

THE YOKE OF SELF-DENIAL.

Dr. Detwiler's Address to the High School Graduates.

THE ESSENTIALS TO SUCCESS.

Sound Advice to Those About to Enter Upon the More Practical Duties of Every-day Life.

Dr. Detwiler's Discourse.

Rev. D. S. Detwiler delivered the biennial sermon at Kountze Memorial church, yesterday morning, before the members of the high school class of 1889, and a large congregation composed for the greater part of the parents and friends of the students.

The church chancel and the pulpit were beautifully and lavishly decorated with flowers of many varieties. Below the choir gallery was the national shield, bearing the words "Welcome," and across the gallery was suspended the class motto: "Vincit Qui Vincit."

After the De Teum Dr. Detwiler offered the prayer, in which he especially implored the Divine blessing for the members of the class, their parents and teachers, the school superintendent and the board of education, and returned thanks to God that He had seen fit to spare the lives of the members of this class.

Beginning his address Dr. Detwiler bade the class and their assembled friends hearty welcome, and said he hoped that they would assemble there in the national shield, bearing the words "Welcome," and across the gallery was suspended the class motto: "Vincit Qui Vincit."

The yoke is a mark of servitude, a sign of bondage, and the yoke which is laid upon the neck of the man who is to be crushed under it, is a sign of bondage, and the yoke which is laid upon the neck of the man who is to be crushed under it, is a sign of bondage.
