The Commencement Exercises. The nineteenth annual commencement exercises of the Council Bluffs high school were held at Dobany's last evening. The house was completely filled, and many spec tators occupied standing room. The class of '89 is one of the largest that was ever graduated from this institution of learning, numbering sixteen mem ers. The graduates are Lena Beadle, Grace Foster, Frederick Grass, Nellie Parsons, Lena Van Gleson, Leo Wit-

Nellie Parsons, Lena Van Giesen, Lee Witter, Pearle Chamberlin, Richie Dickey, Carrie Henn, Wilnam 1. Mansfield, Helen Bowman, Lillian Hart, Hulda Luchow, Jennie Pile, E. I. Woodbury, Julia Walker.

The stage was beautifully decorated with evergreens, cut flowers and potted phants, arranged with exquisite taste and in numerous designs. A huge bank of flowers and foliage flanked either side of the stage, and added much to the fine effect of the decoraadded much to the fine effect of the decora-tions. A handsome forest scene was used, which, by the tasty arrangement of the natural flowers and vines, transformed the stage into a veritable woodland bower. The arrangement reflected great credit on those who designed it and carried it into effect.

The exercises were unusually interesting.

The essays and orations were well delivered and, in many instances, were a vast improve ment over the stereotyped productions of the "sweet girl graduate" and her aspiring classmate of the opposite sex. One feature that added very much to the interest of the exercises was the brevity and conciseness of the essays. Had the usual length been ad the essays. Had the usual length been adhered to; the audience would have been greatly wearied by a lengthy programme. Such, however, was not the case, and it was a variation greatly appreciated. The graduates themselves appeared to greater advantage on account of it, and the innovation is age on account of it, and the innovation is worthy of general adoption.

Space ferbids individual mention, but it is certain that no class graduating here was ever more deserving of it. The appreciation of the audience was amply shown by the very profuse floral tributes that were received by every member of the class.

Dalbey's orchestra rendered a number of very choice selections during the evening. The interest manifested by the public in attending so generally speaks volumes in sup-tending so generally speaks volumes in sup-port of the educational work of the city, and is a most deserved encouragement to the school board and able corps of teachers in Sadly Mixed Matrimony.

The Gladman-Wilson adultery case, an account of which appeared exclusively in yesterday's Bgg, has developed into one of the most disgusting and pauseating affairs that has come to public notice in some time. The case was first brought to the attention of the authorities Tuesday night, when Mrs. Gladman, who claimed to have just arrived from Des Moines, appealed to the police for assistsnee in finding her recreant husband. As it was then late at night, she was advised to wait until the following day before attempt-wait until the following day before attempting to locate him.

Late Wednesday evening, Officer Kemp, who had located the stopping place of the guilty couple at No. 1625 Fourth avenue, conducted the wife to that place, and left her with the wayward pair. It was not long until there was trouble brewing, and a pitched battle was soon in progress. Mrs. Gladman pounced upon the disturber of her domestic happiness, and was administering summary happiness, and was administering summary punishment when her husband interfered The enraged woman then directed her attenion to her faithless lord and master. family interioper took advantage of the change in hostilities to make her escape.

As soon as she was safely out of the door, she closed and held it from the outside, thus she closed and held it from the outside, thus leaving Gladman exposed to the anger of his betrayed wife. Gladman was not dis-posed to face the music, and attempted to get away. She held tightly to him, however, and he began to beat her. She screamed loudly for assistance, and Gladmin, becom-ing desperate, finally threw himself out of the window, and managed to tear himself away from her clutches. The neighbors were aroused by the noise, and several soon appeared in scanty raiment.

Gladman was seen flying up the street as fast as he could go, calling to his paramour, who was following as fast as she could, to meet him on Broadway. A call was turned in for the patrol wagon, but when it arrived the guilty parties were nowhere to be found, and the house was filled with excited neigh-

Shortly after midnight Officer Cusick saw the couple at the corner of Main and Broadway, and suspecting that they were the par-ties wanted, arrested them and took them to the station. The woman was minus hat or cloak, having left the house in a decided

The pair were seen at the police station by the reporter, but both declined to talk, and the scribe then visited the honse which, a short time previously, had witnessed the lively scene above referred to. The aban-doned wife and children were found, surrounded by a number of carious neighbors. In answer to a long and close questioning, the following facts were ascertained:

Some time ago (the date she could not re-call) the woman married James Gladman, a widower with two children, living about five miles from Des Moines. In course of time, two children were born to them, and shortly afterward the trouble began. Mrs. Glad-man's sister, Miss Bertie Wilson, began to make her home with them, and the affectious of the head of the family were soon trans-ferred to the rather prepossessing young woman. Soon she left the bouse, and Mrs. Gladman discovered that her husband was spending a great deal of his time in a house in another part of the city, which he had rented for his sister-in-law. They found out that their illicit relations had been discovered and fled together to parts unknown.

