MARKS BROTHERS.

One of Omaha's Successful Wholesale Houses.
Few people living in Omaha appreciate the magnitude of the wholesale trade in this city. The yearly aggregate amount of way up into the millions. A representative of this paper called at the office of Marks Brothers, 1407 Harney street, on business, and was surprised to learn of the immense business being done by them in the great northwest. Through the kindness of one of the brothers, THE BEE man was shown through the stock and work rooms. The building is 25x150 feet, five stories and basement, all occupied by their stock and work rooms. The basement contains a stock of leather, hames and bales of material. Upon the first floor is found an immense stock of harness hardware. A well appointed office and shipping room is also on this floor. The second floor is given up to the storage of manufactured harness boxed for shipment. These goods are of all styles and prices, from the heaviest draft to the elegantly mounted carriage harness. On the third floor is the saddle manufacturing room. This floor is supplied with a small engine used to run the five monster sewing machines operated upon this floor by August Schamer and S. W. Bliss. Mr. Jacob Schamer is the chief foreman of the saddery department and knows all about a saddle from croup to crupper, a workman through and through. In their large stock room can be seen anything from the poudrous cowboy saddle to the daintiest side-saddle for a lady. The fourth floor is occupied as a harness manufacturing room, and is presided over by Mr. A. F. Demme as foreman and A. W. Dorfmeier as assistant foreman. Both of these gentlemen are master workmen and know just what a harness ought to be. Away up on the fifth floor is the cutting room. There can be seen leather in all sorts of shapes, resembling a play-house full of straps. But under the skillful manipulation of the workmen they grow into elegant trappings for the horse. In addition to this large establishment, Marks Bros. have a large building on Thirteenth street, used exclusively for the manufacture of horse collars. There are constantly in the house and two are upon the road. They established their business in 1872, since which time they have been doing a constantly increasing business. Their trade now covers the entire northwest and extends east to the Mississippi. They employ sixty men and have a yearly pay-roll of $50,000. They manufacture 8,000 sets of harness every year. The efficient book-keeper of this great wholesale house is Miss Ella Kauffman, whose obliging manner and correct balances are thoroughly appreciated by her employers. This house is an excellent example of what strict personal attention to business and concert of action will do.

A NOVEL TYPEWRITER.

It Will Be on Exhibition Next Week.

There will be a typewriter on exhibition at the Columbus Buggy Co., as well as at 1905 Farnam street, that eclipses everything in the typewriter line ever conceived, and every person interested in typewriting should inspect it while in Omaha. Competent experts will explain the machine to all who will take the trouble to call at either of the above places.

This new typewriter that has created such a stir in typewriting circles is known as the "Yost" writing machine.

It is the invention of G. W. N. Yost, the builder of both the Remington and caligraph.

To practical typewriters the Yost is a revelation; it embraces all the valuable features of its competitors and does away with every objectionable feature. No ribbon is used; the nibbling of type, by which an irregular line is unavoidable in rapid work, is prevented by a unique center guide, which brings and permanently holds every letter to a dead center. The machine weighs but sixteen pounds, is compact and durable.

COMPETITION CREMATED.

Fine Carriages and Buggies for Every Occasion.

A Word in Reference to the Mammoth Repository of the Columbus Buggy Co. 1 Door From Farnam and 10th.

Can be found the warerooms of the largest wholesale and retail dealers of all kinds of vehicles in the west. This is the headquarters of Messrs. Angene & Firestone, agents for the Columbus Buggy Co., the largest manufacturers of the finest carriages, buggies, etc., in the world. The firm occupies the whole of a large brick building and there is never a time that they do not carry from three to five hundred vehicles of all kinds in stock. The goods manufactured by the Columbus Buggy Co. are so justly celebrated that they defy competition of every kind. They are but of one grade and are known from one end of the globe to the other. They are of exquisite workmanship always made of the best materials, making them of the most lasting durability. The prices for the quality are the lowest and the very name strikes terror in the hearts of would-be imitators or so-called competitors. Then why hesitate when you are in need of a first-class carriage or buggy—for an infant can buy with as great security as an adult, always getting exactly what is represented and the best.

The firm are in constant receipt of all the newest and latest novelties in the carriage line and hardly a day passes but what a car load of new goods is received. Gentlemen and polite salesmen are ever on hand to show visitors around the premises and to sell what will well repay any one. On the main floor can be seen Landaus, Broughams, Rockaways, Victorias, Coupes and other kinds too numerous to mention, while last, but not least, are their famous buggies. The other floors are also loaded down with their weight in gold. An immense elevator is used to carry the vehicles up and down. Messrs. Angene & Firestone are well known as a firm of liberal dealing, thoroughly posted in their business and which is conducted strictly on business principles and is through their instrumentality that the affairs of the company in this city are in so flourishing a condition. At no time can you call at their repository but what a constant rush of business can be seen. Remember you can never make a mistake in buying the best and getting your money's worth. So if you are requiring anything in their line you can do no better than to give them a call and become convinced of the truth of these assertions.

Over a quarter century of carefulness and painstaking to build the reputation Nicoll's have all over this country for broad gauge Tailoring on first-class plans—at moderate prices and for cash (as all Tailoring should be).

To lead the world in your line of business is no small matter now-a-days.

Business grows with rapid pace in these days when ships skip across the ocean like deer, and everything seems to have swift feet.

It is trained hands that must keep hold; there is no time or place for loitering.

During these past few months of apparent quiet, ships have been bringing Nicoll's goods from many directions; mills at home and abroad have been weaving hundreds of designs to Nicoll's orders. The goods are mostly in; the bills all paid—discounted—and

Now the happy work of meeting old and new friends of former seasons is near.

They will come as they have for half a century of seasons. Trained hands will make welcome; skilled hands will make their garments; the prices are within the reach of all.
