Corporal Tanner, United States pension commissioner, will address Abe Lincoln post, G. A. R., on the evening of July I. The charge of larceny preferred against M. O'Boyle, in Squire Hendrick's court, has been dismissed, it being shown that the case was one of malicious prosecution.

Judge Aylesworth has overruled the mo-tion for a new trial in the rather celebrated Patterson-Sharp horse case, and an appeal will be taken to the supreme court. Building permits were issued yesterday to S. J. Harcourt, for a $600 cottage in Beer's addition; and J. N. Peterson, for a $1,500

Several of the gentlemen who are attending the grand lodge of A. O. U. W., in Omana, this week, visited the city yesterday afternoon, and took in the various points of interest. They were well pleased with what they saw, and expressed themselves as greatly surprised with the progress, enter-prise and general prosperity exhibited on all sides.

It is stated that the expenses of the fire-men's tournament will foot up nearly $7,000. This will leave the management at This will leave the management a very small sum to drop in their pockets after ail bills are settled. The skin gamblers, who operated on the grounds during the tourna-ment, fared much better, as a very good authority states that their winnings, after all expenses, including cappers, etc., were all expenses, including cappers, etc., paid, amounting to a little over $7,400.

The case of Fred Kissel, the young tough who was a partner of Charles Smith in an attempted highway robbery Saturday night, was called in Squire Hendricks' court yesterday. Kissel admitted that he was with Smith at the time of the robbery, which was perpetrated on one Ed. Nelson, a Dane from Omaha, but denied having anything to do with it. Smith declares that Kissel accepted a part of the money, knowing that it was stolen. Several witnesses are subpænaed on the case, which had not been completed when court adjourned last evening.

Traded Too Freely.

M. C. Scarles is in trouble, and it all came about through his mania for trading. Some time ago he mortgaged a team of horses, wagon, and two sets of harness, to Martin White for a certain consideration. Before the mortgage was released the harness was sold, as White alleges, and he asks redress and protection from the court. Searles ad-inits that he disposed of the harness, but claims that he traded for another, equally as good, but White does not seem to think so. The suit was brought in Squire Schurz' court, but Searles took a change of venue to Squire Hendricks. The case will be tried Saturday.

Wall McFadden Made to See a Legal Point-Trading a Mortgaged Harness - A Slugging Case-Personals.

A Bailiff Surprised.

The Blumenstein case is developing into a veritable chestnut in the district court. It already has been on trial for three days and is not yet ready for the jury. The indications are that the Northwestern freight car robberies will occupy fully two weeks' time, if the present case is any criterion by which to judge

Just before court convened yesterday afternoon, but after the jury and spectators were all in their seats, Colonel D. B. Dailey called Bailiff Wall McFadden to the witness called Ballin Wall Alcrander to the Willies stand, when, instead of propounding the usual interrogations, he proceeded to relate a few facts regarding the balliff and his career in that position. The sum and substance of it all was that Wall had performed the duties of the office for a great many years, with credit to nimself and satisfaction to the hundreds of jurors who had, at divers times, been under his charge. Invariably joily and good-natured, he had in many ways and by countless courtesies smoothed the way of the prisoners pro tem in the jury rooms, and they wanted to show their appreciation. they wanted to show their appreciation.
The popular bailiff lost his spectacles a few days ago, and the petit jurors of the present term took advantage of the opportunity to buy an elegant pair of heavy gold-bowed "specs" to make good the loss. Colonel Daily made the presentation very happily, and everyone in the court room was de-lighted. Wall was tickled, and no mistake, but it was a little too sudden for his peace of nund. The simple "Thank you, gentlemen," was heartfelt, and the familiar "Hear ye, hear ye," as the court ascended the bench, had just the slightest suspicion of huskiness. The happy recipient immediately put on the clear peobles, and polled the jury in a voice that startled Justice on the court house roof.

For Early Closing.

"I am glad to see The Beg make a move to close the business houses at 6 o'clock during the Chautauqua, and give us clerks chance to attend, and I came in to thank you for suggesting such a plan, which will prove a veritable God-send to us, if it can only be carried through. The reporter looked up and confronted one of the head clerks in one of the leading dry goods houses of the city.

