A HORSE'S BROKEN HEART.

Some Good Stories of Men and Other Animals.

QUEER ADVENTURE OF A PIG.

How a Porker Lived Off His Own Fat for Five Month .- Dr. Shoemaker's Tumor-A Monkey's Suicide.

A Circus Steed's Pathetic Death. The emotional life of the horse is remarkable. There are instances on record where the death of the horse has been traced directly to grief. One instance is called to mind which occurred more than twenty years ago, says the Western Sportsman. A circus had been performing in the little town of Unionville, Pa., when one of the trained horses sprained one of his legs so that he could not travel. He was taken to the hotel and put in a box stall. The leg was bandaged and he was made as comfortable as possible. He ate his food and was apparently contented until about midnight, when the circus began moving out of town. Then he became restless and tramped and whined. As the caravan moved past the hotel he seemed to realize that he was being deserted, and his anxiety and distress became pitiful. He would stand with his ears pricked in an attitude of intense listening, and then as his ears caught the sounds of the retiring wagons he would rush as best he could with his injured leg from one side of the stall to the other, pushing at the door with his nose and making every effort to escape. The stableman, who was a stranger to him, tried to soothe him, but to no purpose. He would not be comforted. Long after all the sounds of the circus had ceased his agitation continued. The sweat poured from him in streams and he quivered in every part of his body. Finally the stableman went to the house, woke up the proprietor, and told him he believed the horse would die if some of the circus horses were not brought back to keep him company. At acout daylight the proprietor mounted a horse and rode after the circus. . He overtook it ten or twelve miles away, and the groom who had charge of the injured horse returned with him. When they reached the stable the horse was dead The stableman said that he remained for nearly an hour perfectly still, and with every sense apparently strained to the utmost tension, and then, without making a sign, fell and died with scarcely a struggle.

Yesterday there was considerable excitement occasioned by the suicide of one of a pair of little monkeys in J. H. Daniels' store in the Kimball house block, says the Chattanooga Times. Somebody had dropped a piece of hemp rope used in tying the bananas, and it fell within reach of the little animal. He was in dead earnest, and when he poked his head into the noose and jumped off, he was as completely hanged as any man that ever tried to take his own life. His companion would put open the eyelids of the dead monkey and look into his sightless eyes in the most pathetic manrer. She med perfectly desolate and realized that her companion was dying. A little boy was lifted over the transom and the dead monkey was cut down, but it was too late. He was cold and stiff. Ser- therefore, an officer brought him the geant Moss brought the piece of rope to the station house and will preserve it as a memento.

Dr. W. H. Shoemaker, a talented and leading physician of this city, says a Birmingham, Ala. dispatch has been declared insane, owing to having be-come a victim of the cocoaine habit. He became violent this morning, and to-night was sent to the state in-sane asylum at Tuscaloosa. While under the influence of the drug he, in December last, performed upon himself probably the most unique and most remarkable surgical operation ever recorded. He had been a sufferer for some time from a tumor on his liver. One night, while alone, he took his surgical instruments and deliberately cut into the abdominal cavity, cut the tumor from his liver, sewed the incision up, showed the cut and tumor next morning to brother physicians, and has since entirely recovered. His use of cocaine previous to this operation had become habitual.

A fight between a turkey hen and a rattlesnake is probably a very strange contest and something we suppose very few ever saw, says the Talmage Trib-une; yet such a battle was witnessed one day last week by Mr. A. Edmisten on his farm several miles southeast of town. Among the fowl possessions of this gentleman is a brooding turkey hen with a nest of twenty eggs in a young hedge not far from the house. While riding along the fence one morning, he noticed the hen leave her nest and act as though she was fighting something. Riding near he found she had attacked a rattlesnake which she evidently feared would rob her nest. She would make a enarge on the rep-tile and peck at it, while the snake would coil and strike back. After striking, the hen would sometimes grab it back of the head, shake and hrow it quite a distance. Once she threw it over her back nearly a rod be-had her. Feering that the snake might bite the hen, Mr. Edmisten hastily tied his horse and started to take a hand in the battle, but before he reached them the snake struck the hen, biting her on the side of the head at the edge of the flesh and bill. The hen. before so courageous, now seemed to loose all courage, for she commenced to run backwards, dragging the snake a short distance. After she escaped from it she dropped her head and sneaked off to her nest. Quickly dispatching the snake he fixed a salt and soda poultice, and bound it on the wound. The snake was over two and a half feet long and a very large one. As to the hen, she she showed no had effects from the bite.