About the first of the present year, they landed in Council Bluffs, and rented a bouse near the waterworks pumping sta-tion. About six weeks ago the de-serted wife discovered their wherebouts, and soon appeared to the aston ished vision of the runnways, accompanied by the four children. A truce was patched up, and she remained for a few weeks, but the actions of the sister and husband again became more than she could put up with, and she left the place, leaving the children be-hind her. Where she passed the next few weeks is not definitely known, as she tells several conflicting stories regarding her whereabouts.

Her next appearance was Tuesday evening as stated above. It is known that she was spying about the house on Fourth avenue, but did not molest the guilty couple.

The most disgusting feature of the case is in connection with the children. As above stated, the mother left them with the father and his paramour when she disappeared some time ago. Since that time they have been abused, neglected and maltreated, and are all in a pitiable condition. When questioned by the court, yesterday, the mother stated that two of the children, one a baby thirteen months old and the other four years of age, were suffering from a loathesome disease, contracted from their unnatural father. The infant is in a critical condition, and the doc tor offers no hope of its recovery.

The two prisoners were not locked up Wednesday night, but were allowed to sit in the outer corridor of the police station. Glad-man availed himself of the privilege to walk out. When his wife appeared yesterday morning to file a complaint against him, see found he was not there, and started out to find him. She discovered him about noon, near the corner of Bryant and Broadway, and seized him about the neck. He endeavored to esanim about the neck. He endeavored to escape, and managed to get loose. He rushed up the stairway to the office of N. P. Dodge, but she caught him before he reached the top, and the pair rolled to the sidewalk together. It was tried again and again with the same results, and finally the screams of the woman attracted the attention of an officer, who arrested the fellow. An information was filed in Justice Schurz court, charging Gladman with adultery, and the Wilson woman with lewdness.

Mrs. Gladman was anxious to get rid of her sister. She stated that she would for-give everything if Gladman would send the girl away and come back to her. This he positively refused to do, declaring that he would keep the girl and support her. As none of the parties were ready for trial, the case of each was continued until Saturday. Gladman was put under $100 bonds, which amount was furnished by Contractor Sayles, in whose employ Gladman has been for some time. He is a carpenter, earning good wages, and has been in the employ of several contractors in the city. Mrs. Gladman declares that she still loves her recreant hus-band, and what the outcome will be is hard

Will Keep on Shaving. The indications are that there will be a bitter fight between the barbers and the proprietors of the anti-Sunday closing shops before that matter is finally settled. There are now three of the shops that are opposed to Sunday closing, and from one of the proprietors it was learned yesterday that these three have pledged themselves to fight the movement. These three are John Bohn, Frank Lovin and Fritz Bernhardt. Each

Frank Levin and Fritz Bernhardi. Each of these has secured an attorney, and is ready for the fight. Said one of them. "We will fight it tooth and toe nail. There are only three of us as yot, Kline is reported as with us, but the truth is that he is on the fence, and will wait a few days to determine which way to slide. If it works all right there will be several who will want to join us. We are pledged to keep open next Sunday, and will let them arrest us on Monday if they want to. The case will be carried up if it is decided against us in the lower courts. There are lots of little kinks in the law to be taken advantage of, and we will keep them busy for a while at any rate. However, if it finally goes against us, I will see that every other branch of business is closed on Sunday, the same as we are. I know that the spreme court has decided in connection with such cases that shaving is not a necessary business on Supday but our attorneys are ready with a neat little dodge, which will appear in due time."

The other side is working quietly, but has already its say, and is waiting patiently for Sunday morning.

Sunday morning.

The Chantauqua.

