Captain Phillip Loeffeld has introduced considerable patriotism into his cigar making business. His factory now turns out a brand that is called the G. A. A Wall Gives Way. Work on the new Sapp block was brought o a sudden stop yesterday morning, as the west wall of the Pacific house was on the verge of tumbling into the excavation for the foundation of the new building. The basement of the Sapp block will be about five feet below the foundation of the Pacific house, and as soon as the excavation was made below it the waits began to settle. A half dozen large cracks appeared in the south wall of the Pacific house, and several lights of glass were broken, among one of the large windows in the store room on the first floor. ade below it the waiis began to settle. A Several large timbers were at once set up to brace the settling wall and hold it in posibrace the settling wall and hold it in posi-tion, but it continued to settle during the af-ternoon, and the cracks grew wider. It is very doubtful whother the wall will stand until it can be torn down. It will be impos-zble to continue work on the Sapp block without removing this wall, and it has been decided to creet a partition wall. This will delay work on the Sapp block but a few days.

No Provision In the Iowa Law Against Prize Fighting.

DISCUSSING THE INDICTMENTS

The Hall of the Pacific House Totters -A Prisoner Makes a Break-Items General and Personal.

lowa Law on Pugilism. "This brings a matter to my mind that the public generally does not understand," remarked Colonel D. B. Dalley, ex-county prosecuting attorney, as he stood in front of THE BER office yesterday afternoon reading the bulletins from the scene of the Sullivan-

Kilrain fight, "Do you know that there is no law against prize fighting in Iowa. Well no law against prize fighting in lowa. Well, such is the case, and it can only be punished as a misdemeanor. I had occasion to look into the matter when I was prosecuting attorney, and I will tell you what I had to do. "You remember the fight that took place up on the island about two years ago! They intended to fight on this side of the river, and came over for that purpose. They had a steamer, and could easily escape the officers of the law if any attempt was made to molest them. I heard of the intended fight molest them. I heard of the intended fight and made out three sets of informations and got out warrants charging them with assault and battery, conspiring to indulge in riotous conduct and disturbing the peace. Those were the only charges that could be preferred under the statutes, as the offense ould not be construed to come under the head of duciling. The sheriff and I chased those follows way above the mouth of the Boyer river, and they finally made up their minds that they could not fight on Iowa soil, so they returned to the island, a little strip of land about 50x100 feet in size, which was located about forty feet from the Nebraska shore. We could see the fight going on, and viewed the party through our glasses.

"The question of jurisdiction came up as soon as the news of the fight was made public. The Nebraska authorities were not disposed to accept the statement that the fight took place on Iowa soil, and were preparing to make it warm for the particip and spectators, when two sports, one of whom was Mr. — (mentioning a well known sporting man of this city) went up there one day with shovels and dug several little ditches across the island. This allowed the current to cut across it, and it a root for days there was an island left. in a very few days there was no island left to tell the story, and there was nothing to prove where the fight took place, except the interested parties who, by the way, were not anxious to ventilate their knowledge. No, sir, prize fighting in this state is not a felony, neither is gambling, and right there we are behind Nebraska. The only way to punish prize fighting here is to prefer a number of charges of various misdemeanors, and even then the most severe punishment you can inflict is for assault and battery, which will cost the offender $100 and thirty days in the county jail, if the full limit is dealt out to him. If there is a big fight to come off, the only way to prevent it is to be on the ground with a sufficient force, as the punishment to be inflicted would not serve to deter the ambitious pugilist."

The Opinion of a Good Juror. "Are you satisfied with the work of the grand jury during the past week!" asked THE BEE yesterday of one of the members of that august body.

"Not by a d-d sight," was the prompt and vigorous response. "How can anybody be satisfied with it, whether a grand juror or an cutside individual. Why, I was so positive Friday noon that the chief of police and the mayor would be indicted that I would have been willing to have wagered every thing I have on earth on that result. I never was so surprised in my life as I was when the vote was taken, and the grand jury did not indict them. You see, it takes five of the seven votes to indict, and we only lacked one. It was the most foolish thing I ever heard of to indict Officer Thomas. I am of the cpinion that Alderman Lacy cannot be convicted, as the evidence introduced before the grand jury was very scanty, and much ess than a court would demand for convic-

There was far more evidence against Mayor Rohrer than against Marshal Guan-ella, but the former was allowed to go and an indictment was returned against the lat-ter. The chief of police should have been indicted on his own testimony, for he swore that he saw gambling going on about the grounds. Aside from this, Officer Thomas testified that the chief instructed him to allow the gambiers to work unmolested, as they had paid for that privilege.

