UNION DEPOT PROPOSITION.

How It is Considered by Councilmen and Citizens.

THE REALTY DEMANDED.

The Convention of the Missouri Valley Stoncatters' and Quarrymen's Association - The Plattdeutschers Adjourn.

The Proposed Depot.

The conditions upon which the Union Pacitic and Burlington radroad companies propose to erect a union depot were announced to the council Tuesday night. They will be found in The Bre's report of the meeting. President M. Lee, of the council, was asked what he thought of the proposition. His reply was: "I have not given it hardly enough consideration to venture an opinion. It is my belief, however, that I would rather vote bonds to build a free bridge and let all the railroads come into our city that want to. The city and county might combine and vote on both propositions. It strikes me, however, that a free bridge would be better for us than a union depot just now."

In a burst of sarcasm and Irish wit, Col-nel Ford said. "I believe the council onel Ford said "I believe the council should be generous and make the railroads a present of enough money to build them a depot and viaduct. They're too poor to do anything for Omaha without being well paid." Ex-Councilman William F. Bechel predicts that the people would not vote $150,000 for a union depot and viaduct.

Councilman Snyder—I was in favor of having the original committee which had the land dealing business with the Union Pacific seen. I think if the records are hunted up it will be found that the company is com-pelled to build the depot itself. It is very cheeky to ask us to build a viaduct, and then expect us to vote $150,000 to the erection of the depot. I'd rather bond the people for a million dollars and build a bridge to bring eastern roads in here and then give a depot

Dr. Miller said that he was a member of the committee which acted many years ago in securing the bridge for this point as against the Child's Mill site. There was a great deal of trouble in securing the loca-tion, as has often been told. There was no understanding when the transfer of lots was made that the Union Pacific was to erect a union depot. The company pledged itself to erect simply a depot, and under that promise the present structure had been built. The doctor declared that he was in favor of accepting the proposition to build made by the joint companies, and thought it ought to be accepted. The city wanted a viaduct anyway, and it also wanted a union depot. The present plans had been maligned, but the building nevertheless would be an excellent one, even if the old one was merged in with it. The building did not interfere with the business. There was the depot of the Michigan Central in Chicago. It had been a ruin for twenty-five years, but that didn't hurt the road. A man's hat might not become him, but it would not therefore affect his brains. The doctor was satisfied that Messrs. Kimbail and Holdrege would live up to whatever proposition they made. He would want assurance, however, that they would use every endeavor to induce east-ern roads to make Omaha their termi-nus and he thought both of these would do that, but of course could not com-pel the roads to cross the river. The Union Pacific and Burlington roads had built a great deal, and should not now be compelled to do everything in the matter. While he was not willing to go out of the law he was in favor of accepting the proposition. Councilman Burnham said he would not give an official opinion. But, generally speaking, he thought it would be advisable where one could not get everything to get as much as he could. The company was not compelled to build a depot. It was, howeyer, compelled to build a viaduct, an ordinance framed by Connell requiring such to be done wherever a viaduct was absolutely required. But suppose the road was com-pelled to build a viaduct, that would not give The location of the ground desired to be transferred to the Union Depot company is

The committee which represented the city in the transfer of real estate to the company some years ago consisted of Dr. George L. Miller, Dr. Enos Lowe, Alvin Saunders, Ezra Millard and O. P. Hurford. The last mentioned lives up in the northern part of the state, and Messrs. Lowe and Millard are dead. Governor Saunders is in Salt Lake. Councilman Wheeler, speaking of the proposition made by the Union Pacific to the city for the construction of a union depet and a viaduct on Tenth street, said that if it were true, as he understood it to be, that the city has already paid the railroad company of bonus of $250,000 for this purpose, and for which no return has been made, he thought it would be very difficult for the company's officers to so fully convince the people that they are now in earnest, as to receive the benus they desire. He was not here, he said, at the time of the former transaction and had his information from bearsay only. Generally speaking, he scarcely fav

CLASHING MASTERS. Some of Them Refuse to Pay the Fifty

Dollar Assessment. The master plumbers think that they have practically won the battle waged with the journeymen's union. Five union men yesterday morning returned to work as follows: One for Wallace, one for McEwan, one for Rowe (helper) and two for Free. One of those who went to work for Free, was Toole, treasurer of the union.

