present officers will make vacant.

Detective Mostyn feels that he is entitled to the promotion. Sergeauts H. P. Haze and Michael Whalen are also aspirants for the position and both have influential friends who are urging their claims. Haze was recommended for chief detective by the chief of police, but is not averse to taking higher game.

Considerable feeling has been stirred up by some of the other recommendations. Tom Ormsby, who has been one of the best workers on the force and a long while in the service, is recommended for the position of fourth sergeant. His friends on and outside of the force feel that he should have been made chief of detectives, Mr. Mostyn's place, being the oldest special on the force.
