This old proverb is exemplified every year at the fair when awards are made on penmanship. Prof. L. J. Rohrbough, of the Omaha Commercial college, carries all the first premiums at the late fair.

At the Omaha Commercial college begins Monday night. Bookkeeping, arithmetic, reading, spelling, shorthand and typewriting taught.

Do you know that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway has the shortest line from Omaha and Council Bluffs to Chicago? Well, it has, and runs cars every day in the year direct from the Union Pacific depot, Omaha, arriving in Chicago, Milwaukee and all points east and north as soon as any other Missouri river line.

They Go to Lincoln. At the request of many business men, the auction of Pierre's real estate will be removed to Lincoln during the state fair this week. There are few opportunities like the Pierre auction sale to double and treble money. Pierre is secure, whether she gets the capital or not. Buy with the capital, with all that it means to be the capital of a great state. The auction sale which closed in Omaha more than came up to expectations, and as it is better advertised, the Lincoln sale is sure to be a good one.

County Commissioners have ordered up a bill about Commissioner Turner's cars. It seems the law allows township road supervisors a salary of $35 per year, and when O'Keefe discovered a bill yesterday of $146.05 sent in by H. R. Andrey, of McArdie precinct, for services in August, he raised a howl which scared Turner, who sought protection from the professional money man.

It has developed that Inspector Byrnes, of New York, is looking for Mr. Lighthall, who brought suit for damages against the Metropolitan Cable company some time ago. He is reported to have paid $200,000 to the man who had control of the patent for a new cable grip which was an improvement over all others.

ALL FIRST PREMIUMS Awarded to Union Sewing Machine at the Fair and Exposition. Crowned With Success and Covered With Glory, The Union Leaves the Ground With Colors Flying.

Forty-five years in succession the Union sewing machine has swept the board of every first premium—a fact which confirms the verdict of the world's fair, where the Union was awarded the first premium and gold medal for being "the best machine for general use."

Competitors have striven to break this record by importing the work of experts from all over the country to compete with work done at Omaha, on the Union, and as a result have obtained, at the most, second premium, or "honorable mention," while the Union has in every case carried off the first premium. This is chiefly owing to the reverse feed—a special feature of the Union—which enables an ordinary seamstress to perform with ease what on other machines can only be attempted with difficulty by experts.

The display made by the Union this year—all the work of home talent—was certainly the finest ever seen in this city. Embroidery of every description, roses and pansies, sunflowers and lilies that rivaled the beauties of floral hall, made their booth the most attractive at the fair. Infant robes were shown stitched with No. 400 cotton thread, a thread so fine that it is only made by special order for the Union. No other machine can use it, and yet the Union showed garments containing thousands of yards of stitching made from it without a missed stitch or broken strand.

Their samples, with the premiums awarded, will remain on exhibition at their salesrooms, 1067-1069 Howard st. Call and see them. It will pay you.
