

OMAHA SHOULD HAVE WON IT

But Jakey Strauss Made a Stupid Blunder in the Ninth.

Standing of the Clubs.

Following is the standing of the Western association clubs up to and including yesterday's games:

Table with columns: Club, Played, Won, Lost, Per Cent. Rows include Omaha, St. Paul, Minneapolis, etc.

Minnesota 1, Omaha 0.

Those who were not in attendance at the ball park yesterday afternoon missed not only the prettiest, but the finest game of the season.

In fact, it was great.

The only disagreeable feature about the entire contest was that Omaha got left.

Still, it was a defeat the White Sox have no need to be ashamed of, and yet, too, they should have been.

Strauss' stupid base running in the ninth inning was as much accountable for the loss of the game as any one thing.

He stole second, and Cleveland had struck out. He stole second nicely. Crooks then drove a long fly to center, which the best-coached fielder barely got his finger tips on.

Crooks made second on the strike, but Strauss got no further than third. He could have made home easily. Walsh followed with a fly to center, which threw the catching Crooks off his base, thereby accomplishing a brilliant double play and closing the inning.

It is patent from this that Jakey should have made a tally.

Still there is no use in crying over spilled milk.

It was a great battle, and no mistake, a battle of the pitchers in which Morton's men got the best of it.

He was in the box for the visitors until the fourth inning, when he met with a distressing accident and was compelled to retire.

He was badly hurt and it will be many a big day before he goes on the diamond again.

To begin with, Cleveland got his base on balls, after Cooney had thrown out at first by Crooks; Miller flew out to Messitt and Foster died at home on Clarke's throw.

In the second Walsh flew out to Jevne, but Andrews got his base on balls, only to be caught stealing second, however, Messitt popped up a little to Henzie.

After the visitors straggled his base on a missed grounder by Walsh, but he was doubled up with Minnehan on the latter's hit to Crooks. Morrison then made a single, which was the last of the ball, only to be struck out, and they were left.

It was one, two, three for both teams in the third, but in the fourth Cleveland got his base on balls, and a passed ball. Crooks then made a hit, and a passed ball let him to second, and Cleveland to third.

He then made a hit, and a passed ball later on another passed ball, but Jantzen recovered the ball and threw him out to Duke. Here is where the accident occurred.

In his eagerness to get the ball, he fell upon it to his knees, and in running in, Cleveland's spikes caught him in the right knee, leaving a ragged rent half way round the knee cap.

The poor fellow cried aloud in pain, and was carried off the field by the Omaha players.

Cleveland was out, however, and after ten minutes' wait, the game proceeded.

Andrews made a hit for his side, but was caught stealing second.

Minnehan flew out to Cleveland, and Morrison waited.

After Andrews had struck out in the fifth, Messitt got his base on balls. He stole second and went to third on a passed ball, where he was left by the quick retirement of Canavan and Duke.

It was one, two, three for the Minnie, as he was the sixth for Omaha, but in their half of the latter the visitors succeeded in getting a man round to third, where he was retired on a double play, beautifully executed by Joe Walsh.

In the ninth is where Omaha had a chance to win the game, as was described in the outset of this article, but they let it pass, and so lost the game.

In the visiting team Foster led off with a corking single. He stole second, and then after Henzie had waited, came home on Minnehan's hit.

Although a defeat, it was a brilliant game.

owing to the ineffectiveness of Pagan, who gave six men bases on balls in the fifth inning.

McNabb, who pitched the first five innings, was hit pretty hard and gave way to Facon. Score:

WANT A SOLETER GOVERNOR.

Iowa Grand Army Men Enthusiastic for Hull.

WHEELER HOLDING HIS OWN.

The Republican Convention Will Probably Be the Largest and Most Interesting in the History of the State.

The Iowa Convention.

DES MOINES, Ia., August 13.—[Special Telegram to THE BEAR.]—The city is full of strangers to-night, who have come to attend the republican state convention to-morrow.

The convention is the largest ever known, owing to the three-cornered fight for governor. The hotel lobbies are packed with a surging crowd, while the claims and merits of the several candidates are being discussed. It is apparent that the Hull men have the most enthusiasm, and they are evidently carrying the crowd with them.