F. I. Maybury has returned from a three month's trip in the south. He has a pair of canary birds, which have mated at his house for a long time. The female bird has laid eggs quite often, but before they were hatched she has invariably pecked them open with her bill. Last Sunday morning, says the Grand Rapids Democrat, his little girl came running to him and said that "Pete" (meaning the male bird) was laying an egg. He thought she meant the female, of course, and hardly noticed what she said, but shortly after he happened to be passing the cage, when he was surprised to see "Pete" actually laying an prised to see "Pete" actually laying an egg. The bird seemed in great agony. Mr. Maybury chloroformed him and he died shortly afterwards. "Pete's" body was cut open and it was found that he had actually died in his effort to lay the egg. The shell was not hard, but the egg was otherwise perfect. Mr. Maybury says that he will vouch for the fact that the bird was a male, because it has always been its mate that has laid the

Fat has its value, and here is an in-stance duly recorded in the municipal reports of the city of Dover, says the Liverpool Courier: On December 14, 1810, a pig was bur-ied in its sty through the fall of part of the cliff under Dover castle. The sky consisted of a cave in the rock about six feet square and boarded in the front, and when the accident happened the pig was in good condition, weighing about one hundred and sixty-five pounds. Five months afterward, on May 23, 1811, some workmen who were engaged in clearing away the debris of the fallen cliff mentioned to Dr. Mantell, a well-known geologist of the day and a fellow of the Linnean society, that they were sure they heard the pig whining.

He thought the statement incredible, but ordered them to clear away the chalk as fast as they could, and sure enough, when they got to the sty, the pig was there, weak and emaciated, falien to only a fourth of his former weight, but alive. In 160 days he had been strictly self-supporting, living on the stores of fat he had laid up in more prosperous times. There were, how-ever, evidences of his sufferings in the wood that shut in the sty, being niboled away in places, while he had licked the sides of the cave smooth in his attempt to obtain the moisture exuding from

John Thompson, of Kentucky, one of the Harrodsburg twins, told me another story yesterday about the mixing up of his identity with that of his brother Phil, says a writer in the New York Graphic. He told me he was sitting in the barber's chair, just off the house of representatives one day, when Congressman Murphy of Iowa, came along and stood beside him. "Phil," said he, "I want you to tell me how the bill is getting on?" "Of course I knew he meant Phil's whisky bill," said John, "and I told him it was getting on pretty well, but I wished he would drive up a few votes for it." I knew he carried a few hayseed members about with him, and I supposed he could swing them into any line. "Well," said Murphy, "I will do what I can for you, but you know it will be worth something. There's my Hennepin canal bill. It needs a let of boosting. So if you scratch my back I'll scratch yours." "I told him, of course, that that would be all right. He went away happy, and when Phil's bill came up Murphy's friends were all on the right side, but when Murphy's bill came along, even Phil himseif voted against it, for he never knew a word about the deal," said John, "I forgot to tell him anything about it."

