lors, 113 North 15th st. Telephone 1393. Ed. Rosewater and Bell Boy.

Ed. Rosewater is, when measured by the records, the greatest colt ever fooled. As a yearling he went half a mile in 1:15%. But his 2-year-old mark lays all other colts on the shelf. He started five times as a 2-year-old, and paced sixteen heats; winning eight of them in 2:37‡, 2:83‡, 2:30, 2:22, 2:26‡ 2:30, 2:201, 2:24. In all of these five races, there was never less than three starters, and in most cases there were from five to nine starters, mostly aged horses. The $50,000 Bell Boy started twelve times as a 2-year-old, but always alone against time excepting three times. His winning heats were 2:271, 2:481, 2:301, 2:37, 2:331, 2:271, 2:201, 2:26, 2:441, 2:281, 2:38, 2:401, 2:331; making five heats in 2:30 and better, at an average of 2:27‡; while Ed. Rosewater's six heats in 2:30 and better, always with other horses, average 2:251. In this connection it is proper to notice one significant fact. Judicious advertising has made Bell Boy well known from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans, and sold him on two occasions for $50,000; while the absence of advertising leaves Ed. Rosewater comparatively unknown. Bell Boy goes into the stud at $500, and Ed. Rosewater at $100. That is no small difference. Vasco (sire of Ed. Rosewater) was by Harold sire of Maud S, 2:031); dam Vassar, by Belmont (sire of Nutwood, 2:184); 2d dam Venus, by Seely's American Star. Dam of Ed. Russell Harrison's Wife and Daughter Many questions have been asked about the name of Russell Harrison's child says a Washington letter, and few have been able to understand it when told. Marthena is the name, and it is historical pesides. Benjamin Harrison McKee cannot hold a candle to his little cousin when it comes to ancientness of names. The name of Marthena is a sort of heirloom in the family of Mrs. Russell Harrison's mother, and it came to this country originally in the times of Christopher Columbus. a Spanish name ann was borne last, before the present little girl, by Mrs. Saunders, the baby's grandmother. Mrs. Russell Harrison was a Miss Saunders, a daughter of the thin senator from Nebraska. She is taller than most women, and must measure 4 inches above 5 feet. She has leveliness in both her face and figure. She is a blonde of purely golden type, with that rich complexion that golden blondes so often possess. She is vivacious and amiable, and is likely to be the most talked-of of all the new state family. She and Russell Harrison have been away, while the McKees have always lived with the general so that this prettiest of them all has not had awarded to her the place in the public mind that she is certain to soon occupy.

Queen Victoria as a Linguist. The latest achievements of the queen according to the flattering court gossip, says a London correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch, has been to acquire a marvellous fluency in the Hindustani language, in which she is now pictured as conversing freely with her turbaned Indian servants, of whom she makes much. I am inclined to doubt this report of the queen's linguistic ability. have watched the progress of several American and other women of grandmotherly age trying to learn French in Paris, or German in Berlin, and my sincere conviction is that the queen would fine it very diffice't to talk Hindustani to her servants if they did not know ex-

STANDING ROCK AGENCY. The Home of Over Five Thousand In dians-The Origin of the Name.

A visit to the Standing Rock agency s well worth the time and expense, says a Bismarck correspondent of Sioux City Journal. The agency buildings are about sixty-five miles down the Missouri river from this place. The reservation has a frontage on the river of about eighty-five miles and extends sixty-five miles west, containing about 3,500,000 acres of splendid land. reserve is the home of about 5,500 Micapapa and Blackfeet Sioux indians. Major McLaughlin has been their agent for over six years, and all who have seen the workings of this agency agree that he is one of the most successful Indian agents in the employ of the government. Every one admits that he is the head chief at this agency. Running Antelope, however, is the chief orator among the Indians. Sitting Bull and Gall, who commanded the Custer massacre, have their followers. The agency is located on the banks of Cattail creek The houses of the Indians are located along the Missouri, Cannon Ball and Grand rivers. The two latter named rivers form the north and south boundary lines of the reserve. A large proportion of the Indians wear the garb of the pale faces.

The agency took its name from a rock about five feet in height, and said to resemble a human being, but which is really sugar loaf shaped, that was discovered five miles up the river from the agency standing upright. The Indians had a tradition that this rock was a petrified maiden who had went out for a walk with her lover, and that they had quarrelled and that the ungallant lover eft her abruptly and alone and that from her exceeding great sorrow she became petrified. For years it is related the superstitious Indians would go and set food around this rock to assist the spirit of the departed maiden to be happy in the hunting grounds be-Some years since this belief was overcome to such an extent that the rock was brought to the agency, and amid much ceremony and speech-maka was mounted on a node had been provided just in front of the agent's residence.

