Burglars Again at Work. A daring burglary was committed at the residence of Finley Burke Esq., No. 705 South Sixth street, at an early hour Sunday morning. Entrance was effected by turning the key of the kitchen door with a pair of nippers. All of the solid silverware in the house, valued at nearly $300, was carried away, the thief seemingly having no use for the plated ware, which was left behind. Mr. and Mrs. Burke and the servant occupy the sleeping apartments up stairs, and were not aware of the visit of the midnight intruder aware of the visit of the midnight intruder till they came down stairs at 4 o'clock and finding two gas jets lighted, which the burglar had lighted and left burning, proceeded to investigate. No clue to the burglar or burglars has yet been attained. It is fair to presume, however, that it was done by a professional, as the key of the kitchen door bears marks of nippers being used on it and as the most valuable of the tableware was taken, the remainder being untouched.

Certain parties, without brains enough to originate an idea and without energy enough to work up a trade on their own brands, are advertising themselves as sole agents for the celebrated Santo Rosa cigars, which we introduced ten years ago, and which now en-joy the reputation of being the best and most widely known of any 10 cent cigar sold in the entire west. We therefore desire to in-form the trade that we always have been form the trade that we always have been, and are still sole owners and proprietors of this brand of cigars, and wish to caution the trade that all brands of Santo Rosas not made in factory No. 121, first district, Pa., are base imitations of the weil known Santo Rosa. See that the label has printed thereon the words P. & M.'s Santo Rosa Cuban Made. All others are imitations and are of inferior quality.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY ROOMS.

A Blaze in the Early Morning Nearly Causes the Destruction of J. J. Shea's Residence-Minor Items.

How the Brick Paving is Wearing. A small section of brick paving on Willow avenue, in front of the residence of Hon. W. H. M. Pusey, was removed yesterday by the waterworks company for the purpose of repairing a leak in the main. Considerable inerest was manifested by a number of citisens to see how the paving had worn, and they examined the removed bricks carefully to note the changes of a year. This paving was put down late in 1888, the brick being laid on an eight inch bed of sand, under which was a layer of coal cinders. It was the first work of the kind ever done by the contractors, Wickham & Co., and the material used was the ordinary hard brick turned out by the Council Bluffs brick kilns. All of these facts did not tend toward secur-ing an unusually fine job of brick paving, but the work is there and speaks for itself was a matter of general surprise to find the brick so little worn, as even those in the center of the street, where the buik of the travel had been, showed scarcely any perceptible effect from the constant passage of teams for the past year,

Bricks of different degrees of hardness showed a difference in wear, very much in favor of the harder ones. The action of last winter's frost was not noticeable, as there winter's frost was not noticeable, as there were very few broken bricks, and the breakage of some of them is to be attributed to the passage of heavily loaded drays.

The majority of those who were heard to express themselves stated that they were more heartily than ever in favor of brick paving. Said one well known citizen and heavy taxbayer: "This just suits me, and I want to see more of it. It is one of the best thingsCouncilBluffs has struck in a long time. I think that perhaps we can get better brick I think that perhaps we can get better brick than this, although even this is a long way ahead of cedar blocks. You see, when this paving wears out and has to be replaced, the foundation is still there and will remain there until the end of the chapter. All we will have to do is just to lay another lot of bricks and the work is done. That plank foundation under the cedar blocks will not last any longer than the blocks themselves. If one of these bricks gets crushed or broken, or a little strip becomes too badly worn, just pull them out and drop new ones in their

"Oh, it's a big thing for the city money left right at home, plenty of work for a large number of brickmakers, and best of all, cheaper and more durable paving. This job nust not be taken as a fair sample, for we have every reason to expect better and more satisfactory work next time. The work is perhaps as well done as it could possibly be, but, of course, better brick would make bet-ter work. You will notice that the second course of these bricks is not worn at all. They will wear out several layers of surface bricks, and a single layer for the surface is not going to cost a mint of money.

"I want to call your attention to one thing in connection with this brick paving, and one of which I have seen no notice in the papers, which is the fact that a brick payed street is much less dusty than one paved with cedar block. If a block paved street is sprinkled, or after a heavy rain, the dust will be blowor after a heavy rain, the dust will be blowing in clouds in two hours after the sun comes out. You will not find it so on this street. This sprinkling of gravel and the brick underneath seem to hold the moisture, and the dust is never troublesome. One sprinkling here is of more lasting effect than half a dozen on the block paving. It was supposed that a great deal of trouble would be caused by prick dust but I have yet to be caused by brick dust, but I have yet to hear the first complaint. It is so clear through. The disadvantages that were predicted have failed to materialize, and many a ivantages, of which we had no idea, have developed. For these reasons I am a staunch rter of brick paving, and I would be giad to head a remonstrance to the city council against another square yard of block pav-

The New Library Quarters. The Council Bluffs free public library is finally settled in its new quarters in the Merriam block and the city may well feel proud of their neat and attractive appearance. The room occupies the entire north end of the third floor of the building, and is well lighted and perfectly ventilated. The reading room is a cool and spacious apartment, in which everything is arranged with an eye to the comfort and convenience of the patrons of the institution. Paper files, containing copies of the leading newspapers of the country, are within easy reach, while books of reference are arranged in cases at the sides of the room.

