THE PROCESSION STARTED.

Otherwise the Plans of Local Politicians Would Have Been Exposed. Councilmen Chaffee, O'Connor, Lowry and Leo occupied a carriage in the firemen's parade yesterday afternoon.

"O'Connor tells you that you didn't report his maiden speech in favor of the grading of North Sherman avenue," said Councilman Lowry to a BEE reporter who was passing.

"You can say," retorted O'Connor, "that Lowry has deserted the mavericks and joined the combination in order to get his ordinance for the grading of Sixth street passed."

"I got the ordinance signed all right," said Lowry, "but I'm with the minority when the closing order repeal comes up again."

"The chair rules," chimed in Mr. Lee, "that it requires a two-thirds vote to introduce an ordinance that has once been vetoed."

Councilman Lowry interrupted the cross-fire to introduce McKendall, who was superintendent of bridges when the Elkhorn road was built, "I used to watch bridges on the line," said Lowry.

Then Chaffee spoke up. "The bridges were fastened at one end before Lowry was watchman," he explained, "or he would have had those bridges all down in the first war."

"I'll honestly, now I'll give you a straight political tip," said Lee. "Broatch will be the republican candidate for mayor, and Hascall will be the democratic choice."

The campaign will be fought out on principle and we will be happily spared the too common indulgence in personalities."

Then the procession started.

Stood the Test. Alcock's Porous Plasters have successfully stood the test of over thirty years' use by the public; their virtues have never been equalled by the unscrupulous imitators who have sought to trade upon the reputation of ALCOCK'S by making plasters with holes in them, and claiming them to be "just as good as ALCOCK'S."

ALCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS stand to-day indorsed by not only the highest medical authorities, but by millions of grateful patients who have proved their efficacy as a household remedy.
