A step in the dark-a slip and a crash.

On the raised platform behind Rev. Waldenstrom sat the following ministers: Rev. J. A. Hultman, of the Swedish Mission, Twenty-second and Davenport streets; Rev. Mr. Freden, of the Cass Street Lutheran church; Rev. Mr. Berg, of the Swedish Methodist church; Rev. Mr. Nygren, of the Swedish Baptist church, and Rev. Mr. Fogelstrom, of Omaha. Mr. Rosendal, of Sloux City, Ia.; Rev. M. Swanson, Swedeborg, Neb. Other clerymen, from Council Bluffs and elsewhere, were in the audience. audience.

The morning service was opened with song by the congregation, followed by scrip-ture reading and prayer by C. A. Bjork, of Chicago. A collection was taken, and was followed by a second song, in which the whole congregation, led by Rev. James Hult-man toined bacattly. There was a some an, joined heartily. There was thing inspiring in the air, a sort of national patriotic feeling, such as might be inspired by the singing of "America" under the shadw of the pyramids. When the last note had lied awaythe speaker of the morning mounted a table that stood on the front part of the platform and offered up a second prayer, reading also from Matthew v. 1:12. The scrmon, as well as the proliminary exercises, was given in the Swedish language, Simple, unaffected and earnest was the manner of the speaker, and his preaching was simple and solely of the scripture. The lessons taught in the text were that the people, when Christ came, had burdens enough wherefore when Christ preached he raised the burdens, by right counsel and pure examples. Such sermons had the poor people never heard before, therefore they received im well and accepted his ministry, though the rich rejected it. So always the gospel has been the hope and the beacon light of the poor and afflicted, an ever present help to those who will receive it. Pimples, boils and other humors are iable to appear when the blood gets heated. To cure them, take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A STEP IN THE DARK. An Unknown Man Meets With a Terrible Death.

Another human life has been blotted out. Last night the body lay in the morgue, and there was none to name it.

Some time during Saturday night a man, probably stupid with drink, crept into the new brick building in course of erection alongside the natatorium on Howard street. From the first floor he climbed to the second, then it is presumed, though no one knows, to the third. The new building and the natatorium are connected, but there are wide apertures in the party wall opening from the third floor. To carry out the hypothesis of the coroner, the man must have entered through one of the apertures upon the third fleor of the he apertures upon the third neor of the matatorium. Then in endeavoring to retrace his steps in the dark, he stepped upon a nar-now board which lay across the opening in the floor left for the elevaton. The board tipped on its side, and he was precipitated a distance of about twenty-five or thirty feet. As he fell the upper portion of his body struck upon the first floor, and there he was hanging when, at 8 o'clock yesterday morn-

The dead man was lying face downward in a pool of blood which had oozed from ghastly bruises on his face and head. His right lev was broken below the knee and his limbs were quite cold. The coroner was summoned, and caused the body to be removed to the morgue, where during the day dozens of persons came to see during the day dozens of persons came to see if the dead man was one whom they knew. But not one knew him. On neither clothes nor person was there any mark by which his name could be learned. In his pockets were found two short lead pencils and a piece of tobacco, a leather protection for the fingers, such as is used by stone cutters, and a broken foot rule. His colored cotton shirt was swinkled with stone dust maked ear broken foot rule. His colored cotton shirt was sprinkled with stone dust, which con-firmed the idea that he was a stone cutter. The dead man was five feet, five inches tall, chest full and broad shoulders square, arms slightly longer than the ordinary man's, weight about 145 pounds; face square and covered with three or four days' growth of sandy beard, mustache of same color, eves blue hair somewhat scanty and of light brown color, hands calloused as though accustomed to hard labor. The shirt he worse was a light colored cotton affair striped with a light shade of brown collar

Haif a dozen cheap boarding houses fre-quented by men of his class were visited and inquiry made. At one place on Harney, be-tween Tenth and Eleventh, a man of the foregoing description had been missing since the previous night. An attache of the place was brought to the morgue but failed to iden-tify the corpse as his boarder.

From that height he jumped to a pile of lumber some distance

THE BUTCHERS' PICNIC.

A Very Pleasant Day in the Woods at Waterloo.

