

IN A VERY BAD CONDITION

Calhoun's Office Has Been Found By the Inspector.

MISAPPROPRIATION OF FUNDS

Alleged to Have Been Made By the Young Deputy—Sweeping Denial of All the Charges.

Bad Stewardship.

The result of the investigation made into the accounts of the internal revenue office at this place, by Special Agent Spaulding, of the treasury department, apparently confirm the reports that have been current for some time of a shortage in the accounts of Mr. John Calhoun, the deputy collector, and of a generally bad condition of affairs in the office.

According to Mr. Spaulding's report a shortage has been discovered in a number of accounts. The amount of money involved has always been made good by Mr. Calhoun, but the discrepancies still exist on the books, which are required to show the amount of stamps sold, and the names and addresses of the purchasers.

When Mr. Peters assumed control of the office he received for the stamps on hand and these were checked by Mr. Spaulding and found to be correct. It is alleged that Mr. Calhoun's shortage will amount to something over $2,000, of which sum about $1,000 has been already repaid to the treasury. Young Calhoun had full charge of the office, and, according to reports, kept the accounts in a very loose manner. It is stated that the shortage was occasioned by the appropriation of money sent to the department for licenses from various revenue payers in the state. Under the revenue regulations each brewer with a capacity of 500 barrels is required to pay $50 a year revenue tax and $100 a year for any increase over this amount.

The senior Calhoun has become security for his son until an examination of his accounts can be made by the department at Washington. In the meantime, young Calhoun is in the office assisting Major Dennis, Mr. Peters' new deputy, in the work of checking up his accounts.

Mr. Calhoun, Jr., was seen by a reporter, and in response to a query concerning the alleged shortage in his accounts, said: "There is no truth in the report whatever. Everything is all right, and when he went on assisting Major Dennis in checking a column of figures, Collector Peters said he was surprised at the report, as Mr. Spaulding had given him no intimation that a shortage had been discovered; in fact, he had thought that the accounts were all right. 'I am not affected by the matter,' said Mr. Peters, 'and do not wish to get mixed up with it at all.'"

HOW IT HAPPENED.

A Forbidden Freight Car Destroys the Warehouse. Work on the viaduct at South Omaha was knocked down by an engine Thursday week, as nearly all of the iron work will have to be sent back to the shops. The city engineer estimates the damage at about $1,500.

City Engineer J. B. Morris thinks the switch train was not run with proper caution, but it is impossible for any one not seeing it to tell the cause of the accident. "My theory, and only a theory, is that one of the cars caught the temporary support too close to the track and starting it, the guy rope was slackened and the rope catching on the refrigerator cars the two together pulled the underpinning and viaduct down. The whole floor and south side truss had been swung, and by Friday the whole structure had been seen. There may have been negligence by both parties.

P. P. Housh, who has charge of the viaduct work, says that one of the support posts was so close that the cars rubbed it in passing, but that the cars were going past for a month, and if the support doors had been kept closed the accident would not have occurred. The train was running very fast for that place. H. Van Alstine, driving a team of four mules, who had just fastened a guy rope to the driveway to Swift & Company's packing houses, says that the train was going faster than he had ever seen it during the nine days he had been working there. He found an accident. He saw the train, he was attracted away when the car struck the support post, loosening the guy line, which caught on Mr. Swift's refrigerator cars and all came down. If the door of the Swift car had been closed the accident would not have happened.

C. Callahan, foreman of switch crew No. 2, who is corroborated by all the train men, says that the train had just started up, was running over the four miles in an hour, that the posts were set so close to the track that the passing cars would rub, almost setting the posts in. He says that a notch had to be cut in one of the posts to allow the trains to pass, and the increasing weight on the weakened post caused it to bend causing the accident.

Only the day before the accident City Engineer Morris notified the bridge men that the support posts were too close and should be removed.

