Parent Institutions Can Not Hold Up Branch Banks.

LINCOLN BUREAU OF THE OMARA BEE, 1

1029 P STREET, LINCOLN, July 20. The board of bank examiners is hard at work. It appears that the new law has been vaguely construed by the bankers throughout the state. New complications are arising daily. The latest relates to the relation of branch to parent banks. It seems that there has been quite a disposition to run several banking institutions on the same capital. To settle the intent of the law as to this, once and for all, one of the examiners called the board of commissioners together this morning for a ruling on the point in question, and after a brief discussion it was decided that parent and branch banks were separate institutions, must be subject to separate examinations, have a separate capital, and make a separate report to the auditor of state.

"If this is not the intent of the law," remarked one of the commissioners during the consideration of the point in controversy, "a bank of $300,000 paid up capital could start fifteen or twenty branches upon the credit of the parent bank and gain the deposits of the people in as many different cities without advancing one single dollar to the branch business, and, in fact, depend entirely upon the credulity of the depositors to run the side

This made the point manifestly so clear that the bank examiner who called the com-missioners together said:

"I have a case exactly parallel on my hands now. One of the savings banks of the state advertises a capital of two or more hundred thousand dollars and has established a branch in a neighboring city, which claims the same number of dollars capital stock. In fact it does business on the credit of the parent bank, and now has $150,000 in deposits This information led to divers exclamations of wonder and astonishment, and the fact went forth then and there that branch banks must be brought to time.

Charles Anderson, of the Cheyenne county bank, writes the banking department that he closed his bank to-day at 4 o'clock, paying off depositors in full. He also states that the only banking business he will transact after the hour cited will be to pay off parties whom he could not reach at the closing hour.

A Suspicious Death. Harry, the adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoxar, who live at the corner of Seventeenth and W streets, died last night. The death was reported under very suspiclous circumstances. It was so sudden that the neighbors became suspicious, notwithstanding the fact that Dr. Risser had written a statement that the death was the result of summer complaint. It seems that this is the third child that Mr. and Mrs. Hoxar have adopted during the past few months, and that they have all died within a re-markably short time after the adoption, Dr. Shoemaker, the coroner, was called in because of this alleged suspicious circumstance, and with the assistance of other physicians made

I am told, too," said a prominent lawyer of the city "that the only thing those men did was t pull the staples and take the wire from the posts at the point where the would-be squat ter owner had been in the habit of entering upon the lands in question. I learn, also, that the judge imposed the fine because it is said to have been proven that Frank I and H. D. Hathaway owned the fence: that is, they put up the fence, and made it a fix ture of the lauds belonging to the state. I is to be inferred that the judge considered the fence in the light of private property. but how it could be considered as such, an at the same time an apparent fixture to the nds to which the Hathaways had no earthly right I fail to see. But however it be, the time has certainly come to teach a lesson that won't be forgotten in a day or a Nine citizens have been arrested and apon by the parties who put up the fence en closing them. These citizens had just nine times more right to go upon those lands to secure some of the grass that grew thereon than either of the so-called owners of the fence. They are citizens of the great state of Nebraska, a part of the state, representing nine to one of its population, and they certainly have some rights that ought to be considered. Now, if the board of public lands and buildings which passed the resolution declaring it tres pass to take from any of these lands, either grass or sand, has any conceptin of justice, the attorney-general will be authorized to commence suit against the parties who have been posing as squatter owners.'

Minnie Landauer Claims Damages The petition of Minnie Landauer against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad company will be filed in a day or two in the district court, alleging that damages to the extent of $2,500 were sustained by her on July 5, when alighting from the train at Cushman park. It is learned that the relator sets up negligence on the part of the defend ant railroad company in failing to stop a sufficient length of time to permit her to alight at the point to which she had purchased the permit to ride. Miss Landauer is seventeen years of age, and has been attending business college in the city. It is feared that her injuries are permanent. She is still under a physician's care, and the announce ment is made this morning that one of her ribs was broken in the fall. This organization has from the outset been self-supporting, having never received help from the boards of the church. A mission Sunday school is carried on at the corner of Thirty-ninth and Jackson streets. It has from the beginning taken position as one of the most energetic and vigorous Presbyterian churches in Omaha, and its prospects are the very highest, A Review of the Past.

Very cool and homelike was the little church on the corner of Twentieth and Capital avenue, and withal a very busy place last week. Seated well up on the hillside the brown old sanctuary is high enough to share in all the winds that blow. These were boons to the ministerial institute in session there last week. Between sixty and seventy ministers of the christian denomination were present.

All through the week work was in progress, forenoon, afternoon and evening. "I preached here twenty-five years ago, remarked Rev. R. C. Barrow, looking away across the rail in front of the auditorium or he opening night, "but the scene was quite different. I have been traveling about as a church missionary for a quarter of a century, but nowhere do I observe such remarkable changes as in Oninha. "At the time of which I speak the site of this church, now the corner of Twentieth street and Capitol avenue, was a tangle of hazel bushes. There was but one dwelling house so far out of town—a slab hut occupied by W. H. Williams, a young school teacher, who later became missionary of the Christian church at Jamaica. I was stopping then with Bishop Clarkson, whose residence was at the present intersection of St. Mary's avenue and Twentieth street. We had to blaze our way through the bushes there and came near getting lost. My comrade berated the folly of people holding town lots in that vicinity at the ridiculously high figure of $30 each."

A change even more marked has come to the Christian church in Nebraska. Only a few years have passed since it was weak, poor, struggling for a foothold here in the west and regularly obliged to accept aid from the east. To-day it ranks second only the Methodist church with 14,000 members and 400 ministers.

After next October until the entire completion of the building, the congregation will worship in the basement, leaving the antiquated struc ture on Seventeenth and Davesport open for removal or sale. A meeting of the cathedral chapter will be held July 25.

Rev. C. T. Gardner, Dean Gardner's asistant, has returned from his midsun vacation. The iron rail erected on the wall in front of Trinity cathedral is not only useful but ornamental as well.

The music lovers of Trinity cathedral demand a new organ, to replace the very old and unsatisfactory instrument. The singing at the cathedral is wonderfully good now. The boys are in excellent training and Mr. Jules Lumbard never sang so well before.

Services hereafter, until future notice, will be held in the crypt at 7:45. Added earnestness is sought to be derived from closer contact in the smaller apartment. St. Mathias church near Brownell hall is nearly completed and will probably be ready for occupancy this early autum. The boys for the choir are being selected and re-hearsed by Mrs. Cotton of the Cathedral choir. A union of the two choirs on festal occasions may now be expected.
