CHASE COUNTY CONTEMPT.

Two of Her Officials Cross Swords With Judge Dundy.

LIQUOR WITHOUT LICENSE.

Two Saloonkeepers in Somewhat of a Tangle-An Incendiary Nearly Succeeds-Capital City News and Notes.

LINCOLN BUREAU OF THE OMAHA BES, 1029 P STREET, LINCOLN, May 7.

The attorney-general received word this morning that the treasurer and sheriff of Chase county were in a muddle, having crossed swords with the judge of the United States district court. It seems that the "Kit Carter Cattle Company vs E. Arterburn, Carter Cattle Company vs E. Arterburn, treasurer, and George W. Rogers, sheriff of Chase county, is the title of a case in the circuit court, pending trial, and, that an injunction was served upon Colonel E. D. Webster, receiver of the Harlan Cattle company, restraining any disposition of ten head of horses he had in his possession upon which the plaintiff, in the cause as stated, had a proprietory lean. Notwithstanding this, however, the sheriff of the county seized upon the horses in controversy by an order of the treasurer and advertised their sale to liquidate a claim for taxes which the order of the treasurer and advertised their sale to liquidate a claim for taxes which the county and state had upon the original owners of the horses. This, let it be remembered, was done in the face of an injunction granted by Judge Dundy. Now comes the return play. Service has been made upon Arterburn and Rogers to appear before the court and show cause why due respect was court and show cause why due respect was not shown the order. May 13 is fixed upon as the day of hearing, and it looks a little as though the Chase officials had a big case of contempt on hand. To make the matter more plain, it is well to state the Harlan Cattle company were the owners of the horses, and that they were held by the Kit Carter Cattle company, on a mortgage, to cover legitimate debt claims. Before fore-closure was sought, however, the horses were seized by the Chase authorities, but the order of sale had not been made, To prevent this, the injunction was served. Without considering it, however, the horses were posted at sheriff's sale to cover the claim of the county and state for taxes. The attor-ney-general will take a hand in the fight now, and he hopes to be able to clear them on the charge of contempt.

Liquor Law Violators.

The case of the state vs Moses Smith and W. Kief, was on trial in the district court, to-day, for selling liquors without license. The allegation is that they were running a saloon on Tenth street, a little north of P. It seems that a license had been granted to one Mahoney, and the defendants claim that they were merely there as his agents, Smith being in charge and Kief the bar tender. The state says that this was a transfer of the business, which could not be permitted under the law regulating the sale of liquor in the state. It is learned that the trial of this cause can not be concluded, to-day. Judge Field and a jury are trying the cause

The second court was also grinding to-day Judge Chapman presides. The case in hand is Cooper's mandamus on the city council to compel the council to canvas the votes for compet the council to canvas the votes for his short term as councilman on the gen-eral election day. It is stated that the court will undoubtedly deny the writ. The case in quo warranto also pends. This is simply for the ouster of Hamilton as councilman of the Fourth ward and the reinstatement of Cooper. These cases excite the interest of the Fourth ward and the entire city council. The outcome is watched with as much interest as though a life hung

Attempted Incindiarism. An attempt was made last night when the wind was highest, to burn the residence of W. E. G. Caldwell, who nves near the corner of M and Fourteenth streets. The attempt was discovered by singular fortune. J. O. Bennett, the artist, who lives in the bouse adjoining the Caldwell property, started to the theater and had forgotten his tickets. He returned to get them, and saw the flames leaping to the ceiling in the parthe Caldwell residence. It was the work of a moment to shout the alarm, and he dashed into the house and commenced to subdue the flames, but as he reached the room he was again startled by seeing a man run from the basement into the street and disappear in the darkness. Help poured into the house a moment later and the flames were queached, both in the parlor and basement, where fires had certainly been kindled. It was a fortunate dis covery. Otherwise, high winds considered, that part of the city must have been in ruins to-day; no clue whatever to the incendiary.

D. Mer cer, president of the motor, and St. A. D. Balcombe, chairman of the board of public works, filed affidavits yesterday. AMUSEMENTS.