"You may wonder at my satisfaction in the matter, but it is simply because you don't fully understand the situation, and realize how much the change would be to us. I might talk about it for a week, but I don't believe anyone can fully appreciate it until ne has been through the mill for nimself. Few people think of our position or they would' realize that it is not a bed of roses. From morning until 90'clock at night we are on our feet, and on Saturday nights it is often II closely before everything is checked. often 11 o'clock before everything is checked up, and we are at liberty. Of course, if we are dissatisfied we can throw up our situations, but we are obliged to work for a liv-ing, and positions are not to be had every day merely for the asking, for there are too many waiting to fill any vacancy that may

"We have no time for recreation, and a few evenings at the Chautauqua grounds would be a delightful change. I didn't come in to make any complaint, but just to express my thanks and appreciation for a move which I think is in the right direction. Others as well as myself will feel deeply incarried out, and the proprietors of the stores can be brought to realize that it would be of benefit to them to give their employes even such a brief vacation as is recommended; that is, from a business point of view while from a humanitarian standpoint, don't think even the slightest argument could be urged against it. All that surprises me is that the move was not made sooner, although I suppose we could hardly expect others to kick for us, when we failed to make any protest ourselves. We were willing enough to kick, but it was not policy. Oh, I do hope we can have a few evenings, if no more. Good evening," and she tripped out to supper, preparatory to another siege with ribbons and laces. Appreciated Courtesy.

The following letter, which has just been received, explains itself:

Marshalltown, Ia., June 17.—Council Bluffs Press Club—Dear Sirs: On behalf of the Marshalltown band permit me to return our hearty thanks and best wishes to the en-tire press and people of Council Bluffs and Omaha for the royal treatment and courtesy Omana for the royal treatment and courtesy shown us while in both beautiful cities last week. Very truly yours,

JOHN SPERRS, Secretary.

Several similar expressions of good will have been received from various points, thanking the Bluffites for courtesies extend ed to visitors during the tournament.

The Chautaqua.

The Chautauqua has had a most auspicious opening. Many visitors familiar with other similar enterprises express themselves as delighted. They unanimously declare they never saw a more favorable opening anywhere.

The only hitch in the arrangements thus far is in the matter of transportation to the grounds, and that is now satisfactorialy arranged. Those desiring to go from Omaha, can take trains at the Union Pacific depot. These trains run right through to the grounds. The charges are 75 cents for the round trip, including a single day admission ticket, entitling the holder to attend all the entertainments for one day and evening. Those who prefer to go by electric motor train can do so at the same price. The electric motor company has arranged its trains so that they connect with the street cars at Main street, in Council Bluffs, and these street cars, in turn, connect with the trains for the grounds, at the Rock Island and St. Paul depots. Thus, too, all rail routes connect Omsha with the Chautauqua grounds, and the cost over either is 75 cents, including the day's ticket. Those in Council Bluffs who want to reach the ground can take a Main street car connecting with the trains, or can take the train at either the Rock Island or St. Paul depots and be landed right at the grounds. The fare for the round trip is 25 cents from Council Bluffs to the grounds by rail.

were to run carryalls, 'busses, etc., from Broadway for a 15-cent fare each way, but they have concluded that was too little and they have concluded that was too little and raised the price to 25 cents each way.

In some instances as high as a doilar has been charged, and it seems that there is no way to control the back rates, as it is outside the city limits. The wagon road is an up and down one, and perhaps the backmen are justified in asking higher rates than were advertised. Still it will be difficult to induce people to pay them 50 cents for the induce people to pay them 50 cents for the round trip when they can go by rail at half that price. The success of the Chautauqua depends greatly upon having an easy and cheap way of reaching the grounds. As it is, the public will patronize the rail route instead of the wagon wheels.

This season will doubtless demonstrate the advisability of pushing the moter line to the grounds. Season admittance tickets can be procured at $3, about 17 cents a day. They are on sale in Omaha at Max Meyer's and Jopin & Co.; in Council Bluffs at Brockett & Carne's corner book store, at Bushnell's and at Dr. Houghton's drug store. Or they can be procured at the grounds.

The grand amphitheater calls forth praise from all. Proj. Case, the musical director, and others who are familiar with such buildings express themselves as delighted. Its acoustic properties are especially fine.

The charges for meals, for cots, tents, etc., are very low. There seems a generous disposition on the part of the management. Visitors are being well cared for. There is much more enthusiasm on the part of those from a distance than those living in the city, many of whom have not yet even looked at the grounds.

the grounds. The literary and musical treat offered by

The literary and musical treat offered by each day's varied programme is indeed a feast. Thus spread at the very entraces of these two cities, it should be appreciated by the 140,000 people gathered in this commercial center. All that is needed is for anyone to spend a half day on the grounds or an evening to become thoroughly enthused. The electric lights are a great belo, not only for the grounds, but for those driving out at night.

Arrangements are made by which teams are cared for while the owners are enjoying themselves in the ampitheater.

At 9 Rev. J. T. Docking led the preliminary arrangement for opening the boys' and girls' class of No. 2. Regular class work will begin in all departments to-day. Dr. Case has arrived and will take charge of the first year's normal class. He has been identified with the work for many years, and is an able worker. Mr. Tranter is to have charge of the intermediate class. All the teachers are on the ground. Superintendent Gillet has his work under the best of system and is prompt. People who are waiting for later dates will miss much, for the order goes right on time as announced.