The first dampener on the Chautauqua en terprise came from the heavens. It gave many an opportunity to test the comfort of tenting under adverse circumstances. Many others were satisfied to remain at home and take the experience second-handel. The rain caused a revelation of varied human nature. Some shook themselves and laughed. Others grumbled and dripped. It showed that the world is much as you take it. The wind did little damage. The large tent in which is displayed the panorama of Jerusa-iem on the crucifixion day was blown down and the center pole broken. Jerusalem lay in ruins for a time, and suffered a little from the flood, but was readily rebuilt. The Con-gregational tent was also laid flat, but no damage was done. Saveral of the state of which is displayed the panorama of Jerusa-damage was done. Several of the other tents were laid flat, The Sunday question has caused no little discussion. A few of the Chautauqua workers urged a complete closing of the gates from Saturday night until Monday morning. The impracticability of this caused it to have few supporters. Some of the lecturers and speakers insisted on canceling their engagements if people were to be let in on Sunday as on other days, for they felt it would be a desceration of the day. They urged that it was inconsistent to sell tickets, allow it was inconsistent to sell tickets, allow trains to run, e.c., and then preach against Sunday trains, Sunday newspapers, etc. On the other hand, it has been claimed that the Chautauqua is for the elevation of the intellects and merals of the people; that many of the 150,000 people in Omaha and Council Bluffs would like to attend on Sunday, not being able to attend on other days. The assembly grounds are within such easy reach of their homes that they prefer to spend the night under their own roofs. The services night under their own roofs. The service on Sunday are of a strictly religious nature The services and in no sense a worldly entertainment or

As one sharply put it, "Shall we close the gates, and post up a sign telling people they can not come in to hear Bishop Vincent preach, and thus turn them off to go to see Another class argue that the selling of tickets makes it a money-making arrangement, and that the money changers shall be driven from the temple on Sunday.

Those who promptly answer this insist it is not a money-making anterprise even on it is not a money-making enterprise, even or week days. Many have given liberally to the stock, which is not dividend paying and never will be. Instead of relying on the passing around of the hat, the sale of tickcts divides the giving more equitably, mak-ing all who attend take a share in meeting the expense. After these and other pros and cons have been exchanged on street and in tent the following official annuancement is made.

SUNDAY AT CHAUTAUQUA.

persons not holding season tickets who expect to visit the Caautauqua grounds on Sunday next, are requested, so practicable, to procure their tickets during the present week. Horses and carriage will be taken care of free of charge on that day. Tickets can be procured at Max Meyer's and Joplin's store in Omaha; also at Bushnell's, Brockett & Cavin's and Dr.
Broughton's store in Council Bluffs, By There is the usual difficulty experienced about complimentaries. If the free list was extended so far as the demand, the number of cash patrons could easily be counted There are a thousand reasons for expecting passes, or reduced rates. It being a public enterprise, many here aided in getting it started. Others are willing to promise aid in the future. The managers seem willing and even glad to extend courtesies t) all who make their wants known, and who are entitled to such courtesies. The newspaper men have been notified that on applying the manager's office they will be cared for. There has been some little criticism because the complimentaries have not been scattered broadcast, to be used by any into whose hands they may chance to fall. Some evidently feel slighted because they have not been re-membered by a voluntary presentation of the desired pasteboard. But no case is yet reported of any newspaper representative or other person entitled to these courtesies, being refused or slighted, on making their needs and desires known. The enthusiasm among those attending the Chautauqua increases. The lectures and en-tertainments are of a much higher order than was expected even. TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME. The following is to-day's programme: :00 a. m.—Junior boys' and giris' class— Rev. James. T. Docking, tent No. 2. The first year's normal—Dr. J. C. W. Case,

At 8 o'clock Rogers' band gave the usual treat in the tabernacle. Prof. Case, who has charge of the chorus class, has in charge for this season the classes of seven assemblies. He paid a high compliment to our Chautauqua chorus class by saying that the singing here is above the average, and the students among the aptest to take to their work he has yet met. Dr. E. S. Hill and a number of friends ar rived yesterday morning.

The number of persons coming onto the grounds increases with the incoming of each train. Rev. J. W. Cowan, of Tabor, arrived yesterday morning. Mrs. Mills and daughters, of Tabor, are tenting here.

At 11:15 Dr. Duryea delivered his lecture on "The Unwritten in the History of Reformation." It was a grand literary treat. At 1:30 p. m. Dean Wright took up the first session of the New Testament, Greek school. The class was as large as any other department. He will have large classes wherever he teaches and whatever he teaches. At 2:30 Dr. Henson, of Chicago, delivered a lecture on "Grumbiers." The felicity of his very opening remarks settled the grumblers, if any were present. It was a most en-tertaining lecture. He will be on the plat-form again to-day, and the people ought to crowd out of the twin cities to hear this fleet-tongued orator.

After the lecture Miss Neally Stevens en-
