Seventeen boys camped all night in the corridors of Boyd's opera house so as to have the edge on first privileges for Booth-Barrett When the box office opened ynsscats. terday they were entrusted with orders and money by prominent citizens, who preferred neither to lose sleep nor get up earlier than usual. At 5 o'clock the little band was reinforced by a dozen others, and from that time on the crowd continued to swell. When Manager Boyd and and D. W. Haynes, his assistant, arrived, about 8:30, they found an immense throng extending away cut into the middle of the street, and clamoring for admission. Some street, and clamoring for admission. Some comical scenes occurred. Every one crowded, pushed and squeezed for the best place in the line, but all were good-natured, and when the doors opened, quietly took their turn. Tickets went as rapidly as Mr. Boyd could give them out and take in the money. Within an hour the charts were well blackened and by noon nearly all the best seats for each of the three performances, and the private boxes, were gone. The biggest sale is for Friday, the opening night, when "Merchant of Venice," with Booth as Shylock, and Barrett in the role of Bassanio, will be the play. "The Fool's Revenge and Yorick's Love," on Saturday night, when Booth will be seen as Bertuccio and Barrett as Yorick is also a Bertuccio and Barrett as Yorick, is also a strong attraction and will fill the house. "Otnello," the matince bill, promises to draw nearly as well as the other two pieces. It is safe to predict that by the time the engagement opened there will not be a reserved seat left. Many in the crowd expressed surprise that Mr. Boyd had not followed the custom of the last two seasons and sold the first day's selections at auction. This change is accounted for by the fact that there was paid the company a certainty, while this season they receive a supulated per cent of the gross receipts. Speculators have been shut out for the reason that no person could buy more than ten tickets for one per-

A TERRIBLE CHARGE.

Nettie Everd, of Chicago, Tells the Story of Her Wrongs.

Miss Nettie Everd, late of Chicago, brings a terrible charge against French Em, a notorious bawdy house proprietor of this city, and the police are hunting for Em, but in vain, as she has disappeared. Nottle is twenty-two years old and, since the death of her father two years ago, has been employed at the Chicago home of Mr. Henry Baker as housekeeper. About two weeks ago she became acquainted with one Joe Liberty, who induced her to come to Omaha, where he told her she could make better wages. She came, and the fellow took her to French Em's. In a short time she discovered in what kind of a place she was and en-deavored to get away. She was prevented, however, and a close watch was kept over her to prevent her escape. She was forced, through threats, to carry on the ne-farious business of the bawdy house. Day before yesterday she managed to escape through the basement and appealed to the officers for protection. Yesterday, by their officers for protection. Yesterday, by their advice, she swore out a warrant for French Em's arrest, and will also file an information against Joe Liberty.

Judge Berka decided to send the girl to the "Open Door," kept by the W. C. T. U. When she was placed in the wagon and found out where she was going she entered a vigorous kick. "No 'Open Door' for me," she exclaimed indignantly, as she filted back into the cell. "I'm too old a chicken for that. Say, Count," to Officer Puloski, "wnat do you take me for anyway!" The poor, innocent thing then launched off poor, innocent thing then launched off some of the hardened policemen blush. She spent the night in the jail.

Rival Elks Reconcited. Among the Elks all over this country it is well known that Allen O. Myers, editor of the Social Session, and Arthur C. Moreland, secretary of the grand lodge, have been warring bitterly for two years. Imagine, there fore, the surprise that was created when they met in this city Tuesday, greeted each other cordially and have been chumming it together ever since. Moreland should have gone with Dockstader's minstrels to St. Joseph yesterday, but it so grieved him to leave Myers here that he let the train go off without him. He is a candidate for grand exalted ruler at the June meeting, and is taking advantage of the opportunity offered on this trip to do all the election-eering he can for himself among lodges everywhere.

PAYING COMMISSIONS.

A Rumor That a Local Road is Sugaring the Brokers.

Although the payment of commissions by railroads to ticket brokers was, by mutual agreement, abandoned by all lines, this business is still being tolerated, but on the extreme quiet. A local broker yesterday stated that the Chesapcake & Ohio was allowing commissions on business from Cincinnati to Washington; the Ontario line on business to Oswego and way points, and also that the Atlantic & Pacific was dickering in that way, though on no regular basis. As to the Omaha roads he stated that until the presidents' agreement was effected all lines were paying a handsome commission on long distance sales. When asked if cortain all distance sales. When asked if certain allowances or concessions were not being made by a certain Omaha road, he declined to express his snowledge of any such tranto express his subwiedge of any such transaction. However, a rumor is in circulation to the effect that a certain road has allowed commissions since the agreement was entered into and that it is making these concessions at the present time. Among the brokers, however, nothing could be learned that would substantiate the report of the charges, and the representatives of the Union Pacific and Burlington entered a denial as to the truthfuncas of the assertions. fumeas of the assertions.

The Demurrage Bureau. The rigid enforcement of demurrage charges on detained cars ladened with freight has been accompanied with satisfactory results in Omaha. Before the demurrage rule was cetablished shippers were in the habit of allowing freight to remain in the cars on the side tracks for weeks, and wen months, without unloading. Especially so was this done by the bucket shops that persisted in transacting business by using the cars as warehouses, supply stations, and for storage purposes. To such an extent was this practiced that at one time, about two years ago, the Union Pacific had 2,800 loaded cars of freight in its yards at this place, and loaded cars embargeed at various points along the freight in its yards at this place, and loaded cars embargoed at various points along the line. The demurrage bureau was established, and by its purposes being adhered to the blockade has been raised. Not alone this, but the bucket shop operators have been compelled to withdraw and allow the dealers that have erected large warehouses and fuel yards the patronage. At the present time the case is exceptional where a car is detained over forty-eight hours, but when this rule is violated the demurrage agent slaps on the toll which pulls murrage agent slaps on the toll which pulls like a porous pluster.

The Injured Man Talks. Martin Solquist, the man who was run over by a freight train on the Union Pacific at the Tenth street crossing Monday even ing, tells a different story as to how he met with the accident as compared with that furnished by the company. He says that he boarded the car on the south side and that boarded the car on the south side and that on the platform of the caboose were two men, apparently intoxicated. They asked him if the train was going to Lincoln and he informed them that it was only being switched in the yards. He then endeavored to pass them on the platform and they threw him from the rear of the car, his left foot falling on the track in front of the wheels of a box car. He did not notice where his assailants went. This has been reported to the police and will be investigated. To-day Solquist, who is at St. Joseph's hospital, was reported as being out of danger. His left ieg was amputated yesterday about midway between the knee and ankle joint. the knee and ankle joint.

Electric Signaling. The Union Pacific is preparing to equip its passenger trains and engines with an electric bell apparatus which will do away with the bell cord arrangement. A representative of the new device exhibited a model of the latter to Assistant General Manager Dickinson yesterday and the latter at once decided that the electric apparatus is a big improvement on the bell cord system of signaling. The alarm is given by pressing a button connected with the open circuit. Each car contains a gong and through the circuit the signal is transmitted to the engineer and vice versa. The Burlington will experiment on the new device and a test will be made at Chicago next Wednesday.

Senator Stanford's Steppers. The Burlington has a valuable cargo of horseflesh en route to New York. It consists of seven car loads of fast steppers owned by Senator Leland Stanford, the well known millionaire and politician. The horses are now at Lincoln, where they have been unloaded in order to rest up. Among them are some of the fastest steppers of the trans-Missouri territory, and they are en route east, where, after the season opens at Sheepshead Bay, Louisville and other points, they will be put upon the track.
