The New Berean Chapel. To the Editor of THE BEE: Your readers know that the Bereau Baptist chapel is about completed. It will be formally opened to the public next Sunday at 3 p. m. The whole property has cost us $1,500. We find, as we come up to dedication day, that we have not subscriptions enough by $500 to pay up all our builder's bills. I hereby solict all co-workers for the upbuilding of the true and the good to come to our help in this hour of our need. A few $25 subscriptions, a moderate number of $10 subscriptions, a reasonable number of $5's, and a liberal contribution of lesser amounts would enable us to pay every liabilamounts would enable us to pay every liability. I tell you, dear readers, that would be a happy day for us. We can not think of encumbering our house with a mortgage. We desire to dedicate it next Lord, s day, feeling that it is the house of God, and His alone. Persons who, for any reason, can not be at our dedication service, and yet feel a brotherly wish to help us out in our good work, are requested to send their contributions to the writer. I will see that they are faithfully applied to the liquidation of the $500 mentioned abovê. All that can be present next Sabbath, we shall be glad to accommodate, to the best of our ability. Our chapel will seat about one hundred and sixty persons.

Roast Pork.

One of the most destructive fires which which ever visited Council Bluffs was that of yesterday morning, by which Stewart's packing house was entirely destroyed. The flames were discovered about 5 o'clock, when the watchman, J. H. Dalton, was makng his last round of the building. As he entered the south end of the main building, he was almost suffocated by the dense smoke which was rolling from the structure. The fierce crackling of the flames told him that a serious conflagration was imminent, and he rushed to the terephone and gave the alarm.

He then tried to rouse Mr. Stewart, but before he could ring him up the smoke and heat drove him away from the telephone, and he hurried outside. So rapidly aid the flames spread that he experienced consider-able difficulty in making his escape. He is firmly of the opinion that had he not been so well acquainted with the interior of the building, knowing every avenue of escape, be never would have got out alive. The department responded to the call in good time but when the first apparatus reached the ground, the fire was breaking through several windows of the east end of the building and in less than ten minutes the entire structure was in flames.

The firemen extended three lines of nose to the nearest hydrant and attempted to reach the flames from the roof. The build-ing was burning so rapidly that they were ordered down, lest some accident might take place. In less than two minutes after the time be last fireman had descended to the ground the entire roof fell with a startling crash, sending up an immense volume of sparks and dense clouds of black smoke.

The water supply was defective when the first coupling was made, as there was scarcely any pressure whatever. Chief Walters called from the nearest fire alarm box for additional pressure, but the call was not satisfactorily responded to.

A man on horseback was dispatched to the residence of Chief Engineer Birkinbine, of the water works company, to ascertain the cause of the failure. That official hastened to the police station, where the pressure valves are located, and found that full pres-sure had not been turned on. This disastrous mistake was instantly remedied, and a pressure of 120 pounds was raised. Much valuable time, however, had been lost in this manner, the while the fiery ele-ment was fast devouring the fated structure.

When sufficient fire pressure was finally secured, it was of no avail whatever, and about all the firemen could do was to watch the building burn, and protect the outbuild-ings and surrounding property. This was successfully done, and the flames were confixed to the packing house proper and the immediate additions.

The heat was so intense that it was almost

The heat was so intense that it was almost impossible to get nearer than 100 feet from the building. The firemen had their faces and hands blistered, and their eyebrows, lashes and mustaches singed. They continued their labors until noon, although the irre was practically over before 7 o'clock. The ruins continued to him for surery labors and the immense amunt of pork in the storeroom was all on fire and cooking until late in the day.

The sight presented by the burning building was a grand one, and illustrated the insatiable ferocity of the devouring element when once beyond all control. Great clouds of pitchy black smoke rolled heavily upward, laden with the sickening oder of burning meat, and spreading all over the city. It was a sight, however, which few who wit-nessed it will care to see repeated. The structure was owned by John T. and Joseph L. Stewart. The main building was erected in 1862. Since that time a number of additions have been made. The house had a capacity of about two thousand hogs a day. For the past three years, however, it has not been run to its full capacity, the daily killing, when carried on, being about one thousand hogs.

