

THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELER.

Elaborate Preparations for the Great Drummers' Parade.

THE DEATH OF THOMAS F. ALLEN.

John DeWitt Drops Into Poetry—Some Interesting Statistics—Gathering of the Clans—Caught in Hotel Corridors.

"CALL US DRUMMERS."

John DeWitt in American Commercial Traveler. [A traveling man's paper took exception to the term "drummer," used by Mr. DeWitt in "A Drummer's Constancy," published in the Traveler some time ago. In reply thereto, Mr. DeWitt sends us the following: There are some men quite ashamed just because they've been called "drummers." Better throw down your load and get off the road, "Drummers." Why, we're knights of the grip! Are well dubbed every trip, "Drummers." And we're never ashamed, But we're proud when we're named, "Drummers." Perhaps "Tourists" will do, Or plain "Pilgrims," for you, "Drummers." But call us who are plain By that simple old name, "Drummers." It takes brains now to sell; By hard work you can't sell, "Drummers." You can tell by their woe, And the things they don't know, "Drummers." We are now very strong, Quarter million, are long, "Drummers." But I'm glad we find few Of such kickers as you, "Drummers." You write home as of yore Ten have gone just before, "Drummers." That's the reason you fail, And you can't make a sale, "Drummers." If you'll change all your ways, Doing hard work that pays, "Drummers." We'll forgive all the past, And will call you at last, "Drummers."

Or Another Route.

The following letter, dated Grand Island, August 27, has been received: I herewith hand you a copy of resolutions adopted at Grand Island, August 25, 1889, by the commercial travelers, which would be pleased to have appear in THE BEE. On Monday morning, September 2, 1889, without a moment's warning, we awoke around among the boys at the Palmer house and Pacific hotel and on the street, and in short order picked up a sufficient amount of money to defray about all the funeral expenses of our deceased brother. What a noble class of men are these commercial travelers! Quite a number attended the funeral in a body. The family of our deceased comrade fully appreciate this act of kindness on the part of the boys. There is a further favor to be asked of the boys in behalf of the family of our deceased brother, which will be made known in due time, and we have no doubt it will be cheerfully granted. The boys have made a multitude of friends by this one little act of kindness. Chicago. Accompanying was the report of the meeting and the resolutions adopted as follows: At a meeting of commercial travelers held at the Palmer House, Grand Island, Neb., August 25, 1889, to take action concerning the death of Thomas F. Allen, the following resolutions were adopted: Whereas, one of the commercial travelers, Thomas F. Allen, has been taken away by the omnibus father of all men and placed beyond the further knowledge of humane task and humane trials. Resolved, That in his death the community loses an upright citizen; the commercial world a worker of good; the church a brother who never tired of well doing; his family a devoted husband and a tender and loving father. Resolved further, That we hereby extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in this their sad hour of sorrow and deep affliction. Resolved further, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the city papers, THE OMAHA BEE, and the family of our deceased brother. "When the hammer of relentless pain Doth break the rivets of the fleshly chain Which bind the mortal, Then she spreads her wings, Suffering can dim the mortal sight, But makes the eyes of faith more bright. Heaven is more near in it, Nearer all celestial things."

Committee.

W. L. Eastman, D. B. Welpton, R. W. Fial, S. A. Conley. A Drummer's Note Book. The Cozad Messenger says the following memoranda of an Omaha drummer was picked up yesterday: Miles traveled, 2,320; number of trains, two; shown samples, sixty-one; sold goods, thirty-four; been asked the news, fifty-six; told the news, three; lied, thirty-three; didn't know, twenty; been asked to drink, eleven; drank, eleven; changed politics, seventeen; religion, three; daily expenses allowed by house, $2; actual daily expenses, $6; been to church, none; accompanied girls home from church, seven; teen; girls flirted with, forty-two; agreed to marry, two; expected trouble, one; kicked out of the house, two; left by back door, three; doctored fare on railroad, five; number of persons chartered, thirty-four; tried to cheat, sixty-one; hats ordered, three; suits of clothes made, two; goods sold for other firms, $5,000; commissions from retail firms, $20; salary, $6 per day for forty days, $240; saved from daily expenses, $120; money put in savings bank, $500; cash on hand, $10; and drunk, eleven; badly broken up, two; slipped out on hotel keepers, four; cigars smoked, 300; cigars given away, three; number days actual work, thirty-two; number days chartered train, two; attended horse races, eleven; made on bets, $80; lost on bets, $35; my actual profit for forty days, $10; the firm's actual profit for forty days, $610.

