THE SPECULATIVE MARKETS.

Sentiments Influence and Conditions Bearish in Character. WHEAT-SUFFERS LITTLE CHANGE.

CHICAGO PRODUCE MARKETS.

Chicago, May 18.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—Sentiment, influence and conditions were bearish to-day, yet the price of wheat suffered very little change. The market was ineffectual in the production of quotations of any description, and operations did not lead to any decided operations.

THE OMAHA DAILY BEE: SUNDAY, MAY 19, 1889. TWENTY-FOUR PAGES.

the close of last night were noticed. As expected, there was further excitement in Oregon Transcontinental because of the short interest, and a squeeze was the first thing in order. The stock started 1/4 per cent over the close at 35 1/2, advanced quickly to 37, then to 40, a point at a time. The reaction was even quicker than the advance and it fell back to 39 and rallied again to 41 1/2.