The place has not been in operation since January last, although about a dozen men were employed in looking after the pork and making shipments. During the season from 100 to 250 men were employed, and the payroll was nearly $500 per day. The house had grown to be one of the principal enterprises of the city, and disbursed an immense amount of wages among the laboring classes. Mr. J. T. Stewart was seen regarding the loss and insurance, but could make no definite statement concerning them, and refused to talk until he could give the exact figures. It has since been developed that there were about one million pounds of pork in the store room, and that it was totally destroyed, either by fire or smoke. The supply of lard on hand was very small, although the lard room was across the alley and was not de-

The insurance on the establishment was nearly all placed through the agency of Lutz, Reed & Co., of the Bluffs, and is in

Mr. Stewart has been a careful business Mr. Stewart has been a careful business man for over a quarter of a century, and always made it a point to insure all property for as near its full value as possible. The insurance of the packing house through the agency above mentioned amounts to $35,200, and there is a small amount additional through outside agencies. The total is a little over $50,000, and it is a stand that the amount will fully executed. stated that this amount will fully cover all

The insurance is said to fully cover all oss, and amounts to over $100,000. It is nearly all placed through the agency of Lutz, Reed & Co., who have policies on the stock, buildings and machinery in twenty-seven different companies. The following is the list of companies, and the exact amounts which they hold on the property:

Of the above amount, $51,500 is on the stock, $28,000 on buildings, and $13,950 on machinery. The amount placed in other companies will not exceed $10,000, but all swell the amount to over $100,000.

The chimneys, which were all that was left standing, were pulled down by the fire department, yesterday afternoon, as they threatened to fall, and it was desired to avoid any casualty in connection with the great confiagration. It is now thought that the great amount of meat in the store room will not be a total loss, although it will be more or less damaged. The exact amount of the loss will not be known for several days. amount to over $100,000. the loss will not be known for several days.
Some of the firemen who cleared away a part of the debris, and examined the immense tiers of pork packed in the store room of the burned packing house, stated, last night, that only the outside pieces are damaged, and that the meat on the inside is white and apparently in nearly as good condition as ever. It is predicted that the greater part of it can be marketed. If this is true, the loss will be very materially less than was at first anticipated.

An investigation of the facts concerning the lack of water pressure relieves the water works company of any blame in the matter, and establishes beyond the shadow of a doubt the fact that ample pressure could of a doubt the fact that ample pressure could have been had immediately, could the valve at the upper reservoir have been closed by the night jailor at the police station. Cards showing the number and location of the fire alarm boxes are posted conspicuously at the police station, water works pumping station, and all the fire houses. These numbers are used in red and black.

According to the rules, governing the According to the rules governing the waterworks company, whenever an alarm is turned in from a box, the number of which is painted in red, full fire pressure is at once turned on, as these boxes are located in the upper portion of the city. If, however, full pressure is desired from one of the other boxes a call of 1-2-1 is turned in from the nearest alarm box, the call being struck on the big alarm bell on the central fire station. This is the signal which notifies the fallor on duty to turn the wheel that closes the pallor on duty to turn the wheel that closes the valve opening from the mains into the upper reservoir, and the pumps at the pamping station are to be started at full speed, thereby throwing the full pumping force directly on

When Chief Walters turned in his call of 1-2-1 from box 42 yesterday merning, the engineer at the pumping station immediately started the pumps, but the valve was not closed, and a stream of water three feet in closed, and a stream of water three feet in diameter poured through the mains into the upper reservoir with such force as to rise eight feet above the surface of the water in the reservoir. This force should have been exerted on the mains, but was wasted. The chief of the fire department was surprised when no response came to his call, and called eight times for pressure. The engineer looked at his pressure guage and was amazed to find only 100 pounds registered to the square inch. He telephoned Chief Engineer Birkinbine that his pumps were doing their utmost, and he could only gotain 100 pounds presand he could only obtain 100 pounds pres-sure. As above stated, Mr. Birkin-bine soon found the cause of the trouble, and as soon as the valve was closed the guage registered a pressure of 160 pounds The change was immediately noticed at the fire. Four sections of hose were bursted, unable to withstand the enormous strain. It required three men to hold a pipe, and a stream was thrown entirely over the long building. Up town the great pressure did additional mischief. The valves of the elevator in the government building were burst open, and the elevator could not be run during the day. Water closets in various buildings were broken, and all weak points along the mains gave evidence of the pressure thrown upon

Such was the pressure that should have been obtained as soon as the call was sent in. The responsibility seems to rest with Deputy Marshal John Barbyte, who was jailor at the time. It is claimed that he was asleep, but he denies this, and asserts that he was awaiting the call for pressure, but could tell nothing from the alarms.

