

RACING FOR THE PENNANT.

A Splendid Game Between the Two Leading Clubs.

OMAHA WON IN THE SEVENTH.

Mains Hit Freely by the Local Team - Cleveland and Andrews Make Home Runs - The Speed Ring

Standing of the Clubs.

Following will be found the standing of the teams in the pennant chase in the Western association up to and including yesterday's games:

Table with columns: Played, Won, Lost, Per Cent. Teams listed include Paul, Omaha, Sioux City, Des Moines, Denver, St. Joseph, Milwaukee.

Omaha 12, St. Paul 9.

That's nice, ain't it? And oh, you, how the White Sox did play yesterday.

And oh, you, how the White Sox did play yesterday. You should have been there and seen it along with the other 3,500 people who sat and split their throats.

Did Clarke was in the box for the Omahas, and is there yet, while Willie Mains, of St. Paul, doesn't know whether he is still on earth or not. Why, the locals hammered him all the while.

But you want to know how it was done. Omaha, as usual, came to the bat first, and went out in one, two, three order.

Then St. Paul had an inning all made a run. This is how it was done: Two men were out when Cackling Carroll walked up to the plate and smashed out a single. Then he went to third, and on Kelley's hit he actually stole home. But that settled it, for Kelley was run out between bases.

And then Omaha made another vain effort to get a run. But they didn't.

It was in their half of the second that St. Paul made another score to their side of the sheet. Werrick made a hit, and on Daly's out went to second. Then he stole third and scored on Broughton's walk to left field, and everybody in the grand stand took a long breath and held it while Omaha and St. Paul both blanked in the third.

They were again on the verge of the fourth, when Crooks made the first run.

This is how he did it: Willie Mains pitched four wide balls and Jack Crooks went to second and third and came home on a sacrifice by Walsh.

Andrews and Nagle went out. No more runs were scored until the sixth, when old Maria Halpen opened the ball with a home run. How the crowd did shout and howl and coochee.

But that was not all. Oh, no. Crooks got another base on balls, and on a sacrifice by Andrews went to second, scoring on Broughton's walk to left field.

Talk about shouting; the crowd fairly howled. Because, you see, that put Omaha one ahead.

But the visitors made one in their half, and the silence was so thick that it had to be out in order to see the game.

But the seventh, on the July seventh!

How the White Sox did play!

Willis got a base on balls and stole second and third. Then old Dan Clark chopped a hole in the air, but Cooney made a three-base hit and Willis went to second. Cleveland got first on an effort to keep Cooney from scoring and Walsh went out. Then Jack Crooks hit to left for a single and everybody on bases scored. Then Andrews hit the ball for a home run.

Who cares if St. Paul did make one in the seventh and four in the ninth!

Didn't Omaha make three in the eighth and one in the ninth?

AMERICAN HORSE'S ADDRESS.

The Indian Orator Speaks Before the Council at Pine Ridge.

BOUNDARY LINES INSISTED ON.

He Makes a Generous Offer With Regard to the Fair Sex of the Tribe - Great Obstnacy Still Shown

Still Laboring With Lo.

PINE RIDGE, Dak., (via Rushville, Neb.) June 21 (Special Telegram).-The Indian Orator spoke before the Council at Pine Ridge.

General Crook held a conference with his old-time scouts to talk over old times and incidentally to give them a little advice concerning their present and future actions. Most of those present agreed to sign the bill. While General Crook was meeting the scouts Governor Foster and Major Warren held a council with the Indian headmen, American Horse, who was their spokesman.

The meeting was opened by him desiring that the several tracts of land allotted to each one by the severally clause, should be measured and staked so that all could see how much land it contained. This request being granted, American Horse continued:

"I am going to feed you on the minds of my people every day, but will try to not offend you and make you sick. I do not say this for your displeasure, but for the sake of your reputations. We do not wish to tire you, but we are a slow people and want time to thoroughly understand this matter before we decide. Then, if they decide to sign it is well, if not to sign, well and good."

He then said that the Indians would be well pleased to see the reservation, as he understood it, at the time of the 1868 treaty, were then given and the truth of this assertion left to any of the Indians at any agency to be visited. The line of the reservation in the 1876 treaty was also traced and described. These things we supposed were done and were very much interested in what he thought that when the Indian laid down his name it would be forever. If there is a white man now living who saw this line, we would like him brought here. You are high people at home," alluding to the former officials held by them, "and I want this matter to be well known, so that when we decide to enter it we may not be disappointed."