No more auspicious day than yesterday could have been chosen by the Butchers' union for their picnic excursion to Waterloo. The morning was cloudy, but this made no apparent difference in the turnout, for at 10:10 a. m., when the train pulled out of the depot, eight of the nine coaches were com-fortably filled with the jolly wielders of the cleaver, accompanied by their wives and sweethearts. At South Omaha another large delegation got on board, completely filling the last coach, and monopolizing the standing room of the others. The numerous well filled baskets, with chicken legs peeping from under clean napkins, showed that while each rosy checked dame and maiden

"Was on pleasure bent, Still had a frugal mind."

Besides the passenger coaches was a bag-gage car which contained liquid refresh-ments, and in front of this was an Armour-Cudaby car containing the undressed beeves which were to figure in the slaughtering and dressing match between John Reznichek, of Omaha, and F. N. Scanlan, of Council Bluffs. The music for the occasion was fur-nished by the A. O. H. band.

The excursionists reached Waterloo about 11:30, and their first work after taking pos-mession of the plenic grounds was to discuss the contents of lunch baskets. One of the features of the afternoon's sport was the match game of base ball between the whole-ale and estal butches. The subclease match game of base ball between the whole-sale and retail butchers. The wholesalers were from the firms of the Armour-Cudahy, G. H. Hammond and Swift & Son's com-panies. The battery consisted of E. Welch and C. Welch, pitchers, and James Fitzsim-mons, catcher. The retailers' battery con-sisted of Tom Fannigun, pitcher, and Frank Heinzman, catcher. The retailers laid the wholesalers out most unmerafally with a Wholesalers out most unmercifully with a score of 36 to 4. The match between John Reznichek, of Omaha, and F. M. Scanian, of Council Bluffs, for quickest time in killing and dress-ing a beef, attracted considerable attention. Reznicheck came out alead, completing the job in 9 minutes and 35 seconds. He was awarded a prize of $20 in gold. Scanlon finished his beef in 13 minutes and 44 seconds, and was given $10 and was given $10, Dancing and other sports made up the quota of the day's pleasure until 8 p.m., when the train was boarded for the homeward trip.

Wolves in Missouri.

Missouri is one of the few states in the union in which bounties are paid on wolf scalps, and the only one in which there is a price put on the head of a rat, says the St. Louis Star Sayings. The state law outlawing these animals permits county courts to authorize their extermination, but fixes the prize of a wolf scalp at 33, to be paid by the county. There are counties in south central Missouri, sparsely settled and very poor in many ways, that are always referred to as "wolf scalp counties." Before the war the settlers had the wolves in pretty good control, but during the six years of fighting all the men in the southern counties were in one army or the other, and during these years the wolves multiplied to such numbers that the sheep raising industry of that section never has been restored. In the five years of 1870 to 1875 $1,500,000 was paid out by the state for wolf scalps. One would think that par-ties had embarked in the business of raising wolves for a livelihood. This is not, however, true, for it will take more than another $1,500,000 to extir-minate the wolves from south Missouri We sell great quantities of S. S. S., and the sale holds up well- no falling off, or pros-pect of falling off. While many are loud in its praise, not one complaint has been heard

A Remarkable Cave.

Some workmen recently discovered a cave in Franklin Park, in the West Roxbury district of Boston, and explored it for 100 feet. They discovered arrow heads and other evidences of occupation by Indians. The sides of the opening had the appearance of being the work of nature, but within the cave the work of man was plainly seen. The walls were as smooth as though chiseled out, and there was plenty of room for three men to stand abreast. Every few leet there were openings in the side of the cave which looked as though they had been cut out of the solid rock. The ceiling of the cave presented an odd appearance. A series of bowlders hang-ing from the roof seemed to have been fastened by mechanical means, and extended the entire length of the cavern.

Ginger Beer and Watermelons. Dr. Howland, of Washington, furnishes the following recipe for a cool and wholesome summer drink: "White sugar, 8 pounds; bruised ginger, 3 ounces; cream tartar, 2 ounces; sliced lemons, 4; boiling water, 4 gallons; yeast, i pint. Pour the hot water over the four first named ingredients and infuse for two hours. Add the yeast, and when the fermentation has gone on for two hours put the liquid in strong stone bottles and cork securely. It has a powerful 'kick' to it, and unless the corks are tied in they will be likely to fly out and the beer will lose its 'snap.' 'Two ordinary yeast cakes will do as well as the half pint of yeast. "I have no hesitation in saying this is the best all-round summer drink I have ever found. When taken should be cool, but not ice cold, and whatever effect the cold water may have on the stomach the ginger will counteract.
