Regular convocation, Star chapter, No. 47, R. A. M., this evening at 8 o'clock sharp. Work in the N. N. degree. Per order of the M. E. H. P. The council meeting which was to have been held last evening did not materialize, as the regular monthly meeting will be held next Monday evening. George, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Folkinberg, died at 9 o'clock last evening of diphtheria, at the family residence, 804 Avenue A. The funeral will take place from the residence at 3 o'clock this Frank Burdett and A. Burgers, two Omaha toughs, who were arrested for dis-turbing the peace by fighting on a late motor train from Manawa Sunday evening, will have a hearing before Squire Hendricks this afternoon. The plank sidewalk along the south side of the Beno Shugart block has become so decayed that a pedestrian took an involuntary drop while passing along there, and it is now to be replaced with a flooring of natural or artificial stone on street lintels, Work has been commenced remodeling the store just vacated by Parks & Son, and an archway will be cut through the north wall, opening into the rooms occupied by Beno & Co., which firm will take possession of it as soon as the changes are completed.

Theodore Brown, an old offender, was yesterday cinched for $20.20 for pulling a gun on a party at the dummy depot. Brown has received three years in the Lincoln penitentiary for highway robbery, and does not seem disposed to quit on his previous record.

Certain members of the Omaha half world have been in the habit lately of making nightly visits to Council Bluffs, and have paid no fines therefor. Sunday night Lena Marston and Flora Wilson were captured by the police. They agreed to leave the city, and stay away, and were accordingly re-leased yesterday.

The busy burglar put in an appearance at the store of Mr. Mikesell, corner of Twenty-third and Broadway, but in getting through the transom awakened the proprietor, who started for him with a gun. The intruder proved to be brim full of discretion, and dropped to the ground and fied. By the time Mikesell got the door open the visitor was out of sight. was out of sight.

A man was canvassing the city vesterday A man was canvassing the city yesterday by going from house to house offering to con-tract hard coal for August or September de-livery at $8.50 a ton. Local dealers claim that this is below the lowest figure at which coal can be put on track here. As the man is a stranger and from another city it would be simply a matter of business caution to inquire into his ability to fill his contracts before buying any coal or him.

Ed Riley and Charles Burns were arrested extended in the state of driving away ways the state of stealing a stove from J. V. Cutler, living at No. 2300 Avenue D. These parties were suspected, and a visit to their house revealed them in the act of driving away with the stolen property. A set of harness was discovered in a gunny sack hidden in the weeds a short distance from the house. The prisoners will be tried by Justice Hendricks at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Matrimonial Requirements. In attending to the hundreds of officeseek ers, who have besieged him since his election to congress Judge Reed has so systematized his business as to be able to dispose of all comers in the shortest possible time. Yes terday afternoon a clergyman of this city was called upon to perform his first marriage ceremony and was considerably in doubt as to what amount of red tape was necessary to be complied with before pronouncing the fateful words. In his dilemma he hastened to the office of the congressman in search of

An Electric Motor Official Talks of the Company's Intentions.

Electric Motor Rates and Extensions. The agitation of a 5-cent rate on morning and evening workingmen's trains on the electric motor line still continues, but the adoption of such a rate is not forthcoming, and the prospects are not particularly brilliant. Mr. J. T. Stewart, president of the company, was yesterday interviewed regarding the matter, and his statement of the situation is not encouraging. Said he: "There are a number of us who would like to have the plan adopted if we could be sure how it would affect us. The national inter-state commission might decide the matter in such a way that it would greatly injure us, and we must be assured that our interests will not suffer. There is no money to be made, that is, but very little, on a straight 5-cent rate. If we were to operate the line on such a basis no dividends would be de-clared, and there would be nothing with which to create a sinking fund. I don't say that the company would actually lose money, but the line would not pay. So, if the interstate commission insisted on a straight rate, because we made that rate to accommodate the workingmen, we would be in an unpleasant and un-profitable situation, and we must be careful that we do not get there. Possibly the com-mission would not interfere with us, but that is what we have to find out. We are really nothing but a street car company, still we op nothing but a street car company, still we op-erate between two states. The matter is in the hands of our attorneys, and we shall re-ly upon their opinion in the matter. We are as anxious as any one to know how it is to terminate, as we want to tell the public as soon as possible that we will make the de-sired rate, or that it will be absolutely im-possible for us fo do so. possible for us to do so.