The ancient Japanese custom of hartknri, or happy dispatch, has received its death-blow. For centuries it has been usual for any exalted Japanese dig-nitary who may have mortally offended his sovereign to receive a polite official intimation to the effect that his suicide will be pleasing to the authorities, and until recently it has been the unvarying practice for the offender to acquiesce resignedly, and, after summoning his relatives around him, to formally disembowel himself in their presence. If the culprit nappened to be of exceptionally high rank the sovereign would as a mark of honor, send him a jeweled sword with which to operate upon himself. But all these things are now of the past. Not long ago the mikado was grievously hurt by the words and conduct of a high court offi-cial. The man was an old and very valued servant of the crown; but his crime was unpardonable. Next day, a blade inlaid with gold and a handle incrested with diamonds, together with a sympathetic intimation that his early death would be regarded as a benefit to the empire in general and to the mikado in particular. The culprit received the sword with all proper respect, but as soon as the emissary had departed the wily Japanese—in whose mind European habits of thought have evidently taken a firm root-walked down to the quay, went on board a small steamer that was bound for Havre, and upon reaching Paris incontinently sold his sword of honor for £6,000

A sturgeon measuring over five feet in length and weighing 283 pounds was on exhibition yesterday at a store in Washingtion avenue, Newark, N. J., says the New York Star. The big fish was captured yesterday on the Passaic river, at Belleville, by William Gerow, Andrew Selgler and William Hudson, all of Belleville. They were out in a boat fishing when they noticed an unusual commotion in the water some distance below the bridge. On rowing nearer they discovered the sturgeon, and after an exciting chase managed to harpoon and capture the

When Gerow drove the harpoon, the line, of which was fastened to the boat, into the sturgeon's back, the big fish started to swim away at a rapid rate, carrying the boat with it. The three men were lying in the bottom of the boat, and the latter, go-ing up the river propelled apparently by no visible means, attracted the at-tention of Andrew Scharfensbery, who was out on the river in his boat. While Scharfensberg was waiting for the curious boat to approach, the latter collided with his boat and upset. Scharfensberg's boat was overturned, and when the four men came to the surface they seized the boat to which the sturgeon was attached, when the big fish continued on its course, dragging the over-turned boat and the four men with it. The boat was finally righted and the sturgeon, becoming exhausted from loss of blood, was easily captured and dragged ashore.

The Duration of Nerve Life. It has been estimated that we get a complete new outfit of brains about every two months, says the Medical World. The duration of a nerve's life is about sixty days. Each nerve cell has its own independent functions, subordinate to $1.10. the higher functions of the whole brain "en masse," and the latter acts as a sort of boss or overseer to the individual actions and life of each separate cell. Every cell is destroyed and renewed every two months, so we each and remove it slowly while the current get six brand new brains per year.

eggs, and no other birds excepting these two have been in the cage. He says he has heard of roosters achieving such a feat, but a canary "rooster" never.

There lived in the year 1890 in Spanish Town, Jamaica, West India, a colored woman named Maggie Judah, says the Pall Mall Gazette. She was what was called a Jew bastard—that is a cross between a Jow and a brown woman. She was then about thirty-five years old, rather stout, with good Jewish features. She sold ginger beer and cakes; she was evidently not a "Casar's wife." About that time there lived a clever black boy, Alexander Archpole by name, a gentleman's groom, who among other accomplishments had a very good voice. One evening Mr. Alexander Archpole went to Maggie Judah's cake stall, and, in the presence of an admiring audince, in a loud voice serenaded the said lady by singing "Maggie Judah." Miss Judah, not at all complimented, took legal proceedings against Mr. Archpole, and the case was tried in the police court before the Hon. Richard Hill, since dead, the well-known naturalist and friend of the late Mr. P. Gosse. Archpole's defense was that the song was a popular one, which was sung about the streets. Miss Judah's lawyer, however, was not to be humbugged. He contended that the song was not a decent one, and that it referred to Maggie Judah in a way derogatory to her character. The magistrate thereupon requested Mr. Archpole to sing the song for his guidance. Mr. Archpole then went up into the witness box and in a clear, musical voice sang "Maggie Judah." Of course the whole court house was convulsed, and it was some time before order was restored. This, however, did not help Mr. Archpole who was fined ten shillings and cost, or twenty days in the district prison. The fine was paid and Mr. Alexander Arch-pole lived for several years after, and, although he did not again serenade Maggie Judah, he nevertheless used to sing the song to his horses while rub bing them down. Maggie Judah has

I first bought them in London, and have continued using them since I came to this country in 1836. I am now over seventy-five years old, hale and nearty, and attribute my wonderful health to the persistent use of BRANDRETH'S PILLS Occasionally I have a bad cold or severe attack of rheumatism, indigestion or biliousness, but four or five doses of BRANDRETR's PILLS always cure me. Find the Marriage Valid. A young English blood of San Francisco has for a year past been badly enimored of a young lady of prominent family, who, after attending a San Fran-cisco school, was sent to a leading educational institution in Los Angeles. The girl liked her admirer very well, but not quite enough to venture on the uncertain sea of matrimony with him. The behests of love, however, sharpen a lover's wits.