The Grand Army men are largely for him, and are shouting him. Mr. Wheeler, the candidate of the farmers, just about holds his own, though some think he has been losing ground to-day. The great obstacle in his way is the fact that he was not a union soldier, and the soldiers claim that it is their turn to have the honor.

For sixteen years past every other governor has been a soldier. Governor Larrabee is a civilian, and the soldiers claim that it is their turn to have the honor.

Senator Allison is here getting acquainted with the proceedings, and also that he has no right to refer to a justice without the court's permission, which it would never give. The judge said if the grand jury did not indict, he would not have the right to then and fine the sheriff $1,000 for summoning it. The defense's plea seems all disarranged by the action of the judge.

LECTURED THE JURY.

Judge Terrell Makes Some Vigorous Remarks.

PURVIS, Miss., August 13.—[Special Telegram to THE BEAR.]—To-day was a sensational trial. The grand jury had about made up its mind to indict Salinger and Ed. Rain and refer the others to a justice of the peace for trial, a special act of the legislature giving the grand jury such right.

Judge Terrell called the jury into court and told what he heard, saying that the grand jury had violated its secrecy by letting out the proceedings, and also that he had no right to refer to a justice without the court's permission, which it would never give.

FORAKER WON'T ISSUE THE WARRANT.

COLUMBUS, O., August 13.—Governor Foraker to-day declined to issue a warrant for the arrest of Edward Carroll, general superintendent of the Queen and Crescent, wanted by Governor Lowry, of Mississippi, as an aider in the Sullivan-Kilrain prize fight.

THE CONVENTIONS.

The Elective Right Bill Defeated at Olympia.

OLYMPIA, Wash., August 13.—The elective right bill came up for its final passage this morning, but only thirty-three delegates voted, and although this was a majority of those voting it was defeated, as it takes a majority of all the delegates, or a vote of thirty-eight, to pass the article. The bill was sent back to the committee, who will report a similar article. Elective rights will, however, probably be left to the legislature to settle. The report of the committee on harbors and lands was taken up without going to a vote.

The report recommended the construction of a harbor line from the point where the water is twenty-five feet deep to the shore, which would be done by the construction of a dike or wharves, etc., under such regulations as the state may enact.

HELEN'S DAY.

HELENA, Mont., August 13.—The convention adopted the article on state institutions. In the afternoon session it passed the proposition by which all county officers will have their terms re-elected. The Schurz politician, as the democrats hope to strengthen their state ticket with county nominations.

BOULANGER'S TRIAL.

The Senate Court Finds Him Guilty of Conspiracy.

PARIS, August 13.—The opening of the senate court to-day the members of the right declined to take further part in the proceedings in the case of General Boulanger. The court discussed at length its course of proceeding, and its competency to try General Boulanger for conspiracy, by a vote of 201 to 77 that the court was competent to try the general on all the counts of the indictment. The jury returned a verdict from voting. The court then by 201 votes found Boulanger guilty of conspiracy. Six senators did not vote. The court found General Boulanger and his associates guilty of conspiracy in the plot. It also decided by a vote of 198 to 10 that Boulanger was guilty of a treasonable attempt against the state in connection with the Lyons depot incident.

DECLARED UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

MINNESOTA'S MEAT INSPECTION LAW Knocked Out.

DULUTH, Minn., August 13.—At the session of the Minnesota legislature last winter one of the most important measures was the celebrated meat inspection law providing for the inspection of cattle on the hoof before slaughter, which was thought to be a good way to help those farmers in this state who raise the cattle. The law was passed, and it encourages the slaughtering of cattle within the borders of the state. It was also a blow at Armour's business in Chicago. Yesterday A. F. Christman, the local manager of Armour's, advised the city council that the law was unconstitutional, infringing upon the rights of interstate commerce and of trade, and ordered the release of Christman.

DISASTROUS LOSS AT TRUCKEE.

Candidates for the Law's Vengeance.

NEW YORK, August 13.—Mrs. Hannah Pearson, charged with abducting fourteen-year-old Ida Harris, and five young men who were charged with assisting her, were arraigned in court to-day and held without bail for examination.
