A PALATIAL GROCERY.

A Grand Marketing Place for the People of Omaha.

Trays of Luscious Berries, Piles of Juicy Vegetables, Tropical Fruits, and Shelves Loaded With Home and Imported Delicacies.

A hungry representative of this pape started out to find the material for square meal which the good wife would prepare at home, visited, among other places, the elegant retail grocery store of C. B. Moore & Co., 1510 Dodge street. In front of the artistically arranged show window was one of the finest displays of vegetables and berries to be ound in any city, all fresh as the moraing dew. This department of this store stands head and shoulders above any of its competitors. But the well stocked display outside, complete as it is, does not prevent a surprise to the visitor when once he views the great retail mart within. In place of the chaotic piles of vegetables and flour sacks usually seen in retail groceries, we find complete order; in place of dirt and untidyness is found scrupulous cleanliness, and in place of disorder, system. The entire establishment is divided into departments and neatly designated by a sign. On the west side of the store is a summer drink department, where can be found ginger ale, cider, lime and fruit juices. Farther along are found condensed Huggins soups such as pea, ox tail and terrapin. Their stock of these delicious goods is very complete. Another di-vision is devoted to table spices and condiments, their chillisauce being exceptionally fine. Their canned goods in great variety and thoroughly reliable, C. B. Moore & Co. being the western agents for the celebrated Oneida community goods, which need no introduction to Omaha people. The pickle, jelly and preserve department are stocked with the best that can be had and are as fine as those put up by the most careful housewife. Sandwiched between these larger divisions is one of canned meats and fish. Here can be found canned corn beef, lob-sters, boneless sardines, rolled tongue, curried fowls and the fat and jury salmon. Their cured meat, cheese and lard department is worthy of especial attention. They make a specialty this department, handling only New York cream cheese. Gardner and Phipps hams and Armour & Co.'s star sugar cured hams and bacon, also kettle rendered lard, which is guaranteed absolutely pure. They have a fine Ital-ian marble top counter for the dispensing and cutting of these goods. Everything is scrupulously clean. Their line of farannaceous goods is very complete. comprising the best brands of oat meal, barley, tapioca, etc. Mr. Moore takes great pride in his fine table butter and justly so. His beauti-ful refrigerator with revolving show windows, made especially for butter, 18 a great convenience to himself and customers. On the east side of the room are three nice upright show cases for the display of different varieties of dried fruits, crackers and nuts. Twentyfour varieties can be seen by a customer without moving. This store handles the finest line of imported and domestic crackers of any house in the In any part of the store can be found rare imported goods, such as pineapple cheese, Edam cheese, rare canned and bottled goods. Special attention is given to the coffee and tea department. The stock being excellent in quality. The coffees and teas kept by C. B. Moore & Co., have always been very popular. This department with its beautiful and convenient cans and

OUR HOME INDUSTRIES.

The Mid-Continent Boiler and Iron Works, Cor. 19th and Pierce.

Go-Ahead Firm That is Splendidly Equipped For Business and Fairly Rushed With Orders.

The Mid-Continent Boiler and Sheet Iron Works could only be properly lo-cated in Omaha because Omaha is the center of the continent, and nowhere else than in such an enterprising city could such a beehive of industry keep its tireless workmen busy. These works were founded in 1883 by Mr. J. M. Wil-son as a small shop. Since then Mr. Wilson has taken in a partner in the person of Mr. Brunner, the style of the the firm being Wilson & Brunner. These gentlemen have very materially increased the old plant, supplied it with the latest improved machinery and made it what an establishment named the Mid-Continent Boiler and Sheet Iron Works ought to be. They employ constantly from twenty-five to thirty men, and their business is constantly increasing. It has been the good fortune of this firm to be popular at home, and their work can be found in almost every establishment where such work is needed in the city. They are pre-pared to make all kinds of tubular flues and firebox boilers, oil and water tanks, smoke stacks, breeching of the best material and made in a workmanlike way. They have just shipped out some excellent work to the surrounding states, and are now engaged upon four large lead dryers 8x20 feet for the white lead works of this city. The Mid-Continent has just secured the contract for five large steel boilers and ten large lard rendering tanks from the great preking house of George H. Hammond & Co., of South Omaha. This is quite a feather in their cap when it is remembered that the contract was se-cured in open competition with several large Chicago and other castern firms, who sent special representatives here to secure the work. The award of the contract is not only a triumph for the Mid-Continent, but reflects credit upon Messrs. Hammond & Co., who thus showed their loyalty to our city by purchasing supplies at home when they were convinced that the home product was the equal in every way to that offered by outside competitors. This example of patronizing home industries should be emulated by all of our citizens whose needs cause them to make similar purchases. Messrs. Wilson and Brunner are both gentlemen of the strictest integrity, houest and reliable, and who can give unquestioned refer-rences. Their works at the corner of Nineteenth and Pierce streets are an honor to the industrial circles of Omaha. BENNISON BROS.

FURNITURE FIRE SALE. It Still Continues the Leading At traction to Buyers. Buyers of furniture and household articles of every description still throng the stores of Hill & Young, 1211 and 1213 Farnam street.

The stock, which was an immense one, has been materially reduced, but there still remains a good variety of furniture, stoves, crockery, lamps, cutery, glassware, refrigerators, and in fact all household articles.

Among the many bargains remaining. since the fire April 13, is one or two worth special mention: The $12.50 chamber suites of antique oak, and the $15 ash chamber suits, while the chamber suits that are sold for $25 are worth almost double.

In gasoline stoves they have the 'Peerless," which is considered second to none. These are not damaged in the least and are the greatest bargains, you will find.

Dryair refrigerators at the old prices still continue to go. Upholstered plush platform rockers $6 and upward. These are all worth bout double what they ask for them, but they want the room these goods occupy for their new goods which will begin to arrive in a few weeks. Largest line baby carriages in the ity, from $5 to $50.

Remember if you want anything in the house furnishing line don't forget to call on Hill & Young, 1211 and 1213 Farnam St., and see the remainder of their fire stock.

thought that the affair will pass off serenely

and will not be as tempestuous as it promised to be early in the fight. There are conflicting reports in circulation as to the probable outcome of the meeting. The Northern Pacific, through Henry Villard, claims that that faction will vote 201,000 shares, or a majority of the stock, and thereby have the naming of the members of the directorate.

When Fred Ames was in Omaha not long since he informed a certain official of the Union Pacific that the majority of stock would be voted by the Union Pacific faction, and that the latter would name the directors. Mr. Ames claimed to know whereof he spoke. It is also reported that the controversy has been amicably settled and that the two com-papies will name the directoral jointly. The radical policy of Villard, it is said, will re-sult in victory or defeat as regards the Northern Pacific as he is opposed to arbitra-tion if it can be avoided. The outcome of the meeting is anxiously awaited by the

A Splendid Veteran.

Perhaps there is no one thing about the veteran, George M. Pullman, of palace car fame, which impresses the visitor more than the vigorous greenness of bis old age. Other men droop and die under burdens and business cares less weighty than his, and yet in the afternoon of his life he is better fitted to stand mental strain than many a man of younger years. And there is good reason for this sturdy virility. Away back in the early sixties Pullman was digging gold in Russell Gulch. Col., a mining camp three miles from Central City, and it was there that fortune first became his friend. The rude cabin he lived in still stands by the rondside. The dry, invigorating air, charged with the essence of perpetual youth, gave him a lease upon health which has lasted until this day, and there are occans of the elixir still left for troubled business men who seek those serene retreats reached only by the Union Pacific railway in Colorado.