Last Wednesday the young lady, accompanied by her ardent friend and several intimates, visited the Baldwin theater, after which supper followed. The wily lover shortly proposed as a joke that they be married by one of the party. The unsuspicious young girl consented and the formula was gone through. The next morning the as-Englishman that they were tied hard and fast, the officiating friend, a young attorney of good standing, being a justice of the peace.

She at once told her family about the affair. Prominent attorneys were consulted, dozens of telegrams and pages of correspondence were interchanged. with the result that an opinion was rendered that it would take a judicial de-cree to sever the bond. The girl's family are greatly excited over the incident and propose to enter court, when names will be made public.

Over the Pathless Ocean,

Athwart vast continents traversed by mighty iron thoroughfares, many armed like the fabled Briareus, myriads set forth daily to encounter the vicissitudes of travel, change of climate, unaccustomed food, and an atmosphere possibly miasmic, yet with a calm confidence that their health will be pre-served. When this confidence is based upon the possession of the supreme medicinal de fense, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, it is in-deed well founded, otherwise not. Brackish water, bad food, the wearying and other bad effects of railroad jolting, seasickness, and nervousness, aggravated by a journey and its attendant discomforts are shorn of their pernicious influence by this sterling altera-tive, purifier and compensating medicine, invaluable for dyspepsia, feebleness, nervous-ness, constipation, malarial disorders, rbeu-matism and gidney complaints.

The Flies on Us. The common fly lays more than 100 eggs, and the time from egg-laving to maturity is only about two weeks. Most of us have studied geometrical progression. Here we see it illustrated. suppose one fly commences "to multiply and replenish the earth" about June 1. June 15, if all lived, would give 150. Suppose 75 of these are females; July 1 would give us, supposing no cruel wasp or other untoward circumstance to interfere, 11.259 flies. Suppose 5,625 of these are females; we might have July 15 843,720 flies. It might cause bad dreams if carried on

IF not remedied in season, is liable to become habitual and chronic. Dras-tic purgatives, by weakening the bowels, confirm, rather than cure, the evil Ayer's Pills, being mild, effective, and strengthening in their action, are generally recommended by the faculty as the best of aperients.

"Having been subject, for years, to constipation, without being able to find much relief, I at last tried Ayer's Pills. I deem it both a duty and a pleasure to testify that I have derived great benefit from their use. For over two years past I have taken one of these pills every night before retiring. I would not willingly be without them."—G. W. Bowren 26 Fest Main at Carliele Pa Bowman, 26 East Main st., Carlisle, Pa. "I have been taking Ayer's Pills and using them in my family since 1857, and cheerfully recommend them to all in need of a safe but effectual cathartic."

"For eight years I was afflicted with constipation, which at last became so had that the doctors could do no more for me. Then I began to take Ayer's Pills, and soon the bowels recovered their natural and regular action, so that now I am in excellent health."—S. L. Loughbridge, Bryan, Texas.

"Having used Ayer's Pills, with good results, I fully indorse them for the pur-poses for which they are recommended." —T. Conners, M. D., Centre Bridge, Pa.