A Terrible Yield.

The Bee reporter who fell heir to 75 cents yesterday, and blew it against a fresh lobster lunch at one of Omaha's leading hotels, overheard two drummers talking. One said to the other: "I tell you, they have bigger crops in the northwest than were ever raised before, and times are bound to be good in that part of the country. Just think of 350 bushels of wheat at 50 cents a bushel. Oh, tell you the northwest is the place to sell goods." "You don't mean 350 bushels to the acre?" said the other, apparently astonished at the assertion. "Well, you heard me." "Yes, I heard you, but don't believe it. There never was 350 bushels of wheat raised on one acre of ground in the world." "Well, call me a liar if you want to, but I just came from the northwest and know my business." "It is a perpetual wonder to me what chumps some men can make of themselves," said Charlie Graves, a Chicago traveling man, last week. "For instance, about five minutes ago I stood here in front of the Paxton and watched a St. Louis banker trying to find out from one of the hackmen what car to take to reach Sixteenth street and Webster. Of course the hackman informed him that Sixteenth street and Webster were two miles beyond the terminus of all the car lines, and consequently Mr. Banker was compelled to hire a hack and ride to his destination. There are three car lines from the Paxton that go out very near Sixteenth and Webster, and my ordinary pedestrian could have so informed him, but I suppose that is St. Louis accentness.

The Great Parade.

There is going to be an immense throng of the tourists in the city this week. Already all the hotels are filling up and a parade larger and more imposing than ever before. The following report of a drummers' meeting in the Sunday edition, will give all necessary information:

The traveling men held an adjourned meeting last night at the Arcade and perfected as far as possible the preliminary arrangements for their grand parade on Drummers' day. Nearly one hundred knights of the grip were present, among them men who have been on the road many years, and they all manifested great enthusiasm and expressed determination to make the event Wednesday next one that will attract the attention it deserves.

President G. O. Lobeck on calling the meeting to order stated that Messrs. Stouk, Brown and other members of the executive committee had been very active and reported good results. They found the collection of money rather slow, but the parade and fair grounds visit will be better this year than last.

"Arrangements," continued Mr. Lobeck, "have been made for every traveling man to be furnished with a ticket of admission for himself and lady to the fair grounds, at a rate of one dollar Wednesday morning." He insisted that every man who expects to take part in the parade shall be on hand at 9 o'clock.

Treasurer M. W. Rierison read a report showing that the committee has enrolled 523 names and collected $398. Out of the number subscribing, 280 have paid up. The president declared that it would be impossible to get through with less than $500. At the suggestion of Mr. Hall every one who so desired was authorized to invite any friend or acquaintance to join the procession, and the Omaha drummers are to bear all the expenses. It was announced that Beatrice will send up a delegation of eighty, accompanied by every man, woman and child in town. These boys, however, insist that they could not adopt silk hats, but that makes no difference; the Omaha and Council Bluffs men waived this point and will attend without silk hats. A committee of twenty will meet them at the depot and escort them to headquarters, Messrs. Myers and Harvey were appointed to take the matter in charge and select their escort. Mr. Hall submitted a good report from the committee also, and looked for a good attendance from Norfolk. Arrangements have been made for a special train to the fair grounds, which will leave the Webster street depot at 1 o'clock on Wednesday. The committee on hats, badges and streamers reported progress, and have their part of the business well attended to.

The Japanese parades and fans will be here Monday and ready for distribution Wednesday morning. Joe Garceau has promised two bands, and W. S. Hethpy, the committee on fair ground refreshments, has written to the boys to have them attend to their part of the business. During the session, Marshal Clarkson and some of his aides appeared on the scene and created quite a stir by announcing in the order of parade they would, unless the traveling men objected, put them at the head of the parade display in the second division. The traveling men did object, whereupon it was decided that they should be in the first division and next to the military, which will have the right of the procession. After announcing that all drummers, whether visiting or otherwise, are invited to join in the parade, the meeting adjourned. Messrs. Myers and Harvey then announced as their delegation to meet the Beatrice train, the following gentlemen: W. P. Botley, C. S. Maloy, L. Rappell, John Maloney, T. H. Gos, G. P. Rogan, H. A. Dyke, George Breck, F. H. Daniels, D. P. Marsh, Sam Couch, W. H. Ryth, J. B. Griffin, W. S. Helmsley, E. A. A. Smith, P. Thompson, T. P. Fenney, R. H. Kaister, G. H. Savage, J. E. McCarkin, J. B. Beal.