Mr. E. Slattery, of Delhi, Ia., says he has seen 14 years of age had a dreadful time with ulcers, sores and blotches which followed chicken pox. After using many remedies without benefit, she gave him Swift's Specific, which cured him sound and well.

Mr. Kierstead to be Re-appointed. Mr. Kierstead stated to a reporter yesterday that he had been tendered a re-appointment as a member of the board of public works by the mayor and that he would accept the offer.

How about your place? "How about your place?" was the question put by Mr. Broatch's enemies, who wish to make it appear that he promises more than one person the same position. "The only one he promised to appoint in my place was Mr. Alexander and that was conditional on my not wanting the place longer. I personally asked him to do so, as Mr. Alexander was my friend and a good man for the place."

How did you come to change your mind about retiring from the board? "During the past week I have been importuned by a great many business men to remain. They claim that it requires a year's experience to become conversant with the workings of the board; that I am familiar with the work; that I have worked in harmony with the other members and should stay."

Mr. Alexander has promised to reappoint me and I have accepted."

Mr. Alexander yesterday retired from the chairmanship for a member of the board which leaves Mr. Kierstead without a rival.

MYERS' EXPENSES

The Commissioners Likely to Cut Them Down a Little.

"I presume the matter will rest quietly for another month," said Commissioner O'Keefe, in reply to inquiries for information regarding the county hospital middle. W. F. Baker, the selected auditor, is examining the specifications, compiling estimates on the work, discovering points over which disputes have arisen, and getting ready to make a report as soon as possible. It is expected that the report will be a reflection of the fight in to-day's meeting of the board when Architect Myers' bill of expenses for coming to Omaha will be presented. It is estimated that it will amount to only three trips. One item of $204 is charged for coming twice from Des Moines to this city, and other $300 for being called here this week. When the bill was handed in last Wednesday Chairman Moran referred it, and the committee will be ready to report on it.

It is understood that the amount has been cut down by that committee to $60 per trip, and that the bill for the expenses of the board will have been paid already. This reduction is made on the plea that Myers received $6,000 for his services as architect, and that he can afford to come here when wanted for just about enough to cover his actual traveling expenses.

THE MORGAN SUICIDE.

Speculation as the Cause of the Unfortunate Act.

The announcement of the suicide of Chat Morgan in Sidney is still the subject of conversation in business circles. The act of the unfortunate man is generally deplored and sympathy is freely extended to the parents and bereaved relatives.

P. C. Morgan, father of the deceased, left on the evening of the 27th of May, accompanied by Frank Johnson, president of the State Bank of Sidney and the schoolmaster and business manager of the town. It is understood that the remains will be brought to this city to-day and interred here.

Mrs. Morgan with her two children is prostrated with grief at the residence of her father, Henry Yates. She may not be seen by friends and relatives to be comforted.

AN EXPERT OPINION.

The bank was organized in September, 1885, succeeding the old Exchange bank of Sidney. The paid-up capital was $100,000, and it has never been increased. "The bank," said a financial authority, "was swamping liabilities of $100,000 upon a capital of only $20,000. Up to last year, the chief officers refused absolutely to resign, and young Calhoun returned home and faced the matter alone.

The senior Calhoun has become security for his son until an examination of his accounts can be made by the department at Washington. In the meantime, young Calhoun is in the office assisting Major Dennis, Mr. Peters' new deputy, in the work of checking up his accounts.

Mr. Calhoun, Jr., was seen by a reporter, and in response to a query concerning the alleged shortage in his accounts, said: "There is no truth in the report whatever. 'I am not affected by the matter,' said Mr. Peters, 'and do not wish to get mixed up with it at all.'"

SHERIFF COBURN ELECTED AS HIS SUCCESSOR.

Sheriff Coburn was elected permanent assignee of the Bank of Omaha by 110 creditors of that institution. Some of the interested parties complained because more time had not been given them in which to file sworn certificates, as the law required them to do, of their various claims. Those who dissatisfied moved to adjourn until to-day but the motion was voted down by a large majority.