Let us accept this or not, in forty years from now we will remember you, and if we make a mistake we will not blame you at all. We do not want you to regret it, for we will be no trouble hereafter. If you get homesick for your children, we will loan you our children. If you get homesick for your wives, we will loan you our wives to run about with you and entertain you."

Major Warner then addressed them briefly in English and they responded with gratitude for the friendly display and told them they would not promise anything hereafter. The Indian matter for the Dakotas as states and their representation in congress was explained. "The northern line of Nebraska is your south line, as fixed by the treaty of 1868. We do not change it. If a mistake has been made in the survey it shall be rectified."

He then said that he constantly alluding to the Nebraska line as wrongly surveyed and wanted to have someone here who knew where it ought to be. Time to thoroughly understand this matter, and practice of his talk, saying: "If at any agency the names are signed at once it may be right or wrong by chance. We do not want to give the least cause for misunderstanding whichever way we go, we alone will be responsible for any trouble coming hereafter. I am not a doctor, but I can put it together I can understand it then."

He was also afraid that if the land was put in several tracts, taxes would have to be paid. This they would not have as their titles are not of record, and was so stated by Major Warner and Governor Foster. Complete was made that the Indian had no means to secure money, even where consented to act as a herdsman or other employe. A former agent here was scored for his nepotism in carrying out the land to his brother in the commissary department, and his other relatives in other places.

The right of the squaw-men, half-breeds and Indians to have stores was also mentioned after which Major Warner gave them a little lesson in patriotism and love of the American flag, which caused Governor Foster to inquire if he was rehearsing for aught.

Governor Foster also addressed them, referring to the former opinion of what made a good man, and in closing himself, greatly pleased at the change.

Red Cloud handed in a paper containing the names of squaw men who were incorporated in the Indian rolls. The list shows that he is weakening in the force of his opposition to the bill, though it is highly improbable that he will ever be a signer of the treaty.

A two-hour conference held with him by Major Warner and Governor Foster before the council, in which he was thoroughly explained as did American Horse at the council. American Horse, in his talk about the poor quality of goods furnished them, asked Major Warner to give them a list of things to pick out a blind man to buy their goods for them, and suggested a better inspection business.

It is thought here that American Horse will sign to-morrow with part of his band, and the others soon. There are 370 names on the roll.

Burke Positively Identified by Ex-pressman Martinson.

ONE OF THE WILLIAMS BROTHERS

He Is Immediately Recognized Among Fifty-two Other Prisoners-The Suspect's Aunt on the Stand

Another Clue.

CHICAGO, June 21.-Martin Burke has been positively identified as one of the "Williams brothers," who are credited with being Dr. Cronin's slayers. The person who thus identifies Burke is Expressman Hakan Martinson, who was employed by one of the Williams' to convey furniture to the fatal cottage. The news of Martinson's identification of Burke was given to the press by one of the Williams' who was present when Burke was received to-night in a message to Chief of Police Hubbard from a Chicago office, as follows:

WISNIFPO, June 21.-Martinson instantly and fully identified Burke, picking him out of fifty-two men drawn up in a line in the jail yard in the presence of the Cronin attorney and Burke's lawyer.

Chief Hubbard replied that extradition papers for Burke were now en route and would be pushed forward with all speed possible.

Burke's Aunt Testifies.

CHICAGO, June 21.-The Cronin grand jury this morning heard the testimony of Mrs. Philip, an aunt of Martin Burke, the Winnipeg suspect. She testified that she had seen her nephew was a murderer, and described him as a weak and rattle-brained young man who lacked the courage to engage in a plot of such character. She was unable to identify the jury as to Burke's movements about the time previous to the murder, as he had been living at her house.

Frank Spelman, Dr. Cronin's friend, gave the names of several Clan-na-Gael men, who he thought might know something of the conspiracy or of the movements of the parties connected with it, and several new subpoenas were issued upon his suggestion.

Lulu Dinko was once more called to the stand and questioned minutely regarding the inner workings of the Clan-na-Gael and those of its Chicago members who he had found to be in contact with Cronin.