Will Be to the Front.

The very thought of putting several other organizations ahead of the traveling men on "Drummers' day," as suggested by Chief Marshal Clarkson, at their meeting Saturday night, very much disgusted some of the boys. They discussed it yesterday, but he smiled so gracefully to their wishes that the matter will have no contrary effects upon the occasion. However, all who expressed themselves seemed to think it very poor taste for the marshal to undertake the formation of a procession on "Drummers' day" by putting them in any other than the very front. "Why, certainly," exclaimed Chief Marshal Clarkson. "We want to accommodate the traveling man. They can have anything they wish. I simply felt that as they and the trades display are so closely allied in interest, it would be merely a matter of good taste to have them at the head of the parade, but they want to be next to the Omaha Guards, and there is the place I will put them."

Taken In.

It was a stranger in a strange land and they took me in. That hackmen and cab drivers are sharks "to the manner born," is proverbial, writes a commercial traveler in the American Merchant Traveler. I think, however, that in all my traveling experience I saw never taken in by them, but once. It was on my first visit to a town in eastern Illinois. I had made a long run over the Illinois Central from Chicago, and arrived at my destination late in the evening. The train was late, and not a porter or hotel runner was to be seen or heard. One solitary cab stood guard over all. I carried a grip and heavy baggage, and approached the cabby I asked: "How far is it to the Grand Moral Hotel?" "About fifteen minutes' ride, sir. Take you up with your luggage for half a dollar." There seemed no alternative, and, of course, I accepted. Away we went, and up and down grades, around corners to the left and corners to the right, and in due time I was landed at the Grand Moral. The next morning I stood at the window of a depot watching a train pulling out of a depot directly across the street. The name on the cars aroused my suspicions. "What is that?" I asked the clerk. "The Illinois Central, sir," he replied; "that is the train from Chicago. Then I knew that I had paid cabby 50 cents for taking me to that depot, one hundred feet away, to the hotel. To be sure, it took him fifteen minutes to do it, and we were going at a brisk pace, but I was glad to get ground where I went I do not know—and I shall never inquire.

Makes a Change.

F. C. Wood has resigned his position as traveling salesman for Kopp, Dreibus & Co., and will hereafter carry the grocery grip for Paxton & Gallagher. Mr. Wood is well known in western Nebraska, where he represented the above named candy firm for the past four years. "Woodie" will still get there just the same.

Preserves at a Discount.

The canned preserves market is dull. At least that is what S. S. Rempert, who represents the P. J. Rittler Conservatory company, of Philadelphia, says about it. Mr. Rempert returned last week from a trip to California, and when seen at the Millard hotel yesterday was lamenting the extreme slowness of business in his line. "What is the cause of it? Well, I'll tell you. Last year's crop and the open winter, knocked us out. The manufacturers put up so many goods that the market was glutted, prices went down and merchants laid in stock enough to last them a year.

At the Paxton.

Following were the traveling men at the Paxton Sunday: W. H. Estep, St. Paul, Minn.; George N. Bliss, Boston, Mass.; James Bowman, New York; C. P. McCarthy,

New York; F. M. Hodgeson, Haverhill, Mass.; W. F. Evans, St. Paul, Minn.; J. W. At the Murray.

The following traveling men gathered at the Murray Saturday and will remain in the city during Drummers' week: From New York, Alex. Beach, Leo Liekstein, B. Levinson, Jr., H. Coddeback, M. F. Adler, Henry Miscal, Albert Roulier, Robert Pigott, J. W. Henson, W. T. Brownway, E. G. Hamberg, W. H. Wash, Thos. Crude, J. E. Frazer. From Chicago: W. J. Schultz, Leo W. Meyer, H. M. Harwick, C. H. Palmer, New York; H. Bates, P. G. Hall, Frank H. Gazdolo, C. R. Hoffman, J. E. Weis, J. A. Howard. From Boston: C. H. Sivan, George H. Vintert, G. W. Simpson. Other towns: E. Kueche, St. Joseph; C. B. Butterfield, Denver; W. E. Somers, Philadelphia; W. L. Harding, Kansas City; Max Kowman, Cincinnati; W. S. Dea, Dayton, O.; V. C. Gettoicks, Pittsburg; W. I. Ashton, Boston.

At the Millard.