One hundred head of cattle are slaughtered every ten days during the warm weather. Twenty head are driven inside a long pen and then shot by the white employes and dressed by the In-dians, many of whom are experts from long practice in skinning government beef. The winter killing for freezing takes 1,000 head. It is an interesting sight to see the natives come in for rations. As many as 200 teams are in sight at a time during issue day. They draw rations every ten days. Each head of a family has a ticket with the number of members of the family upon it and the number of pounds he is entitled to receive. The Indians at this agency are reported to be progressing rapidly in farming. Major McLaugh-lin advertises for 100 bushels of seed corn, 1,500 bushels of seed oats, 500 bushels seed potatoes and 500 bushels of seed wheat. There are several school houses at the agency. The spiritual training of these people is in the care of the Catholic church. The military post at this agency is called Fort Yates and is commanded by Colonel E. F. Townsend, who has inspected the Dakota militia several imes, and is garrisoned by Companies E, G. H and I, of the Twelfth infantry. and F and G of the Eighth cavalry The Twelfth infantry band are with headquarters at this place.

A PRETTY HORSE THIEF. Her First Adventure Unromantically

Landed Her in Jail. Mrs. Clara M. Nye, only two years a bride, pert, pretty and vivacious, says a Farmington (Me.) special to the New York World, was sent to jail here to-day for stealing a horse and wagon. The prosecuting attorney told a dramatic story to the court that made everybody, even Clara herself, laugh.

A Farmington citizen was aroused by a commotion in his barn. He hurried into his clothes and rushed down. Just as he reached the vard a horse and wagon dashed by him. He recognized the wagon as his own. Going to the barn he found his horse safe. In a moment he was on the animal's back, dashing after the thief, with his shotgun in readiness. In the stillness of the night he heard the team rattling over the frozen, icy road, up the river towards Phillips. He gained on it, and, when within hailing distance, cried: "Halt!" He gained on it, and, when A wild laugh came back. He fired his gun into the air, but that produced no effect. Then he spurred on his horse, meanwhile putting another charge in his gun. He expected a tussel with a desperate horse thief Soon there came a crash. The wrgon had gone into the ditch and turned over. With cocked weapon the pursuing citizen advanced. He found a pretty young woman grinning at him. The young woman had stolen another man's horse and then gone for his wagon. He patched up the team and took her back to Farmington.

Clara said she had become tired of life in that town and determined to seek adventures in other parts of the world. She evidently had looked too long on the wine when it was red. Her hus-band has not appeared on the scene as yet. She pleaded guilty when ar-

A CHAPERON FOR THE DEAD

The Queer Occupation of a Lady From California.

MADE THEIR OWN VILLIANS.

What Women will do for Notoriety-An Irreverent Cilmax-The Acme of Meanness-A Debtor Sold at Auction.

A Curious Side of Life. Mrs. Mary Hall, a middle-aged lady of Pasadena, Cal., who passed through the city last night, says the Kansas City Times, has probably the most singular calling of any person in America. She makes a business of accompanying the bodies of persons who die in southern California to their homes in the east, and according to her own story has found it very lucrative. "I have been at the business for about two years," said she, at the union depot last night, "and I find that it is not uncongenial and pays better than anything else I can do. I am now on my way home from one of my professional trips, but will stop off at Eldorado, Kan., my old home, for a few days to visit relatives. How much do I get for a trip? Different prices; generally from $3 to $5 per day, my railroad fare and traveling expenses. 1 get $3 a day, railroad fare and traveling expenses for this trip, but then I took it a little cheaper because I wanted to visit friends. You see the class of people who come to California in search of health generally have plenty of money, and many of them put off their visits too long. After a patient has been here about five weeks he generally dies or gets strong. The change is so great in the climate that it soon makes itself felt. Now it costs double firstclass express rates to send a body from California to the the Missouri river, which amounts to about $300; conse quently it is cheaper to hire me, pay my expenses and feel sure that the corpse will go through safely. The number of invalids who go to California is increasing every year, and my business is fast growing better."

Hon. D. A. Russell, an able, excitable lawyer, defended Sandy Banks, negro, for assault to murder a negress, says the Bainbridge (Ga.)Chronicle. Solid facts were against his client, no justification appearing. After dodging the criminating facts as best he could, he, in low, confidential tone, closed with this stirring appeal to induce the jury to find a lesser crime:

"Gentlemen -I do not ask you to acquit my client. It would be wrong in me to do so. I ask for mercy. quality of mercy is not strained, it drops as the gentle rain from heaven upon the plain beneath; it is twice blessed; it blesses him that gives and him that takes. What a beautiful attribute is mercy! Did you ever think about it? Why, gentlemen, without mercy there would be no charity; without charity there would be no friendship; without friendship there would be no love; without love there would be no religion; without religion there would be no God; without God, gentlemen of the jury where in h-1 would we be?"