Edward Spelman, of Peoria, a prominent distiller and a district officer of the Clan-na-Gael for the territory of Illinois and Wisconsin, testified that he had seen Cronin at the organization and the power of the local camps to punish offending members. He stated the greatest penalty that could be inflicted upon a member under the rules of the organization was expulsion from the ranks, and insisted that if Cronin had been expelled from the ranks, it would have been tantamount to death in the eyes of the underworld, which he had seen practiced on the streets of Peoria. Spelman professed a high regard for Cronin, and assured the jury that his testimony was true and that he was not being paid to testify.

CONCERNING SUBWAYS.

The Omaha Company Pays Its Respects to Councilman Davis.

To the Editor of The Bee: In The Bee of several days ago, there was an interview with Councilman Davis regarding the Omaha subway company. In answer to the question, "Who compose the Omaha Subway company?" Mr. Davis says: "The old Dorsett party with Dorsett's name left out."

This answer contains in a nutshell the whole animus of the opposition of Mr. Davis and those who, with him, are opposing the Omaha Subway company.

And so it is the Mr. Dorsett and not the interest of the city that Mr. Davis is considering. The names of those composing the Omaha Subway company are on the county records, where Mr. Davis or any other person can ascertain what they are. Mr. Dorsett's name does not appear there, as he has never been any part of the Omaha Subway company. Mr. Davis' answer shows his utter ignorance or carelessness regarding a matter upon which he pretends to pass judgment.

Mr. Dorsett's name was only incidentally associated with the company in the discussion of the various systems, or rather material used in subways. The company does not ask, nor has it ever asked a franchise to put down the Dorsett or any other special system. It has asked a franchise to put down subways, and has always proposed to let those who put their money into it decide what system shall be used. Does Mr. Davis suppose that he can get up by himself a man or men who would put a hundred thousand dollars in a structure would use an inferior system when he could just as well use the best on an equal cost? Would he suppose that the guardian of capitalists who are seeking to put a great and desirable improvement in the city, would be so stupid as to consider a question from the standpoint of the city's interest, sets up an imaginary question to oppose, in which it is difficult for one to discover anything but a false pretense.

The Omaha Subway company is composed of citizens of the city, instead of the members of the various systems, or rather material used in subways. They have come before the council asking a franchise to put down subways, which is, at the same time, the most liberal to the interests which it affects, and the most economical to the city. The city of the city of any ordinance that has ever been passed before the council.

It is only necessary to read the ordinance for the franchise for subways, to see that the entire good faith in which this franchise is asked.

The company does now ask an exclusive privilege. There is nothing in the ordinance to prevent any electrical company from putting down their own or any other company proposed franchise for subways.

The company is required to commence the work within six months, and complete three miles of subway within one year, or the franchise becomes void.

Can any company, which is not acting in good faith, afford to spend time to get such a franchise? What good would it do to get a franchise do anybody, except to put a subway in with the best material, and as rapidly as possible?

It is evident to the most casual observer that it would be utterly worthless.

As it affects the electrical companies, it is a matter of their interest.

Section 4 is as follows: The grantee herein, its successors and assigns, shall rent or purchase a system of underground conduits or subways, upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the respective parties, and, in case they cannot agree, such terms shall be fixed by arbitration of three persons, one person to be chosen by the grantee herein, its successors or assigns; one person to be chosen by the city of Omaha; and one person to be agreed upon said arbitrators, or a majority of the same, shall bind and govern the use of said subways or conduits, by such terms as may be agreed upon by the city, the city of Omaha may fix a maximum price for the use of the same, which shall not exceed the cost of the same, plus a reasonable profit.

What is there in this that is not perfectly fair to the electrical companies? There is not a word in it that is oppressive, or any arbitrary or excessive charges. On the other hand, it practically puts in the power of the city of Omaha the rates of charges on the subways belonged to the city. How much better would the interests of those companies be subserved if the city owned the subways?

Besides, the city has an option on the purchase of the subways when built.

Section 5 is as follows: The city, the city of Omaha may fix a maximum price for the use of the same, which shall not exceed the cost of the same, plus a reasonable profit.

Section 6 is as follows: The city, the city of Omaha may fix a maximum price for the use of the same, which shall not exceed the cost of the same, plus a reasonable profit.