As will be seen by the list given below, a large number of traveling men rested their weary toes at this house over Sunday. They were: L. A. Sawyer, New York; R. E. Wright, Boston; B. Stewart, New York; A. Kuttanauer, Detroit; James McCullough, New York; H. Whitney, Memphis; J. D. H. Ralph, Philadelphia; Frances H. Underwood, Boston; C. W. Bennett, Cincinnati; R. Eisenan, Chicago; George J. Smith, New York; Frank Northrup, Chicago; A. B. Thomas, Detroit; J. W. Fooks, Delaware; T. J. Darnidge, St. Louis; W. Hartman, Cincinnati; Ben. Bergdorf, New York; E. P. Crawley, New York; W. S. Baker, Chicago; J. H. Conrades, Jr., St. Louis; E. A. Everts, Chicago; W. E. Pingshottam, New York; H. M. Sprigg, Chicago; A. F. Soide, New York; W. J. Walsh, New York; A. W. Meadow-Sweet.

Francis Wayne, in Longman's Magazine. The meadow-sweet was uplifting Its plumelets of delicate hue, The clouds were all dreamily drifting Above the blue. On the day when I broke from my tether, And fled from square and from street— The day we went walking together In the meadow, Sweet. The meadow, sweet with its clover And bright with its buttercups lay; The swallows kept eddying over All flashing and gay. I remember a fairlike feather Sailed down your coming to greet, The day we went walking together In the meadow, Sweet.

Something to Remember.

If you are going east remember the "Rock Island Route" run the sleepers and chair cars of this solid vestibule train to and from the Omaha depot, leaving Omaha at 8:45 p. m., thus avoiding the transfer at Council Bluffs. Steamship Races Don't Pay.

"When it comes to freight," says the agent of the French steamship line in New York City, "these races do not pay. After the Cific sails there's no transatlantic freight" left here to speak of, anyhow. The Cific burns, they say, only 135 tons of fuel daily, and makes the passage in ten days or so. You can imagine the profit there is in a boat like that. Then the old Adriatic of the same line goes along with eighty-five tons and makes the passage plenty fast enough for freight. She's a regular gold mine beside these new racers." The agent says "a terrible amount of room must be sacrificed to coal on the racing ships."

The Grand Prerequisite of Vigor.

The dual operation of digestion and assimilation is the grand prerequisite of vigor. To insure the conversion of food into rich nutritious blood, it is only necessary to use with persistence and systematically Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The fountain head of supply in the animal economy is the stomach. To regulate, to invigorate that organ, and thus facilitate its digestive and assimilative action, is the grand aim of those troubled with a deficit of stamina. Nervousness, insomnia, feeble appetite—these are usually traceable to impaired digestion. Overcome this and you instantly dismiss its multifarious, perplexing and harassing symptoms. The emaciated can never hope to gain his strength as assimilator is imperfect. The Bitters surmounts the only obstacle to an increase not only of vigor, but of bodily substance. Conquer also the Bitters makes it a duty to give a complaint, constipation and rheumatic trouble. Thoroughness characterizes its effects.

The Vanderbilt Barn Dance.

At the dance in Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt's stable at Newport, the other night, the most electric plant furnished the illuminations upstairs and down. Over the carriage doors hung bright red peppers, and all over the ceilings were frescos of pumpkins, squashes, egg plants and other garden vegetables, the groundwork being of oak leaves, and oak leaves were used for the decorations of the sides, leaving places for floral panels in the shape of horse collars and yokes for oxen. Flowers were also made up to represent harness, fitting about as if on pegs.

A Hevotatory Watch.

R. M. Thompson, of Bayona township, Indiana county, Pennsylvania, has, perhaps, the oldest watch in the country. It is of the bull's-eye pattern, keeps correct time, and was made by James Luechert, of Glasgow. The timepiece was purchased by Mr. Thompson as a grandfather while crossing the ocean in June, 1889, and consequently has been in the Thompson family over one hundred years. The present owner is proud of it and would not exchange it for the finest gold watch made.

Merits of Southern Women.

Northern people have always had a good many queer notions about their cousins of the south, and the queerest of all is the notion that the southern women are not practical, says the Sunny South. On the contrary, the women of the south take to business as untruly as a duck goes to water. They have not the tendency to insist that the gentlemen earn their bread, and they find their way to take things as they find them, and make the best of the situation. Without the least appearance of effort or sounding of brass-tongues, they go into business, and their failures are too few to talk about. It was nothing uncommon in old times to see a woman riding about in the fields bossing the negroes and the overseer. She usually supplemented this cure on her own account, with a general supervision of the country side, and her masculine neighbors were only too glad to consult her on matters of common interest. Many a debt-burdened estate has been freed by the feminine turn for detail, a faculty that too many planters lacked before and since the war.