The tape registers at all the houses show that eight calls for pressure were turned in but the fact remains that the call was not responded to until Mr. Birkinbine turned it on It is hardly possible that even a heavy pressure at the outset would have been of any avail, as the grease saturated structure ignited like a tinderbox; still the proper pro-tection of other property demands that precautions be immediately taken to insur-against a repetition of such a gross blunder or misunderstanding in the future.

A Chat About Schools. "No sir, there will be no new school outlding erected in the western part of the city this year," said a member of the board of education yesterday in response to a query of THE BEE. "You see, the building is not needed, and the scheme was gotten up by real estate men simply to boom property on the bottoms. The school district is deeply in debt, still I would not hesitate for a moment on that score, if I thought the building was really needed. I tell you that the word 'education' has a broad meaning. It sounds well, and when any move is made for the cause of education it is generally supposed that it must be all right. The same word covers up a lot of grand steals, however, and many a fat cantract has been needlessly let. If the board wants to be liberal with the money of the district, there is an opportunity to expend it in a channel where it is deserved. The teachers of the city are wretchedly compensated for their services, and it is a shame that a radical change is not made in this respect. There should be a liberal advance in all grades, and then the city might reasonably expect to retain the services of good teachers, in-stead of seeing them secured by other cities. As it is now, our best teachers are constantly being taken away from us by Omaha, and the only reason that they leave is because the are paid a respectable salary on the other side of the river. When I was first inducted into office I requested the secretary to fur mish me with a copy of the pay roll, and I was astounded when I examined it. It may seem a little strange, but it is an actual tact that the janitor of the Atkins building re-ceives $15 a month more than the principal of the high school. This is obviously not as i should be, but is about on a par with the other cases existing under the present sched-

"A gentleman came to me a few days ago and wanted to get his son a position as as-sistant teacher in our high school. The young man has just graduated from one of our leading colleges with the highest honors, and is doubtless well qualified for the position. When I told the father the salary that his son would recieve if he secured the position that his son could do much better than that in the mercantile line. The only proof needed that our salaries are too low is furnished by comparison with other cities, and I propose to do all I can to inaugurate a change. Another thing that is wrong is the system of Another similar that is wrong is the system of electing teachers. This matter was called to my attention a year ago, when The Ber brought it to public notice. The idea of parcelling out the appointments, a certain number to each member of the board is entirely wrong, and but for its injurious re-sults would be ridiculous. Teachers should be elected with regard to their qualifications, and not on account of personal preferences. I believe that the members of the board should visit all of the schools and become partially acquainted with the teachers and their work in the school rooms. The knowledge thus obtained, coupled with the sug gestions that the city superintendent should be able to furnish, would be the proper basis on which to elect the teachers for the ensu-ing year. This has been one of the gravest mistakes made by the board in years past, and I hope that The Bee will continue to advocate a change. I shall do what I can to secure the adoption of a different system in that direction, and I am positive that my course will be approved by everybody, un-less, perchance, it may be a few disappointed

A DRUNKEN MAN'S DEED. He Fatally Shoots His Father and His Divorced Wife.

CINCINNATI, May 16 .- Robert Day, twenty seven years old, son of a wealthy farmer living two miles from Loveland, O., reached home about midnight last night intoxicated. Drawing two revolvers he declared his intention of "cleaning out the ranch." He shot his father, sixty-five years old, through the body. Young Day then went in search of the other members of the family, but finding none, he went to an adjoining farmhouse where Mrs. Hubbell, his divorced wife, lived. He forced an entrance and fired at Mrs. Hubbell, striking her in the stomach. The servant girl appeared and he shot at her, wounding her in the face. He then went to the barn and set it on fire, keeping the neighbors at bay with his retolvers until he was overpowered by the marshal. Day fired ten shots at the barty assembled, one of which touched the face of the marshal. Robert Day, sr., and Mrs. Hubbell, are fatally wounded. Three years ago the murderer married Mrs. Hub-bell while argard by her on her farm. Two bell while engaged by her on her farm. Two years later he began drinking, and she was compelled to get a divorce. He has been heard to threaten to get even, but no cause is known for the killing of his father,