"I am at a loss to account for the result.
If I aid not know that the members of the grand jury were all honorable, upright men I would be tempted to think that a little 'sugar' had been used to good advantage. I do not believe that this means could be used successfully, hence the only manner in which I can explain the matter at all is that heavy pressure was brought to bear outside. I believe that some very strong arguing and pleading was done outside the jury room, and that the result is due to that fact alone rather than to the lack of evidence to indite. With such a plain case against the mayor and his man Friday I can not help out think that the matter will be brought to the attention of another grand jury."

A Dash For Liberty. Henry Feidler, the young man charged with stealing one of Lee Bennett's shirts on the Fourth, had a hearing before Squire Hendricks yesterday morning and was found guilty. He was sentenced to thirty days in Deputy Sheriff Forman was taking him back to jail, when he jumped from the buggy and started across Bayliss park on a keen run. The officer was compelled to drive around, and the prisoneer quickly got out of sight. A search was made, but Feidler made good his escape.

The Foulard Fad in London This is a wonderful year for printed foulards, says the London Truth. Eng-lishwomen would not wear them for years after French women had adopted them and truly loved them; but of late we islanders have discovered that no material could possibly be cooler, while there are very lew so light and fresh. Quite a third of the well-dressed women in the park appear in foulard, and the chic thing is to have the sunshade made of the same, with the silk pinked-out at the edges and over-lapping the points of the frame in the form of a narrow frill. It is not a frill, but this ef-fect is produced by the silk being longer than the part which is stretched upon the frame. Liberty silk sunshades are made in the same fashion, and some-times in extremely bright and vivid carnation and nasturtium tints. A SINGULAR NEGRO CUSTOM.

Playthings and Medicine Bottles Placed on the Graves of Children. Says a Washington letter in the Cleveland Leader: While strolling last Sunday a little way outside the city limits near the head of Eighteenth street I noticed two carriages filled with colored people entering an enclosure. I saw that it was a cemetery and followed. A stalwart negro took from one of the carriages a small coffin, and, with the ceremony of a short, simple prayer, it was deposited in the earth. Six or eight friends of the dead babe stood with tear ful eyes during the few minutes occupied in filling the little grave, then they re-entered the carriages and drove away, upon the mound two or three infant's toys. Looking about among the large number of graves of children I observed this practice to be general. Some were literally covered with playthings. There were nursing bottles, rattle boxes. tin horses and wagons, "Noah's arks," sets of dishes, marbles, tops, china cups and saucers, slates, picture books, in endiess number and variety. Many of them had apparently lain there for years, articles of a perishable nature having been almost destroyed by sun and storm. There were few children's and storm. There were few children's graves which did not have something of this kind upon them. On many of the larger graves were pretty cases, statuettes, and other articles suitable to more adult years.

Upon inquiry I was told that this custom is almost universal among the col-ored people in the south. The sentiment that prompts it readily suggests itself, but it is not quite so easy to un-derstand another feature which I noticed. Upon fully half the graves, lying or standing, partly buried in the earth, were medicine bottles of all sizes and shapes. Some were nearly full, and all contained more or less of the medicine, which had no doubt been used in the effort to ward off the visit of death. The usual number of these on each grave was from one to three but on one I counted eight. The plac-ing of these bottles is a singular conceit, and would seem to border on superstition. Just what they do, it is not clear.

I was impelled by curiosity to inquire of two or three negroes about it, but they seemed no better able to explain it than I was. One old woman who was loitering about the cemetery said, in answer to my question:

"I kain't tell ye why, mister, but dey allers does it. When I was a chile l libed down in ole Virginny, an' was jes de same dar. I d'no, but mebbe dey arter dey's buried, but I don't see no good in it, nohow.'

This was the nearest approach to an opinion that I was able to get. I was inclined to coincide with it, such as it was.

MOTT STREET'S SHARP CRITICS.

Weak Points of the Chinese Actors Noted by Their Countrymen. The managers of the "Swentien Lok

Royal Chinese Theatrical company beginning to realize their re mistake in selecting for grave their opening night at the Windsor "Shi Lon Tan Moo," a sort of Chinese "Hamlet," instead of some of their lighter and livelier pieces, which have been subsequently produced, writes Wong Chin Foo in the New York World. To begin with, "Shi Lon Tan Moo" was badly played by most of the actors, savo Mr. Taka Wing, in Moo Quay Ying (daughter of the Tartar king.) She put in some good acting in the "Khu Tszing San Tong Lo Mo," when her father resolutely refused to let her husband go back to Nom Chow Choon You to see his mother, Jee Shi Mo Quay Ying's "Choo Fun Khi Low Koon," just before their parting, was also admirably done. The voice of Mr. Moo Sung Jee, the Chinese Hamlet, was very bad to begin with. In addition to this his whiskers were too long and too thick, so that his articulation appeared to be swallowed up. When he tried hard to tell the "Bien poo shon ahu" and his "Gan bon ya yee," who came to search the house of his master for Jow Yen, the Kean Ching, his frantic efforts could hardly be dis-tinguished by even the "Bien poo shou shu," who was only a few paces away from him. But Mr. Moo Sung Jee seems to be deeply in love with his long false whiskers. He utilized his hands and feet too much to please his audi-

Mr. Lee Yee, a Chinese dramatic critic on Mott street, said: "Mr. Moo Sung Jee's You Shi Lou is just like Yuh Noos get By—(Fishing on the dry mountain instead of the river.)

