The Council Bluffs Investment com pany has dissolved partership, and their office at No. 10 Pearl street will hereafter be occupied by George Metcalf and Judge W. C. James, real estate dealers, the latter having bought out the interests of Messrs. Fowler and Addis, of the investment company.

A fire at the house of William Raff. on Eighteenth avenue, called out the department at 5:15 yesterday morning. It was a long run, but the department arrived in time to keep the flames from spreading. One wing of the house was completely gutted, and the loss will amount to about $500. The cause of the blaze is unknown.

Eddie, son of William Gibson, pro-prietor of the K. C. house, on South Main street, died yesterday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock of lung fever, after a two weeks' illness. The deceased was in his twenty-second year. On account of the serious illness of his mother, the fu-neral will take place from the Broadway M. E. church to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Franklin officiating. Friends are invited to attend without further notice.

The school election passed off very quietly in the Bluffs. Very little interest was manifested, consequently a very light vote was polled. The candidate, themselves were quite busy looking after their interests in the various wards, but the usual ward workers were conspicuously absent. The lack of enthusiasm was undoubtedly owing to the fact that all of the nomi nees were men of good standing in the city, and it was conceded that the public interests would not suffer, no matter which way the election resulted.

A Number of Crooks Sentenced In Due Form to Hard Labor.

FINING A NOISY HACK LOAD.

An Officer Bitten By a Horse-No Smallpox In the Bauffs-The New School Board.

Must Wear Stripes.

Judge Thornell returned yesterday morning from Sidney, where he spent Sunday with his family, and resumed the trial of the Collins case in the district court. When court convened in the afternoon the was sheriff ordered to bring in the prisoners who were convicted last week to receive their sentences. Shortly afterward six prisoners were ushered in and assigned seats directly in front of the judge's bench.

"It is always a painful duty," said the court, "to impose sentences upon criminals, and I am sure that those who are brought in here to-day are aware that meither the court nor the prosecuting attorney has any personal feeling in connection with their conviction. I see in this number some naturally smart men—one in particular; with whose record I am somewhat acquainted, who has as much brains as any man in this court room. I am unable to understand why they seek to make a living by crime, when they could succeed so much better without breaking the law. However, the law must be enforced for the good of those who are not lawbreakers and the community in general. The punishment of these criminals must serve as a check and a lesson to others. William Maher, you have been found guilty of obtaining money under talse pretenses. Have you anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced

"I have a mother to support, and I hope you will make it as light as possi-

"This is a very serious charge, and the law punishes it severely. In view of the circumstances in this case, it is the sentence of this court that you kept at hard labor for the period of four years.

Charles Benson, who pleaded guily to arceny from a building in the day time, was sentenced te sixty days in the county jail, and a fine of $100 and costs.

R. L. Thorp, who was found guilty of forgery, pretended that his tongue was paralyzed, and wrote on a slip of paper his replies to the questions of the court. He was sent to the pen for three years, Dr. L. King, who was convicted of forgery, was sentenced to three years at Fort Madison.

George Wailace, who pleaded guilty to the charge of burglary, made quite a lengthy harangue, setting forth the fact that he was sixty years of age and ought to be let off easily. The court stated that his past record was against him and gave him two and a half years in the pen, stating that that was a very lenient sentence. Ed. Middleton, the forger, will be sentenced this morning.

It will require another day at least to complete the trial of the Collins case. When court adjourned last evening the state had just rested its case, and the defense will take the stand this morning, after which the state will introduce some rebutting evidence. The attorneys for the defendant are making a hard fight to keep their client out of the penitentiary. The next case to be tried is that of State vs Strate, for larceny.

A Tough Quartette.

A couple of booze fines were assessed by Police Judge Aylesworth yesterday morning, after which the case of the pugulistic quartette arrested Sunday afternoon for fighting in a hack on Lower Broadway was called. The outfit presented a very tough appearance, for although the blood had been washed off, the bruises and scratches showed more plainly than before. There were three women and one man. The latter was a stranger, but two of the women are known to the police as a pair of the most vicious prostitutes who ever fre-

It seems that the party created a dis-turbance on the streets of Omaha, but gave the police the slip, and skipped across the bridge to this side of the river. Their disgraceful proceedings on Lower Broadway attracted the attention of parties who were out pieasureriding, and the police were sent for. The party was coming up into the city, but on reaching the Northwestern depot the man became alarmed and jumped from the back. It continued up Broadway with the women, and Officer Austin boarded it at Eighth street, and com-pelled the jehu to drive to the police station.

