BY CHECK AND BOND

The Firm of Ryan & Co. Bound for Its Contract for Paving.

The board of public works approved the bonds of all the firms whose contracts for doing grading were to be submitted to the council except that of C. H. Pritchett. Thomas Rock and W. S. Andrews, both of South Omaha, appeared as sureties for Pritchett, but as none of the members of the board were acquainted with their financial standing, the bond was held over, and the chairman was instructed to go to the Magic City, find out the standing of the men, and report at 2 o'clock. Later the bond was rejected on the ground of in-

E. E. Naugle, of the firm of Ryan & Co. whose stability has been questioned, asked permission of the board to deposit with it, in addition to his bond for $130,000, his certified check for ten thousand dollars payable to the chairman of the board as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the firm. "Some people," said he "think that because I am young I am no good, but I'll fool 'em." The check, which was signed by Mr. Naugie personally, was received and filed.

A bystander wanted to know by what authority the board accepted the check.

"This firm," said he, "is under heavy bonds to do certain work. If you consider the bond unsound it is your duty to reject it.

but by the action you have taken you tacitly concede the bond to be unreliable and that you require additional security."
"Oh," said Major Balcombe, "it has been said that the firm has not got financial back-ing and Mr. Naugle simply wants to let peo-ple know that it has. We let him deposit e check as an accommodation."
"It looks bad on the surface, just the same." said the first speaker.

J. E. Riley was ordered to complete his contract for laying a stone sidewalk along the south side of Jefferson square.

The motor company gave notice that had determined to extend its lines as fol had determined to extend its lines as follows: Commencing at a connection with its line already laid at the Chark and Seventeenth street, west along Clark to TwentySecond, north on Twenty-second to Commercial street, to connect with its line on Twenty-second to Charles, connecting with a line already constructed; on Spencer street from Sixteenth to Thirty-second. A total of forty-one blocks.

The company has enjoined all other lines

The artists of the association have generously responded to the call for original work and show a marked improvement over their display at the Lininger gallery last fall. The improvised gallery in the Brown building is admirably adapted for the purpose, being well lighted both night and day. A large attendance is already assured not ple May Absorb White Lead. The white lead combination has its offices with the Standard Oil people, and it is understood that white lead, zinc and turpentine will be taken care of this season, and that consumers will settle the bills. The present poffey, it is said, is to reduce prices, freeze out the smaller factories and dealers and, this necemplished, recoup all losses and make handkome profits by a forced rise in prices. Turpentine, the rumor asserts, will be put at 32c and white lead at 2c if necessary to give the combination complete future control of the markets, and that the linseed oil producers will assist the grabber of carbon olls. Color of plausibility is given the rumor by the intimate relations of the staples involved. Turpentine has been handled by the Standard tank cars sent into the turpentine regions with carbon oil and its products, and which otherwise would have been reused largely in the application of white lead and zinc. There are twenty-five corroders in white lead trust and but the Carter White Lead company, of Omaha, the Collier and Southern White Lead companies, of St. Louis, and Eckstein White Lead company, of Cincinnati, out of the consolidation. This is probably as strong an aggregation as the Standard Oil company. The statement that officials of the latter company have purchased a majority of the white lead certificates may be correct, since their purchase of certificates has been open and well known. However, it is learned that the control of the lead trust, or the appreciation in value, under the agreement of the corroders to maintain prices, of the cer-tificates, might account for the action of the Standard officials. In support of the last motive comes an actual advance in certificates from $12 per share to $21 and $22.

President Hentz, of the lead and Standard oil trust, says that the Standard is not in

A reporter was detailed to inquire into the knowledge of the rumor possessed by local producers, dealers and users, and in the event of its truth, to obtain opinions of the effect of the operation of the consolidation on all concerned.

It was learned that the confirmation of the report that the Standard officials have succeeded in bagging a controlling share of white lead certificates would necessarily create unfavorable comments and reflections by reason of the notoriously bad flavor at-

Mr. Oscar Goodman did not believe it probable that there would be any alarming reduction in the commodities, and did not see how his firm would be affected by the combination if it was made. If the Standard did anything in white lead it would have to put up a big consideration, as the producers of that commodity were making plenty of of that commonly were making pendy of money, and would be disposed to hang on to a good thing. He was not prepared to say what the effect of the combination would be, but thought his interests would be pre-

Mr. Woodman-We don't know anything about such a report. So far as linseed oil assistance is concerned, we know there is not a shadow of truth in it. I know a good deal about the linseed oil business of the United States, and there has been no confer-United States, and there has been no conference of that interest with the white lead or Standard people. The Standard oil outfit has nothing to do in any way, shape or form with the production of linseed oil and I would regard an attempt by the Standard to control these lines, in a business way, as preposterous. While there is a white lead trust it doesn't begin to include all the corrading canacity of the country. It might be roding capacity of the country. It might be that such a centralization of production would work out a cheapening of production which would finally accrue to the consumer. which would finally accrue to the consumer.

Mr. Weller, of the Richardson Drug company—The Standard Oil company cannot control the white lead and turpentine out-put. The Carbon oil people have lots of money, but when they come to absorb these products they will find interests too diversi-fied for their management. The Southern and Collier companies of St. Louis, and Eck-stein, of Cincinnati, do about as profitable a white lead business as falls to the Standard in oil, and it is hardly businesslike to antici standard. The control of the turpentine business includes the purchase of North that staple could be dictated for a short time, but just as soon as an attempt should be made to greatly enhance prices, the premium thus offered would create sources of supply that would speedily tone the market to a normal condition, and the final user of turpentine would e saved from harm.

Mr. Bruce, of Blake, Bruce & Co., said that he had no knowledge of the subject from which to speak authentically, but thought that perhaps the Standard people had the connection of cheap transportation with tur-pentine. They certainly had the advantage of tank cars loaded to the turpentine disof tank cars loaded to the turpentine districts with carbon oil, which could carry return loads of turpentine. The Standard Oil company had been selling Blake, Bruce & Co. turpentine for two years at less cost delivered in Omaha than could be obtained from any other consignors, and better facilities for transporting the commodity might explain the cheaper delivery in this city.

S. B. Hayden, secretary of the Carter White Lead Co., said that Messrs. Hentz, Rogers & Thompson had denied the rumor of the control of the white lead trust by the Standard Oil company. The first named gentleman is president of the oil and lead trusts. It was only a question of time when the Carter and other white lead producers outside of the trust would become a part of what he termed the combination to keep up paying prices. He thought the foundation of the rumor in fact would mean reduced cost in production and to the consumer.

New Haven Girls Form a Society to Get Married.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 14 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE. |-The elopement of two young people of the western part of the city brings to light the existence of a queer organization. Miss Lizzie O. Fletcher, the the daughter of a prominent purveyor, eloped with Carl Treitlein, an intelligent and good-looking German, and journeyed to Port Chester, N. Y., where they were married. Miss Fletcher is a member of a society called the "Secret Union." When organized it consisted of twelve young ladies. Six of the twelve are now married and four of the six eloped. The girls are very close-mouthed, but their companions say that when the "Se-cret Union" was formed each girl made a vow to get married within a year.
