BRAND SIGHT IN THE HARBOR.

The Naval Parade—The Ball a Dazzling Dream, With Lilacs and Smilax Mountains High.

The Centennial Celebration.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 29.—The first faint gray streaks of dawn were visible as the presidential train drove to a stop at West Philadelphia, where Postmaster General Wamaker, the secretary, was taken on board.

The breakfast party from the train was to consist of President Harrison, Mrs. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Fuller, but in the bustle and confusion incident to the occasion the chief justice and secretary of the navy were not present.

The cabinet officials took breakfast on the train. The governor's house and grounds were elaborately decorated with flags and bunting and the streets in the vicinity, even at that early hour, were packed with people.

After reviewing the parade at Elizabeth, President Harrison and his party were taken to the Kill Van Kull by the Alcyone boat, where the entire party was reunited, and where a gig from the Dispatch came to meet them.

Decorations in New York. New York, April 29.—The clocks in the city church steeples had not finished their stroke of 19, midnight, when carpenters were at work on the uncompleted staves. Along the avenues and in the streets there was the beginning of adornment of buildings for the day.

above the roar could be heard the shrill pipe of the boatman's whistles on the revenue cutters, the Metropolitan opera house.

In a tree sturdy tars manned the yards and across trees, with heads uncovered gave every cheer as the Dispatch steamed slowly by.

The night hundreds of vessels of all kinds was one that will long be remembered by the thousands of people who lined the docks and housetops along the river front.

A large man in a crowd of showmasters from the Metropolitan opera house, New York, with Captain Ambrose Shaw, president of the Marine society, went out to the president's carriage.

At a little before 2 o'clock, carriages drove up before the door of the Equitable building, and the president's party was taken to the residence of the governor.