Officer Isenberger captured the man at Eleventh street, and had a lively tussel before the 250 pounds of ugliness was subdued. The officer threw his man easily but was unable to hold him down and they had it up and down for several minutes until the arrival of the patrol wagon. In court the fellow gave the name of C. Gordon, and he was a most repulsive looking object. One eye was artistically adorned with a Queensbury resco in blue and black, the corresponding check was bulged out about an inch beyond his nose, a deep out was visible over his other out; and cut was visible over his other optic, one ear broke a striking resemblance to a wet dishrag and his proboscis had gotten altogether out of place in a futile at-tempt to crawl down under his chin. He claimed to know nothing of the affair as he was very drunk. He was fined $14.60 for disturbing the peace by fighting and $15 for resisting an officer. The woman, Kittie Jackson, Annie Schrump and Maud Christensen, plead ed guilty to disturbing the peace and were each fined $10.10. None of the party had any money and were locked up again. The females were stowed away on the second floor where they attached a large crape veil to the bars of their window as a signal of distress.

Bitten By a Horse.

Officer Isenberger now we are his neck in a sling. He was lighting the gas in the patrol house Sunday evening, preparatory to assisting in unharnessing the horses after a run. One of the horses evidently thought he had no business there, and without a moment's warning seized him by the throat. The peeler was highly pleased when the order came to "break away." For the next few days he will wear a huge piece of court plaster over a blister larger than the palm of his hand, and will turn carefully around when he wants to look behind him.

No Smallpox.

City Physician Seybert furnishes a bit of information that will be greatly appreciated by Council Bluffs citizens. It is to the effect that the last trace of smallpox in this city has been stamped out, all infected clothing having been destroyed and buildings fumigated and disinfected. The last quarantine has been raised, and all danger of another outbreak from the old source is at an

The New School Board. The course of the new board of educatron will be watched with interest. This will be especially so in regard to the election of teachers. It remains to be seen whether these appointments are to be parceled up and each member allowed to select a certain number. The people are getting very weary of this sort of lottery scheme in the selection of teachers. Its workings have been quite fully explained and its disadvantages portrayed. The city has elected a board, and they expect the board to act as such, instead of as individual mem-

Now Pay Over the Money. After stubbornly maintaining for several days that the Melville woman left this city last Tuesday evening and had not returned, the Herald ignores its $100 "bluff" of Saturday morning, and came out yesterday with the startling assertion that the woman was in the city and had been interviewed by a BEE reporter on Wednesday last. As soon as the Herald man ascertained this unimportant fact he sought an interview, first securing the services of an officer to accompany him, fearing that the righteously indignant female might attempt to assassinate him for his senseless stupidity in not finding out the truth before. After "much pumping" the interview appearing previously in THE BEE was when the woman suddenly concluded that she "had made no statements to THE BEE and would make none to the Herald." As the Herald is ow apparently satisfied that THE BEE interview was actually had with the woman at the time stated, it is possible that that "authorized offer" of $100 will soon be forthcoming, although for some unaccountable reason the alleged interview," "great precautions of the po-lice," "reportorial fake," and other similar phrases have suddenly disap-peared from the columns of the Council Bluffs department of the Herald.

Result of the Election.

The battle of the ballots closed at 6 o'clock last evening, and the following is the result of the count in the various wards:

First Ward-Schoentgen 197, Hunter 211, Odell 130, Beebe 139. Second Ward-Schoentgen 252, Hunter 241, Odell 206, Beebe 200. Third Ward-Schoentgen 251, Hunter

Second precinct, Schoentgen 117, Hunfer 104, Odell 59, Beebe 60.

The totals received are as follows:

Schoentgen 1,031, Hunter 989, Odell 759, Beebe 773. The two democratic nominees are elected by nearly two hundred and fifty majority. This will make the board entirely democratic, the two retiring members, Atkins and Couch, being the only republicans on the board. The two following propositions The two following propositions carried by immense majorities: First Proposition-Shall the board of directors of the independent school district of the city of Council Bluffs, Ia. be authorized and directed to issue bonds of said district in the sum of $20,000 or so much thereof as shall be necessary to construct a school building near the Cochran tract in the western part of the city? Second Proposition-Shall the board of directors of the independent school dis-trict of the city of Council Bluffs, Ia., be authorized and directed to sell lots 6 and 7, in block 1, Glendale addition to the city of Council Bluffs, Ia., and the proceeds thereof be used to purchase ground and erect a school building near the Cochran tract in the western portion of said city?