The bosses assert that these men came to them of their own volition and offered to return to work according to the bosses' terms. The union men denounce Toole bitterly and, in fact, all the men who returned to work. There seems to be a disposition, however, on both sides to settle the difficulties, All the journeymen now ask is that the non-union men now employed be discharged and they will go back. The masters refuse to do this peremptorily, but it has been let fall by certain bosses that if the men would return they would work off the non-union men by easy stages and finally drop them.

All is not serene in the Masters' associa-tion. When the strike was first declared the bosses made an assessment of $50 each, to be used in defraying the expense of bringing men here. Four members tailed to liquidate and at the last meeting it was decided to expense of bringing men here. pel all those who did not pay up at once. Samuel J. Morrison was one of those in arrears and took softense at the action of the association, accepting it as a personal affront, and as a result sent his resignation as a member of the association to the secretary. An effort was made to dissuade him from his purpose of leaving the organization. and promises were made that the action would be rescinded, but this availed nothing as Mr. Morrison withdrew from the associa-tion and employed union men.

Tuesday, Mike Conway went into the office of Inspector of Plumb-ing Duncan and proceeded to give that officer a severe tongue-lashing. Duncan, fear-ing personal injury, called upon a policeman to remove Conway, but the latter walked way unassisted.

BENEFITTING THEMSELVES.

The Publishers' Combine Will Not Make Books Cheaper.

"It won't affect the prices of school books in Omaha," said a leading dealer when ques tioned as to the result of the combination formed by the leading publishing houses of the United States for the control of the sale of educational works. "The main object of the association," he continued, "is, so they claim, to reduce the expenses of selling publications by changing the methods of competition among the different houses. Travel ing salesmen are to be dispensed with and and competition with rival houses will be carried on by means of letters and circulars directly from the headquarters of the com bine. Such a combine was formed ten years ago. The Appleton's broke that trust by getting out a better book for less money The Appletons were finally taken into the combine. Then the Harpers got out a series of text books and have them pretty well introduced now. Both of these firms are in the present combination. The price of books will probably not be changed, the result of the combine being an immense saving to the publishers, resulting from their taking travcling men off the road and greatly reducing of Eighth and Dodge streets. The building inspector is powerless to obey the council's order, as no place has been provided upon which to move the structure. It would be a big job, too, to move the house. It has stood in its present location for twenty years and the property all around it has been graded until the house is now in a basin and would have to be raised out of a deep hole before it could be moved at all. I would not be sur prised if a tie-up between the Union and Canadian Pacific roads were made. The fact of the matter is, the Union Pacific is com-pelled to do something of this kind. Its rivals all have an eastern outlet through their own road. The North-ern Pacific has absorbed the ern Pacific has apported the Wisconsin Central and this lets it into Chicago. The Canadian Pacific spans the continent with its own road. The Street Blockaded. Although there is an ordinance which specifies that the railroad companies shall not block the streets by its cars, but little attention is given it by the Union Pacific, as far as the Tenth street crossing is concerned. Yesterday morning two cars were slacked back on a flying switch but without sufficient force to clear the crossing. Traffic was for a time seriously impeded. Officer Curry came to the rescue, and not only instructed Yardmaster McCoy's assistants to remove the obstructions, but also lodged a complaint against McCoy for obstructing the crossing. MAY SUE THE POUNDMASTER, John Jacoby Will Seek Reparation for Damaged Chattels. There is a suppressed feeling of exultation among the attaches of the police department over the prospect of a suit in court that will keep Poundmaster S. D. Cory away from the police station for a few days.

John Jacoby, a Council Bluffs expressman was arrested last week for hauling goods without a license. When placed under arrest his team and load of goods were turned over to Poundmaster Cory, who tied the mules up in the shanty which he calls the "city pound," and dumped the load of furnitue into one end of the place, among a lot o dirty boxes and debris that would naturall; dirty boxes and debris that would naturally accumulate around such an establishment. The next morning one of Jacoby's mules suffered a severe kick on its shoulder, both of them were sick from eating green grass, and the rats and mice had seriously damaged the upholstery of the furniture. Jacoby has decided to bring suit against Cory and his bondsmen for damages, and the pupers will bondsmen for damages, and the papers will be filed in a few days.

The shed which Cory uses for a pound is: square room without a pole, rope or any thing that could be construed into a means of separating the horses from each other. From quently there are a dozen horses in the place and they are all tied in a row around three sides of the shed in admirable kicking distance of each other with nothing whatever to prevent them from kicking.