Mr. Kwong Wing Chong, a rich old Chinese merchant, fell in love with Sean Neon Koon Choo's maid, Ya Tow. He says the only fault he found with her was the constant use of her "Ta Whong Clan Tung" (wide sleeves in-stead of her scarlet handkerchief), and her habit of jumping into mid-air and landing upon her back and rolling upon the floor in horse fashion. Mr. Kwong lid not like this at all.

The other criticisms are mostly upon the last act, the "Yon Loo long Tay bieng Mai Ma Whey Chow" part.

The Chignecto Marine Railway to Rival Captain Ead's Project.

Across the narrow neck of land connecting the maritime provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia a work is now being constructed which, if a success, will cause Eiffel to look to his laurels is he expects to establish the claim he has made for his tower as being the eighth wonder of the world, writes an Amherst, N. S., corresponof the New York World.

This marvel of modern engineering is the Chignecto and marine or ship railway, a work which in prospectu has been before the people of this ceun-try for the last fifteen or twenty years. Grit and tory have alike hooted and advocated the scheme, as they happened to be in or out of power. Nobody beto be in or out of power. Nobody be lieved that the idea would be success fully carried out, but all scoffers were silenced by the arrival at Amherst in September last of the contractors Messrs. Dawson, Symmes and Usher These gentlemen at once began to push the work in a business-like manner, and will this summer find employment for about five thousand men. & Co. are well and favorably known in Canada rid the United States as wealthy and successful contractors, one of their last operations being the con-struction of the Poughkeepsie bridge.

The promoter of the scheme is H. G. C. Ketchum, whose pluck has at last brought its own reward. Mr. Ketchum will very probably be knighted if his railway proves a success.

The little isthmus across which line is being constructed from the Bay of Fundy to Northumberland Straits, a distance of seventeen and one-half miles, is historic ground. Here, within a stone's throw, are the old forts of Beausejaur (now Fort Cumberland) and Fort Lawrence. Here, in days gone by, Vergaur, with his regulars and Acad-ians, his habitants and Indians, strug-gled for colonial supremacy with Moneton and his brave New Englanders, with Lawrence and his British troops. Here the loyal New England states generously poured out their blood and gold in an effort to add one more jewel to the British crown. The contractors are under agreement to complete the work in two years from September, 1888, and also to operate it for one year after its completion. It will be built in the strongest possible manner, enabling it to carry the largest vessel or steamer, with cargo. The car or ship cradle will run on four lines of steal raits, each rail weighing about one hundred and ten pounds. No wood will be used; all bridges and culverts are to be built of hewn stone. At either terminus there will be two large docks, an outer one, 500 feet long by 300 feet wide, forming a receiving basin, and an inner dock, 250 feet long by 300 feet wide. These docks will be faced with hewn stone and have a water depth of sixty feet. The inner basin will be stied with an adjustable platform, operated by hydraulic pressure, for the purpose of raising and lowering vessels in trausit.

lowering vessels in trausit.

A ship or steamer making the overland passage with first floated into the inner basin, and the platform supporting the car or ship cradle sunk to the required depth. The ship is then floated until she rests securely on the cradle. Hydrighte pressure is then applied, and the platform spiced until the plied, and the platform raised until the rails on which the cradle rests are on a plane with those of the main line, wher a powerful engine is coupled on and away "sails" the ship past Beausejaur and Cumberland, overswamps and bogs, through forests of spruce and pine. until after sailing over some seventeen miles of dry land she is launched into the waters of the Bay of Fundy or the Gulf of St. Lawrence, as the case may be. Vessels taking advantage of this short cut will save some hundreds of miles of dangerous passage around the rock-bound coast of Nova Scotia. Es-pecially will it be a boon to the Gloucester fishermen bound to the Labrador coast, the Bay Chaleur, or other points north and east. Mr. Ketchum has some millions of English capital at his back, and the line will certainly be built and op-erated--always provided Mr. Frye and Mr. Butterworth don't scoop the whole business. Canada is young, but she is coming, and she will have the first practical marine railway in the world.
