MR. MAGEE A SMOOTH FRAUD.

He is a Few Thousand Dollars Ahead On His Wire and Picket Fence Machine—Other Nebraska News.

LOOK OUT FOR HIM. BLOOMINGTON, Neb., Sept. 12.—[Special Telegram to THE BEAR.]—A number of our farmers have been taken in by a slick swindler, who operated in this county about a year ago. Last summer a man named W. T. Magee, came here to sell a wire and picket fence machine. He was a smooth talker, and succeeded in getting a recommendation and endorsement from County Attorney Fletcher, of Franklin, which he used with telling effect in overcoming the doubts which existed in the minds of the more cautious of his victims as to his reliability and honest dealing. He induced Sheriff Eli Brown to take the manufacture of the fence. He got the names of farmers whose individual notes would be good and started out. He was so successful that he left this county with over $2,000 and operated in Kansas just south of here to the extent of about $4,000. Magee, by expiating the many good qualities of his fence, and the almost absolute certainty of an universal demand and sale for the same, succeeded in getting his man to sign an agreement to act as his agent in the sale of the fence in their respective townships, the fence to be manufactured and furnished by Mr. Brown at wholesale rates. The agent appointed signs a plan to a notary public for $120 to secure Mr. Magee for two and one-half miles of fence that he is endeavor to sell in one year. The agreement further states, "and if said two and one-half miles of fence are not sold at the expiration of one year, and said $120 not being returned, the said agent, W. T. Magee, or his authorized representative, are unconditionally empowered to cancel said obligation, and to appoint another agent in his stead, returning to said agent the original sum of $120." Soon after being appointed the agent, Magee the fence is of no practicable value and will not sell. But he feels secure in thinking his note will be returned, if at the expiration of a year he has made no sales, and he now up and he receives a notice through a bank that his note has passed into innocent purchasers hands and is being sought for collection. He further finds that it is a plan, negotiable note, and has been sold by Magee without recourse, and that he is obliged to pay it.

Evidence a hand made duplicate of the bullet from Billings' person, but it was ruled out. A report is circulated to-night on the authority of a witness for the defense that there are two witnesses who will testify that they sold a revolver to a second party, who they sold to a third party,