"Our paying trains now are those running during the evening. If we should adopt the five-cent rate it would be on very early trains, and for a half or three-quarters of an hours between 6 and 7 o'clock in the evening. It very easy, of course, for any and every one to point out the advisability of the move, but we must look after our own in

'Extensions? Well, we will build as fast as we can, but it begins to look as if we had about as much laid out for this season as we could nandle. We expected to have the Upper Broadway and Fairmount park lines completed before now, but the Johnstown disaster delayed us greatly. We received word from there, ten days after the flood, that our material would be shipped in ten days more, but it has not arrived, an there is no telling when it will get here. We can lay the rails, but the line can not be operated until the curves and switches are in place. Yes, that little difficulty on Pierce may be the means of keeping us off that street. It is not necessary for us to run over that street, as we can double track the Upper Broadway line without inconvenience, and it would accommodate all of our patrons nearly as well. About all there is to it, it would give our Omaha passengers a little longer ride for their money. The only trouble seems to be that the other company, to which a franchise was granted some weeks ago, promised to pay for a right of way along there, and the property owners want us to come down quite nandsomely. This we will not do. Sooner than contest the matter and make a fight, we will remain on Broadway. This other company! I don't believe it will ever amount to much. In my opinion, the whole thing was simply a move on the part of a few real estate dealers and property owners in the southern and western part of owners in the southern and western part of the city to induce us to extend our line through those localities at once for the purpose of heading off imaginary competition. This would aid them very materially in selling lots in outlying additions. As far as the Union Pacific wagon bridge is concerned, I have no apprehensions of its being leased to a rival company. It is quite probable that it will be utilized some time for electric motor purposes, and it would perhaps be better to purposes, and it would perhaps be better to use it in connection with a Ninth avenue line than to run up across the botton to the other "In view of what has transpired, however, it seems to me that the Union Pacific company might be expected to give us the first choice of it. We took their street car line here off their hands, when it was costing them from $5,000 to $15,000 a year to run it, and it would be nothing more than the proper and the total the total the total thing for them to come to us when they have an offer for the bridge, and see if we are willing to do any better. It might come in very nicely, now that the lines on the other side are extended all over the city.

"We had intended to build a line down the company that the company the company that the company tha Sixth avenue this year, from Maine to Six-teenth street, thence up the transfer street car line to the motor track on Avenue A. If car line to the motor track on Avenue A. If our material gets along we may yet be able to finish it. This calls for the equipment of the Pearl and Main street line with electric cars, which will be done this season. The report of a proposed line up Main street, from the junction to Broadway, is without foundation, as the street is too narrow and teams loading and unloading at the business houses would cause a blockade. The line houses would cause a blockade. The line will be double tracked down Pearl and Main will be double tracked down Pearl and Main streets with a loop line around Sixth avenue and Sixteenth street. No, we can't build to Manawa this year. After we get our line extended around the city we will propably take a shoot down to the lake, but not at present. We have as much on hand as we can attend to for the season, and it will keep us busy to get our proposed lines all in shape. City steam laundry, 34 Main, tel. 141

The information was filed before 'Squire Barnett, but the defendant took a change of venue. A. S. Hazelton, Esq., appeared for the prosecution, and Frank Trimble looked after the defense. Trimble moved to dismiss the case on the Trimble moved to dismiss the case on the ground that the information was not explicit enough regarding the kind and quantily of liquor kept by the defendant, but the court overruled it. Several witnesses were examined on both sides. The jury was out but a short time when a verdict of guilty was returned, and the defendant was sentenced to fifteen days in the county jail. This is the first case tried on this charge in some time, but it is understood that the temperance alliance will shortly file a number of similar informations and prosecute other cases of a informations and prosecute other cases of similar nature in the justice courts.

The Heine Recital.

A most pleasing recital was given at the Presbyterian church last evening to the representatives of the press and a few friends, by Prof. Josef Heine, the world renowned violin virtuoso, Mme. Heine, the accomplished planist, and Miss Evelyn Heine, the charming young vocalist. The programme was impromptu, and consisted of a number of selections that were rendered for the purpose of demonstrating the ability of the artists.

Notwithstanding the fact that it was such a quiet and altogether impromptu affair, an hour and a half was passed most enjoyably listening to the deligntful music rendered by this most talented trio. Prof. Heine not only showed his mastership of the violin, but evoked such music from a common penny whistle as to win a most deserved encore, to which he kindly responded. His rapid triple tongueing is seldom excelled. He also proved himself a clever improvisario, playing readily several pretty strains from a cue of three notes.