J. W. McMENAMY, M. D., President, And Consulting Physician and Surgeon.

Organized with a full staff of Skilled Physicians, Surgeons and Trained Nurses,

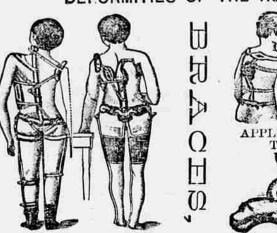

This establishment is a permanent medical institution, conducted by thoroughly durated physicians and surgeons of acknowledged skill and experience. The educated physicians and surgeons of acknowledged skill and experience. The Institute buildings, situated on the northwest corner of Thirteenth and Dodge streets, is composed of two large three-story brick buildings of over ninety rooms, containing our Medical, Surgical and Consultation Rooms, Drug Store, Laboratory, Offices, Manufactory of Surgical Appliances and braces, and the Boarding Department for Patients, in charge of competent persons, constituting the largest and the most thoroughly equipped Medical and Surgical Establishment in the West, one of the three largest in the United States, and second to none.

We have superior advantages and facilities for treating diseases, performing surgical operations, boarding and nursing patients, which, combined with our acknowledged ability, experience, responsibility and reputation, should make the Omaha Medical and Surgical Institute the first choice.

You can come direct to the Institute, day or night, as we have hotel accommodations as good and as cheap as any in the city.

We make this explanation for the benefit of persons who may feel inclined to go further east for medical or surgical treatment and do not appreciate the fact that Omaha possesses the largest and most complete Medical and Surgical Institute west of New York, with a capital of over $100,000.

DEFORMITIES OF THE HUMAN BODY.

TIES AND TRUSSES.

Best Facilities, Apparatus and Remedies for Successful Treatment of every form of Disease requiring MEDICAL or SURGICAL TREATMENT.

In this department we are especially successful. Our claims of superiority over all others are based upon the fact that this is the only medical establishment manafacturing surgical braces and appliances for each individual case. We have three skilled instrument makers in our employ, with improved machinery, and have all the latest inventions, as well as our own patents and improvements, the result of twenty years' experience.

ELECTRICAL TREATMENT.

The treatment of diseases by electricity has undergone great changes within the past few years, and electricity is now acknowledged by all schools of medicine as the great remedy in all chronic, special and nerve diseases, for nervous debility, paralysis, rheumatism, diseases of women, etc., and in many eye and ear diseases it is the most valuable of all remedies.

In order to obtain its full virtues, it is absolutely necessary to have the proper apparatus. We have lately purchased three of the largest and most complete batteries manufactured, so constructed as to give the most gentle as well as the most powerful current. Persons treated at this Institute by electricity recognize at once the difference between our expensive and complete electrical apparatus and the common, cheap batteries, in use by many physicians. Over 3,000 dollars invested in electrical apparatus.

PRIVATE, SPECIAL, NERVOUS AND BLOOD DISEASES.

We claim to be the only reliable, responsible establishment in the west making a specialty of this class of diseases. Dr. McMenamy was one of the first thoroughly educated physicians to make a special study of this class of diseases, and his methods and inventions have been adopted by specialists in Europe and America. He is the inventor of the Clamp Compress Suspensory, acknowledged the best in use. All others are copied after his invention. By means of a simple operation, painless and safe, recently brought into use, we cure many cases that have been given up as incurable by medical treatment. (Read our book to men, sent free to any

DISEASES OF THE EYE AND EAR.

We have had wonderful success in this department in the past year, and have made many improvements in our facili-ties for treatment, operations, artificial eyes, etc. We have greatly in proved our facilities and methods of treating cases by correspondence, and are having better success in this department than ever before.

We are fully up to the times in all the latest inventions in medical and surgical operations, appliances and instruments. Our institution is open for investiga-tion to any persons, patients or physicians. We invite all to correspond with or visit us before taking treatment elsewhere, believing that a visit or consultation will convince any intelligent person that it is to their advantage to place them-

Since this advertisement first appeared, many boasting pretenders and frauds have come and gone and many more will come and go, remembered only by their unfortunate

"A vise man investigates first and decides afterwards,
A fool decides first, then investigates."

The Omaha Medical and Surgical Institute is indorsed by the people and the press.

More capital invested, more skilled physicians employed, more modern appliances, instruments and apparatus in use, more cases treated and cured, more successful surgical operations performed, than in all other medical establishments in the West combined.
