending reporter, whose name was Macdonagh, resided in Nebraska for twenty-five years after this episode, and published a paper during all of those years. His interview with Stanley was never forgotten, however, and many a time he was obliged to read its harrowing details as his rivals and contemporaries rang the changes upon the story. This information is given upon positive authority for the benefit of our San Bernardino and Santa Barbara contemporaries.