The piano playing of Mme. Heine was highly artistic, and she received great applause. Her execution is brilliant and her plause. Her execution is brilliant and ber instrumentation marvelous. She plays with a dash that can not fail to be appreciated. Miss Evelyn Heine, while suffering from a severe cold, showed to great advantage the range of which her excellent voice is capable. She gave several selections, but the old Scotch melody. "Coming Thro' the Rye." was the one in which her perfectly modulated voice gave the most pleasing effects. It is under perfect control, as clear and strong as could be desired. This family of musical artists will give a concert in the musical artists will give a concert in the Presbyterian church Thursday evening under the auspices of the young ladies of the church. The young ladies wish to raise money to make the last payment on the plano recently purchased by them, and this will be an opportunity both to help them and hear a really first class concert. Prohibition Attorneys. The opinion expressed by a member of the bar that the prohibitionists were moving to drop Attorney Sims in favor of Attorney Hazelton, seems to have been caused by the fact that Attorney Hazelton has been looking after some saloon cases in the justice courts. These cases are entirely different from those in which Attorney Sims is interested. The latter has paid no attention to the justice court cases. Attorney Hazelton, in taking up some of these justice cases, is not interfering with the work being done by At-torney Sims, but is working in harmony with him. The prohibitionists deny any in-tention of doing away with Sims, but say they employ Hazelton to look after another line of cases entirely.

Insane at times, so violent as to necessitate confinement in a cage. is the terrible fate of Samuel Armstrong, who is eighty-two, and a former prominent resident of this city, says a Cincinnati dispatch to the St. Louis Republic. For years he has been in close retirement at Wapello, Ia. where relatives reside, and though possesse of an estate valued at $250,000, the afflicted man has derived little or no benlatives and friends be true. Armstrong many years ago was a prominent builder. Among his investments was one in sixty-six acres of land in the northern portion of Avondale. He owns property in Greenville, O., worth $100,000, and valuable property in Columbia, this county. About twenty years ago Armstrong was driving awaya man who was stealing fruit from the Avondale place when the fellow picked up a large stone and, hurling it him, struck him with great force on the head. He was never himself

Among his delusions is a firm belief in witches. He imagines these enter his room through the keyholes and cracks in the doors and he has had the apertures all stopped up. He also wears straps around his ankles to keep the witches from crawling up his trousers.

While in this condition of mind he fell into the hands of one Fred Rehling of Greenville, Ohio. He was in-duced by Rehling to convey to him his valuable Avondale property. Rehling, it is said, did not pay him a cent for the property. After an extended litigation the conveyance was set aside. Armstrong's affairs then came into the control of certain lawyers of this city. Although Armstrong was a resident of this city and had never resided in Greenville. A member of a well-known legal firm of this city made application to the probate court of Darke county for the appointment of a guardian for the insane man, and per-mission was asked to sell his Avondale property. The court appointed James Rees, a Greenville blacksmith, guardian. The court also decreed the sale of the Avoudale property. Under this decree the property was sold about a year ago to a syndicate headed by Robert Mitchell, for $100,169.

Armstrong was never married. His sister's children, who are his heirs, live at Wapello, Ia. They have begun inquiries into the administration of the estate.

A SERVICEABLE AUGER HOLE. How the Newspapers Got Reports of the Little Falls Execution. The newspapers of Minneapolis are a little ahead of the Hon. Jay Smith, the author of the new law respecting the hanging of criminals, says a Minneapo-lis dispatch to the St. Louis Republic. He was shocked at the stories that were published just before and at the time of the hanging of the Barrett brothers in this city. The legislature being then in session and Mr. Smith a member from Minneapolis, he framed a law that passed, forbidding newspapers to pub-lish more than bare announcements of bangings. hangings.

The condemned man, under the new law, is permitted to name three wit-nesses, who with the sheriff, deputy sheriff, the coroner and a doctor, constitute the spectators at any legal hanging. Reporters are strictly barred, and the execution must occur between midnight and sunrise on the day named by the governor.

The law was put to a practical test at 1:45 O'clock this morning, when Albert Bulow was hanged by Sheriff Rasicott, of Little Falls, for the murder of Frank Eich, of Royalton, one day last October. "Only a bare announcement." according to the exact words of the law, was expected, but the bare announcement filled from two to three columns of the city papers. The John Jay Smith law failed to take cognized the fact that the paper of the paper of the fact that the paper of the paper nizance of the fact that the pine board fence surrounding a jail inclosure might easily be pierced by augers and