Jacoby complains, too, that Cory fed his mules on green grass, making both of then sick. This charge was somewhat of a sur prise to those who know Cory, until it was learned that the "grass" was cut by the pound, so that the only labor required of the poundmaster was that expended in carrying the grass a distance of about ten yards. There have been other complaints made of the feed at Mr. Cory's boarding stable, but the complaints have referred to the meagre quantity rather than the quality of the fod der. In fact it has been charged that stock confined in the pound are supposed by the oundmaster to be subjects for fees instead

Mr. Cory is a busy man. At 8 o'clock every morning he may be seen mounted on a mor or less flery broucho, heading for the cit from his rural home. He arrives at the pound at 8:30, and after a hurried examina-tion of the pound to see how many cows his hired men have corralled during the night, he rushes over to the police station. From his arrival at 9 o'clock until late in the afternoon he is very active. He "instructs" General Smith in the matter of drawing up complaints, shows the police clerk how to file them, helps the court off-cer arraign the prisoners, advises Judge Berka as to what is proper in the way of sentences, and tells the reporters how the matter should be written up. At the close of the court in the afternoon be visits the various offices in the city hall, gives instruc-tions to his menials regarding their maraud-ing plans for the night, and goes home. Poundmaster Cory complains to the city ouncil that he is not making a living out of the pound business, and wants to be made dog poundmaster as a means of increasing the revenues of his office.

THE TRAGEDY AT GRESHAM.

Leese Puts a Constguction on an Important Statute-Big Day of the Camp Meeting-Tired

Bondsmen. LINCOLN BUREAU OF THE OMARA BEE, 1029 P STRUET, LINCOLN, July 17,

The board of public lands and buildings net yesterday and awarded the contract for the erection of one three-story brick workshop, with stone basement, and a boiler house and smokestack at the state indus trial school at Kearney, to Mr. O. G. King, of Omaha. To this W. T. Scott, a contractor and builder of Kearney, took radical exceptions, because of a supplemental bid that had been made by Mr. King, which secured him the award. It seems that Mr. King put in a bid to do the work indicated for $24,975, which was so much lower than the competitive bids that the board thought there was a mistake somewhere and wired him to know whether or not his bid included the erection of the boiler house and smokestack, which is said to have been a part of the plans and specifications. King replied, stating that his bid only covered the erection of one three-story building, but he further stated that the plans he had when he formed in the stated that the plans he had when he figured on the contract had nothing to say about the boiler house and stack, and Deputy Commissioner Carter confirms this statement. A supplemental bid was therefore permitted by the board, and Mr. King covered the conby the board, and Mr. King covered the construction of the boiler house and stack by a bid of, $7.171, which raised it to $32,146, and as his bid was still the lowest the board awarded him the contract by a unanimous vote. Upon the ground that a supplemental bid was subject to competitive bidders, after the bids had been opened, Mr. Scott interposed objections and visited the board this morning accompanied by two attorneys, who insisted upon a revisal of the award in tavor of Scott, as his bid of $33,465 was the next lowest. The board took the matter under brief advisement and concluded that there was ground for the kick and annulled the contract, but for the kick and annulled the contract, but instead of giving it to Scott will advertise for new bids and so the matter rests. It is said that this will give satisfaction and heal

The fact that Steinbock hung himself, as alleged, because he was sensitive and could not bear to rest under the suspicion of having com-mitted so foul a crime weighs very little with the father of the murdered girls. Bowen, My Dear Sir: In reply to yours of recent date I will say that if we look at the whole law we find that under chapter 40 there are three commissioners, one of whom is a physician. Section 23 provides that the commissioners may appoint some regular physician of the county to make a personal examination, and the physician must visit the patient and make his report. This physician may be the one on the commission or some other person, and whichever it may be he is the and whichever it may be, he is the one spoken of in section 50 and entitled to $5 for each case and mileage in going and the examination. Bank Examiners at Work.

The bank examiners, Messrs. McNaughton, Brink and Sanders, commenced their work this morning. Contrary to expectations, however, they began their duty as nosers in this city and they will pass upon the status of the banks here, under this jurisdiction, before striking the country towns in their respective districts. It is probable that this is what they meant in stating last week that a series of surprise parties were in store for some of the banks and bankers of the state.