This climax brought out a ringing laugh, the cause of which the speaker could not see until his irreverent remark was explained to him. The jury found no mercy in the case.

The height of meanness has been often defined. I have heard, for instance, says a writer in the London Figaro, that it has been reached by a man who, having been rescued from a watery grave in the serpentine during the skating season, and duly brought round after much trouble, in the Royal Humane society's receiving house, promptly stole the grappling irons as he left the place and sold them for old metal on his way home. Another definition asserts that the height of meanness consists in giving a blind man a shillng and taking full change for it out of his hat. But the Woodbridge Gazette now claims for that town the credit of possessing the meanest man in the person of a miserly yeoman who refused to allow his daughter to receive a sealskin jacket from her uncle as a present,] because, forsooth, he could not afford to pay for the camphor which would be needed to keep the moths out of it dure ing the winter.

A rather novel proceeding took place yesterday evening on the public squard of this city, says an Helena, Ark., dispatch. A white man had been fined for carrying concealed weapons, and he did not desire to go to jail and did not have enough to pay the fine and costs. Under the law as it now stands, and as the county convict farm has been abolished, the white man was put up for sale by the constable (a colored man) and sold. He was bought in at the rate of 25 cents per day for as many days as it would take the prisoner to work out the fine and costs at the rate of 75 cents per day.

Gotthold Markert, a veteran of the late war and a well-to-do citizen, adopted a singular means of putting an end to his life. He had been on a prolonged spree, and one night recently went to a walled-up spring, some dis-tance from Mount Healthy, a suburb of Cincinnati, and clambered into the structure. The water reached only as far as his breast, but he remained there standing in a cramped position, and next morning his body was found frozen stiff.

A suit with singular incidents at tached was instituted in the East Str Louis city court last week. Frederick Harris, of Chicago, and Margaret' Byrne, of East St. Louis, were engaged and Mr. Harris presented his fiances with costly jewelry. Henry Wilkins, an uncle of Miss Byrne, discovered that Harris was a divorced man and suc-ceeded in annulling the engagement. Harris now sues to recover the jewelry given Miss Byrne. The Wilkins family asserted that its value will not offset the royal entertainment Harris has been accorded at the Wilkins residence while visiting Miss Byrne.

THE NORWEGIAN NIGHTINGALE, Prima Donna M'lle. Anna Smith

The singing of Miss Anna Smith is remarkable for its naturalness. Her voice reaching to the highest possible compass, is notable even in its registers, and her singing of florid passages shows conscientious study. Good voice placing, clear intonation, agreeable use of the portamento, are the great charms of this singer, and showed to good advantage in the "Variations," by Hummel, and the grand scene and aria from Rossini's Semiramide,

(Chicago Tribum, November 29, 1888.)

Miss Anna Smith, the Norweglan prima donna made her first appearance in America last evening at Central Music Hail. Miss Smith has been highly spoken of by the press of various European countries. She made an excellent impression in the numbers in which she appeared last evening. Her voice is extremely light and flexible well suited to the florid style of vocalization which was required by the selection chosen. Her first number was an air teresting as a composition, but which served well for the display of technical facility. She was warmly applicated and responded with "The Nightingale." by Alabieff. Her second number, Masse's pleasing "Air du Rossignol," was equally good and for an entore she sains an old Swedlish song, "At Fourteen views, which aroused a burst of enthusiasm. In response to a second recall Miss Smith repeated a verse of the same. Her lashnamber was the well known polonaise from "Mignon," which was likewise well appreciated. The usual encore followed, for which Eckert's "Swiss Song" was chosen. In this the familiar "echo" passages were given with much delicacy.

Miss Anna Smith, upon her second appearance in America, was greeted with an appliance anticipative of the treat that was coming. singing on this occasion proves her one of the most eminent colorator artrsts of our time.

(La Liberte, Paris, 1885.)

Miss Smith possesses a very remarkable soperatuo voice. Her tones are clear and ring like orystals, but they are of such velvelty quality that they charm the car. After having made a great success in Scandinavia and all the Siavonio countries, Miss Smith has decided to remain some time in Paris. We were most happy to be in the variations by Proch. Miss Smith has a wonderful flexibility of voice, Hertrills, runs and staccatos are made with a perfection that disarms criticism. In the "Nightingale," Miss Smith showed these advantages to a remarkable degree, and naturally the name of the song favored the expression of the audience, "She is indeed a Nightingale."

Miss Anna Smith, upon her second appearance in America, was greeted with an applause anticipative of the treat that was coming. An "Air and Variations was the pretext offered for a marvelous exhibition", the gymnastic power of the disciplined human voice. No one in the nouse, perhaps, caught the articulation of a word, or asked the sentiment nor sought the theme of the melody. All were struck with the theme of the melody.