Sheriff Coburn, Gustave Benecke, E. Zabarski and H. C. Crum were in nomination for assignee. Seventy-one votes were cast, representing a total of $200,000. These were divided as follows between the candidates: Coburn, 46 votes, representing $200,000; Benecke, 15 votes, representing $47,500; Zabarski, 9 votes, representing $47,500; Benecke, 1 vote, representing $500. Coburn was declared elected. The supporters of Coburn, a terror howl, and charged all sorts of fraud, but finally subsided, accepted the result, and went away peacefully. The other candidates were paid by which all filing of claims must be made. The assignee must give a bond with in twenty-four hours for double the amount of the claims, and the creditors must not exercise control of the concern and settle up his business.

KILLED IN A SAND PIT.

A Laborer Buried Alive in South Omaha. While screening sand in his sand pit on South street, South Omaha, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, N. L. Trobaugh was killed by the bank caving in on him. Mr. Trobaugh was a single man, aged about thirty years, and lived on Seventh street near H street. The bank was about thirty feet high, and was built on a sand pit when the body was taken out life was extinct. P. J. Trobaugh, of this city, is a brother of the unfortunate man.

FIFTY THOUSAND CHECK.

The Trouble It is Likely to Occasion in Financial Circles. There is a move on foot among certain people in this city to test the right of the county and city treasurers to dispose of the funds which come into their hands as they are now depositing them in banks of their own selection and deriving pecuniary benefit therefrom.

The move is said to be made in the interest of a certain bank which has long desired to get the funds of the county and city. It is claimed that, one of these days, Byron Reed will deposit with the city treasurer, John Reed, a check for $50,000, in payment of the taxes of Mr. Reed and his clients. If this check is not deposited in the bank in question, the treasurer will be obliged to find it from the interest which would naturally accrue.

STREET-CAR CONSOLIDATION.

How the Motor People Wish to Engage in It. A stockholder in the Omaha Street railway company said yesterday: "It is a fact that the Omaha Motor company has sought to consolidate with us. But I dare not tell you on what terms. But it was up in the millions. There was a number of propositions, but many of them were really a joke. I don't know what they wanted. But the idea of wanting over a million for a few miles of rail is ridiculous. Let them operate their road for a little while and they'll find how much of a bonanza they've got. We paroled them anyway. They might have 'touched' us for a little while some time ago, but they can't do it now."

THE LAST DAYS.

No More Civil Jury Cases at This Term of Court. June term of court is drawing to a close. No more jury cases on the civil docket will be called. It is understood that Judge Wakeley and Deane will hand down a number of important decisions this morning. An immense number of suits has been continued already, though the continuance docket will not be called until Tuesday, July 2. Next week the judges expect to hear all national and state matters which are to be argued now, and reach a final adjournment by Saturday. The jury has been discharged.

COUNCIL BLUFFS.

An Editorial Opinion.

J. M. Briggs, editor and proprietor of the Anti, Ia., Republican, is in the city attending the Chautauqua. He came down on Thursday to spend a few hours and look around, and expected to return yesterday, but he could only consent to leave the assembly long enough yesterday afternoon to come to town and make arrangements to telephone with the office by the greatest assembly in the land. As splendidly as it has been developed I can see there is yet a great future for it. The management has shown energy, ability, and I feel under personal obligations to whatever organization that is the programme. There could be scarcely any improvement in this respect. The grounds are so well located for development and are so attractive now that I can see what a magnificent place it will be in a few years when the arena takes are made and the present plans executed.