The weather was rather uncomfortable for theatrical entertainments, last night, but not too warm to prevent a large audience attend. ing, appreciating and enjoying Nat Goodwin's performance at Boyd's opera house. He put on those very laughable coinedy "Lend Me Five Shillings" and "Turned Up." In the first, which is a short one-act piece. Mr. Goodwin is seen as he appears off the stage, a very handsome blonde gentleman, but the dress he assumes in his character of Caraway Bones completely hides his identity. Mr. Goodwin is a great actor, and after this season will discard the old skits for something more elevated, refined and meritorious in the line of clean, pure commeritorious in the line of clean, pure comedy. He already has one new play, "The Gold Mine," which had a run of eight weeks in New York, and was pronounced an unqualified success, and yesterday sent his cheek to New York as payment for "The Bookmaker," a comedy that has been one of the recent big successes in London. "The Gold Mine" was written by Bradner Matthews. He expects to make it his principal atews. He expects to make it his principal attraction next season. Mr. Goodwin and his company, which is a strong one, are en route to San Francisco, where they are billed to play "Turned Up" three weeks. The second students' concert of the Omaha College of Music was given before a large audience at Washington ball last night, under the direction of the principal, Miss Lizzie Isaacs. It was participated in by two soloists, a chorus of forty female voices, and an amateur orchestra of twenty-four pieces. The cantata of "Cinderella" was admirably given. Miss Itia Issaes, as reader, added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Dr. George L. Miller made a short address, in which he complimented Miss Issaes very highly for the progress she had made.

Mr. Anderson's Impetuosity. Last Saturday, County Commissioner Anderson began to make war upon County Clerk Roche, practically charging him with selling records belonging to the county. An investigation was ordered, and Anderson began making efforts to secure the records in question. Just before noon, yesterday, he met Simon Cahn at the entrance of the First Na-tional bank, a clork for Morris Sioman, with one of the books under his arm. Anderson attempted to take the book away from Cahn, attempted to take the book away from Caun, and a lively scrimmage ensued, which was participated in by Cahn, Anderson and his son, Fred, and Morris Sioman. Blows were freely exchanged, the affair ending in the ar-rest of the Andersons and Cahn. The trio were taken to the station and placed under bonds to appear before the police judge, Fri-day maning.

When she asked them what they were doing it for they said that they were going to lay a stone walk there. She objected to this, saying she couldn't afford a new walk, the wooden one having only been laid a few months. She was informed that the board had not ordered a stone walk out there, that, in fact, it was out side of the stone district. Further that the board had no authority in the matter and that she had better see the sidewalk in-

The party will inspect the land of the Union Pacific at the various points and will make its first stop at Manhattan, Kan. The land agents make this tour in order to be able to more fully illustrate the advantage offered in the west. One of the eastern representatives said: "I think that the present year will be marked with heavy migration to points west. That the states of Nebraska and Kansas are among the greatest producers on this continent, no one can deny. At one time, it was thought that the land west of the Missouri river was unproductive; was, you might say worth-less. But facts and figures have revolution ized this idea. Here is Nebraska, a com-paratively new agricultural state, credited with an annual yield of 80,000,000 bushels of corn, and small grain correspondingly Where is there another state that can mak such a showing! Then as to Kansas, asidfrom the drouth, a year or so back, it is for tering an active agricultural industry. The outlook for crops is the most promising. I am firm in my belief that, within a few years, all the available railroad land of the Union Pacific will be converted into farms.

An Old Report.

A morning paper revives the chestnut about General G. M. Dodge as successor of Charles Francis Adams as president of the Union Pacific. The "New York" citation is based upon the interview with General Dodge by a reporter, which was published in The Bee about four weeks ago. On the other hand, General Dodge, in his interview published in The Bee, stated that he would under no circumstances assume the position now held by Mr. Adams, and it is questionable whether the general could get the position if he so desired. General Manage Kimball did not accompany him on his tou as reported.

A Good Move.

Under the new arrangement, a sumptuous meal will be served at 75 cents and the cars will be run so that a dining car will be available at all meal hours. In doin, this, the Union Pacific supplies a long-fel want, as the dining car service now in the commodation has become almost indispen
