DICK'S FLIRTATIONS.

Frisco Wags Who Play a Cruel Joke on a Married Man.

A certain gentleman of the city has been having an exceedingly time for the last ten days, says the San Francisco Examiner. He is a married man, lives at one of the best hotels, and is popularly known to his friends as

Last fall his wife went east on a visit, and Dick at once set out to have a royally good time during her absence. For three months he and his friends painted things a very bright crimson, but about two weeks ago he delivered himself thus:

'Well, boys, we have been going too fast. I'm going to reform. You'll have to get along henceforth without my assistance." He then left. The boys were paralyzed with astonishment until one of them discovered that Mrs. Dick was expected back the next night, and then they resolved to have revenge on him for his duplicity. When Mrs. Dick arrived Mr. Dick escorted her to their rooms in style, Throwing open the door, he exclaimed. home, my dear." moment he stood gasping with astonishment. The room was brightly lighted, and on the table were four big, beautiful bouquets. He knew there was something wrong, but for the life of him he could not tell what.

Meanwhile Mrs. Dick, seeking the flowers exclaimed: "Oh! Dick, how pretty are; where did you get them?" Dick thought that he saw a chance of escape and replied: "Why, yes, Ithat is -- I -- I bought them for you, "Why, here's a card on this," she exclaimed, picking it up.

Dick turned white with terror. Mrs. Dick read the card, looked at Dick for a moment and then read it aloud. It ran ns follows:

"Dear Dick-Why did'nt you call last night
as you promised! Come soon. Yours.
Manel." After a terrible pause, full of meaning, Mrs. Dick read the card on the "DEAR OLD BOY: Here is a sourvenir of night before last.
The third ran:

"DARLING DICK-Papa and mamma go to the theater to night. Verb, sap. Gussie."
If anything was needed to finish the unhappy Dick the fourth furnished it. To it was attached a large envelope, from which Mrs. Dick extracted a a photograph of a lady in an exceed-ingly abbreviated costume, on the back "From Baby." written:

For five minutes Mrs. Dick gazed at her cowering husband with a stony glare. Then came the deluge. tried to protest his entire innocence, but in vain. It took all his pursuasions keep her from going home to mamma, and it was an hours before she became quiet. Then he discovered that all the notes were written by the same hand, and this nearly convinced her that it was trick. But she is still somewhat suspicious, and Dick has to walk a very straight line indeed if he wants to avoid

The vicwas going on horseback to tim estate, when two men, rifles in hand, halted him. He was made to dismount. After going a short distance he was met by three other members of the gang, who handed him paper, pen and ink and requested him to write an order for the immediate delivery of $20,000 in gold. He was told if he refused he would lose his life. Ruiz informed his captors that he could not raise that amount in ready cash, but that if his life were spared he would promise to pay a ransom limited to his means. This proposition was ultimately agreed to. He was then blindfolded put on a horse, led by two bandits, who, after riding a whole night, landed him in an unknown forest. The band age was taken off his eyes, and after resting during the heat of the day, the trio set out again, blindfolding Ruiz They rode a whole night, and at 8 o'clock next morning they stopped, bade Ruiz good-by, and told him he was near his home. PAVING ALONG THE TRACKS. What it Would Cost and it Would Save the City.

OMAHA, March 9 .- To the Editor of THE BEE: May I ask space for the insertion of the subjoined correspondence, for the information of our city officers, our representa tives and senators at Lincoln, and that the general public may fully understand the case I would call attention to three facts: 1. That it now costs the several street railway companies, $14,361 per mile for pav-2. That the companies are willing to con tinue on this basis.

3. That the proposed law will make it cost street railway companies $21,446 per mile for 4. That this is prohibition, and would cause street railway construction to almost

5. That the proposed law would not save construction will be largely in the suburbs. consequently the city has not sufficient in terest in the matter to insist on the provisions of the new charter in this regard.

OMAHA, March 9.—G. W. Tillson, Esq., City Engineer—Dear Sir: Will you please inform me in regard to the amount of paying required and the cost of same, at las season's contract price, for paving a double track street railway with stone, as required by the present charter.

Will you further advise me of the amount of paving required, and the cost of same (at last season's contract price) for paving a double track street railway, as required by the new charter, as it has passed the house of representatives? If the provision for paying as it at presen stands in the new charter should pass the senate and become a law, what amount of money would the city of Omaha at large save on each mile of said double tracks that may be paved. I am yours truly, W. V. Monse. CITY ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT, OMAHA, Neb., March —, 188.—Mr. W. V. Morse— Dear Sir: In response to yours of even date in reference to cost of paving street car tracks, I have to say as follows:

1. Amount of pavement displaced by a double track, per lineal foot, 10 square feet or 11.9 square yards, cost of same at $2.45 per yard, $2.72 per lineal foot of double track or $14,361 per mile. Amount of pavement displaced and paid for by a double track road under the pro-posed amendment to the city charter as per your conditions por lineal foot, 17 square feet, or 18-9 square yards, cost of same at $2.45 per yard, $3.63 per lineal foot of double track, or $24.44 per mile.

4. On an east and west street the ratio of intersections to blocks is as 25 to 91 in the business portion of the city. The extra cost per mile under the new provision is $19,085, and the proportion saved to the city as above is $2,771. In the resident portion the amount saved to the city would be much reduced.

Very respectfully. Very respectfully, George W. Tillson, City Engineer.

KELLEY, STIGER & CO., Dodge and 15th sts. AND ICE TRICYCLE.

Novel Machine Used by a Massachusetts Man in Hunting Ducks. Two duck hunters, George O'Neill and Henry Partridge, who have just returned from a season of shooting at Montauk Point, L. I., says a New London, Conn., dispatch to the Globe-Democrat, report the novel method of duck hunting resorted to by a Massachusetts sportsman named Chadwick, who has been spending much of the winter, about Fort Pond Bay and Napague Harbor. Chadwick has an ice tricycle which travels on runners, upon which, they say, he is able to cruise many miles of ice in short ponds and land-locked bays daily without fatigue. The machine is fitted with two stee runners forward, like an ice boat, and steers with a movable runner aft. Between the two foward runners and in the rear a steel calked wrought iron wheel travels on the ice. This is the propelling power. It is about three leet in diameter and can be geared so as to make three revolutions to one of the fore pedals, or less than half a revolution to each turn of the cranks, ac cording to the speed required.