The circulating library, which is separated The circulating library, which is separated from the reading room by a neat railing, is now in position upon the shelves of the massive new cases, patterned after those in the St. Louis library and constructed of the clearest oak. In the rear of the room the congressional library is being placed in posttion. The books are already classed and will soon be on the shelves. The room presents a most pleasing and inviting aspect to the visitor, which, coupled with the courtesy and kind attention invariably shown by the librarian, Mrs. M. F. Davenport, renders the library room one of the pleasantest spots in the city in which to spend an hour to good advantage.

A Destructive Morning Blaze. What might have resulted in a serious conflagration occurred at an early hour yes terday morning, at the residence of J. J. Shea, No. 300 South Eighth street. At about a quarter of 6 o'clock Mr. Shea was awakened by the crackling of flames, and hurriedly started on a tour of investigation. He could find no traces of fire on the first or second floors and ascended to the attic, where he was startled to find dense clouds of smoke issuing through the door at the head of the stairway. A telephone call was inmediately turned in for the fire department and the neighbors who hastened to the scene began to work vigorously removing the fur niture from the burning structure. The de-partment was misled by the call and made a partment was misled by the call and made a run to the "Q" depot, but, notwithstanding this mistake, reached the spot in good time and by premot and vigorous work soon succeeded in getting the flames under control. Two lines of hose were extended up the stairways to the attic where the dense smoke and heat combined to offer great obstructions to the firemen, but they faced it manfully and by tudicious work succeeded in saving and by tudicious work succeeded in saving and by judicious work succeeded in saving

not only the building but the furniture as well.

The rafters were nearly burned off, but the fire had not broken out, which was owing to the slate roof and the substantial brick walls. The floor was nearly burned through, but aside from this the damage by fire was small. The east end of the roof settled owing to the non-support of the rafters, and a part, if not the whole of the roof, will have to be rebuilt. The greatest damage was done by water, which ruined the plastering of the whole house, and soaked a part of the furniture and carpets. It is not yet known what the total loss will be, but it will hardly exceed $2,000, which amount is covered by insurance. The structure was one of the handsomest residences in the city, having been completed about a year ago at a cost of over $8,000.

The cause of the fire is unknown. There had been no fire in the house for some time, except a graphly story and no satisfactory except a gasoline stove, and no satisfactory solution of the mystery has been arrived at. spontaneous combustion is the theory meeting with the most general acceptance. It was very hot under the slate roof, but windows had been left open to prevent it from overheating. Theories of mice and matches and other kindred causes are advanced, but they are unsupported.

The Progress of the Liquor War.

The latest theory advanced with regard to the recently instituted proceedings against the saloon keepers of the city by the whisky selling alumni is to the effect that the latter have gone into the business for two reasons -first, us a blackmailing scheme, and second, to assist some of those now running to continue in business. "Why, the whole thing is just as plain as the nose on your face," remarked a Broadway business man yesterday afternoon. "It's too transparent to delude for an instant any thinking man who has ordinary perceptive powers. They propose to institute these suits against the saloon keepers, without any intention, however, of doing them any harm, or causing them any trouble, except to pay them so much a month for keeping up their legal pro-ceedings. Then, you see, when Sims, the attorney for the bona fide temperance folks, attempts to sinch them, they will get up in their seats and plead that there is an action pending against them. Oh yes, the whole thing is admirably conceived, but it will hardly stand. Sims will have to prove a conspiracy, which it will not be difficult to do, under the circumstances, and the court will not sustain the former case. If you think for a single minute that the ex-salor men are really trying to down the saloris, you are greatly mistaken. They are still figuring to get a haul at the cash that is raked in over the bar, and I rather imagine they will come pretty near doing it.'

A Messenger Boy's Narrow Escape. Minard Shoemaker, a messenger boy in the employ of the American District Telegraph company, had a narrow escape from being killed about 10 o'clock last evening. He was walking down the Milwaukee track, near the corner of Eighth street and Fif teenth avenue, when the incoming train which was behind time, struck him and threw him into the ditch. Fortunately he was walking outside the rails or he would was walking outside the rails or he would have been killed. The cylinder struck him on the hip, causing a bad bruise. He was also cut on the head and leg, and half drowned in a puddle at the bottom of the ditch. He managed to crawl out, however, and deliver his message. A hack driver took him to the district office. He says that he did not hear the train, and did not know there was an engine in the vicinity until he there was an engine in the vicinity until h was struck.