The Last Alarm. The funeral of W. Cooper, the dead veteran fireman, took place this morning at 10 o'clock, under the auspices of the Veteran Firemen's association and the city fire department. The Rev. G. W. Crofts conducted the exercises. The body was taken from the residence, 124 Broadway street, at 2 o'clock and conveyed with the mourners to the church. The procession from the residence to the church was very large, and many of the friends carried beautiful floral offerings. The casket rested immediately beneath a floral bed wrought of white flowers, with a wreath of ferns and large white roses forming the clapper, which was decorated with colored bands aptly representing a fracture in the side running from the edge to the crown. The casket was surrounded by wreaths and clusters of heliopsis wrought into letters forming the sentence, "The Last Alarm." It was a beautiful and significant offering and was devoutly and respectfully received by the friends of Mr. Cooper's friends. On the casket were an anchor and pillow composed of tube and sea roses, and a white banner with the immediate friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper. The funeral was a most beautiful and appropriate service. The music consisted of an organ voluntary by Prof. DeNormandie and two solos by Frank W. Crofts. Mr. Crofts were beautiful and appropriate, and referred to the lessons to be drawn from the fireman's life, and the readiness to respond to the call of duty; his bravery that made him face death in his worst forms, and face it unflinchingly; and his sacrifices for the good of others; the noble and unselfishly to put all of his own interests aside for the time and sacrifice his life if necessary to save the lives of others. The conclusion of his remarks was a very beautiful eulogy upon the character and integrity of the deceased. The church was well filled, every human being present who could get out of duty. The interment was made in Fairview.

It is to be known that Mr. Cooper was a veteran soldier as well as fireman, and that he had served his country five years in the regular army, and was afterward transferred to the navy, where he served until the close of the war.

THE PARK COMMISSION.

The park commission had a meeting in the Paxton building yesterday afternoon and audited bills for work done to the amount of about $1,000. No other business of any consequence was transacted. Four of the board, Dr. Miller, Mr. Linsinger, Mr. Pratt and Mr. Prof. Miller, leave Sunday evening for a tour to Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago and other points for the purpose of inspecting the parks of those cities. While at Minneapolis they will get the plans for Jefferson Square, from the architect, Mr. Johnston, and on their return will begin work improving the square.

WANTS A TAX DEDUCTION.

Albert Woodcock, tax agent for the Union Pacific company, has been laboring with the county commissioners to get a reduction in the tax on the income since Mr. Hamersly died in some of the values placed on property belonging to that corporation. His chief complaint is directed against levies made on some of the bottom lands north of the shops. Blocks and lots were purchased, have been returned at $100,000, and blocks 323 and 324 at $100,000. The former, he claims, should be $30,400, and the latter $23,700.

THE DUCHESS HARD UP.

Ex-Mrs. Hamersly Applies to the Court For Pin Money. New York, June 28.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Lily W. Churchill, duchess of Marlborough, is in need of funds, and is applying to the court for an allowance of $100,000 out of the funds that have accumulated in the hands of the executors of the will of her former husband, Louis Hamersly, from the estate he left. Mr. Hamersly died in 1882. The present value of his personal estate is more than $1,000,000. In the contest over the will, which is still before the appellate court, the duchess has drawn from the income since Mr. Hamersly died at $25,000. There is now in the hands of the executors $100,000 income from the personal estate. In her petition the duchess says she has no other property other than from this estate. She is living at Woodstock, England. Franklin Bartlett, who represents the contestants over the will, put in a formal objection to the motion, but as the surrogate has previously held that the duchess is entitled to these accounts he will undoubtedly grant her request.

Soaps is but a relic of the past; Its great supplanter has been found at last, Which saves your time labor and expense, And proves each Soap a false pretense. What has accomplished this deed sublime, And made soap a relic of a barbarous time? Go ask the housewife laughing midst her toil, Pleased with a compound made from forest oil. She will answer: Gold-Dust for its grand work will show, Upon her line white as the fallen snow. No labor now required from iron mill eye, Its work is instantaneous. Let all these facts receive, Gold-Dust has gained the victory much desired. Competing Washing Powders are driven from the field, And despondent rivets to Gold-Dust meekly yield.
