Omaha 13, Des Moines 7. The base ball championship came to an end on the local grounds yesterday afternoon with a rather lull game between Omaha and Des Moines.

About three thousand spectators witnessed the battle, which was won by Omaha after a long draw out and spiritless struggle.

The bleachers had more fun than anybody, and from the opening to the close they did little but yell and hoot and say the players, both sides coming in for about an equal share of their attention.

Wandell, the man with the largest lungs on earth, was in his reserved seat just back of the reporters' pew, and kept the autumnal atmosphere vibrating with dissonant vociferations.

Many of the spectators drew a long sigh of relief when the contest was over, and Wandell gave one last despairing screech and ran across the field and climbed into his 24 buggy.

They were overjoyed to get rid of the old colt. Clarke and Messitt were in the points for Omaha, but neither distinguished himself.

Dad pitched an indifferent game, and as a consequence was batted hard. Hart did the rotating for the Hawkeyes, and it was his ball that smelt!

From the moment Dooscher yelled "play ball!" until the last man went out. But to describe the game by innings would be a useless waste of a couple of cents worth of lead pencil, and the gentle reader will have to rest content with the information they can get out of the score.

It might be well, however, to state that the Des Moines team, played like a lot of decorated old women, and they ought to go home, split up their hats into kindling wood, and go back on the farm.

He Will Stop Talking. AUBURN, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—The particulars of a somewhat sensational event are coming to light in this city. Last spring a young man named Jim Mason was ousted from the Commercial house for non-payment of his board. This so angered him that he talked derogatory concerning the house and proprietors, and especially of Miss Ida Chrisman, daughter of the land-lady. Last week he made his appearance at the house again, and was again freed. On Wednesday night Miss Chrisman learned that Mason was sleeping in a livery barn run by her brother. Summoning the brother, she compelled him to escort her to the barn, where she met Mason, knocked him down and pounded him on the head with one of his shoes, which had become loosened in the fracas, until he begged for mercy, and everything he had said about her and apologized. She then let him up to go his way, while she went home and to bed as if nothing had happened.

Nebraska City's Gamblers. NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—In this city gambling is carried on to just as great an extent, and as openly as before the anti-gambling law was passed, and with the full knowledge of the police and other city officials. Nearly every saloon in town runs in connection with it a card room and several professional gamblers are on full blast day and night. The most notorious of these is run in the rear of a saloon on Central avenue near Eighth street, and is conducted by a professional skin-game gambler, and is run as openly as ever a game was run in Nebraska City. The game is run on the most approved gambler's style, with capers and Nebraska City water and light company yesterday filed a mortgage for $100,000 given to the American Loan and Trust company, of New York, to secure the bonds of the new water company which had been purchased by the Loan and Trust company.

A Woolen Mill For Burwell. BURWELL, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—C. G. Schellinger, of Streator, Ill., has arrived in Burwell, and is looking over the town with a view of starting a woolen mill here. Workmen have been engaged all over the town, and the proposition, which has been submitted is that if the town will give a bonus of $15,000, he will start a factory employing between fifty and seventy-five hands. It is likely that the proposition will be accepted.

Will Not Build. CROFTON, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—It is reported that the Yankton & Crofton road, which was voted for at the election, and that the managers are trying to get the time extended on the bonds six or eight months. The bonds were voted with the understanding that the road should be built by January 1, 1891.

A Big Mortgage. NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—The American Loan and Trust company yesterday filed a mortgage for $100,000 given to the American Loan and Trust company, of New York, to secure the bonds of the new water company which had been purchased by the Loan and Trust company.

A Short Session Looked For. NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—District court convenes in this city to-morrow with Judge Field on the bench. It will be an unimportant session and will most likely be a short one. Most of the cases were filed in nomination for the court. There are no criminal cases of importance.

Will Marry. SOUTH ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—South St. Louis court Covington are contemplating an incorporation of both towns under a new name.

State Politics. STROMBERG, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—The school building to-day was held in the city school building to-day and was the hottest ever held in the city, there being two factions and both striving to elect delegates favorable to their choice for the county treasurer. This is the only office spoken of particularly, and its importance is based on the county funds, which amount to about $400,000, and the two factions are scheming for a deposit with one of the funds.

Seward, Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—The democrats of Seward county met in convention Saturday afternoon and elected the following officers: Treasurer, William N. McNeill; county clerk, August Reuckman; assessor, Charles H. Galt; coroner, Wm. H. Miner; coroner, Dr. Frank Greedy; surveyor, John A. Cocklin.

Dr. P. S. Merrill, of Philadelphia, has been transferred to the Nebraska city hospital, and will be the pastor of the First church, Omaha.

During the past week the trial of J. W. Shank, residing editor of the Grand Island district has been in progress and was concluded yesterday. Charges of financial crookedness and tampering with evidence were preferred by his brother-in-law, Rev. Brooks, of the same district. The trial was kept strictly from the members of the conference except the jury and witnesses. Mr. Shank was acquitted of all charges.

A powerful sermon was delivered this morning to an immense congregation, by Bishop Vincent on the text "On Earth as in Heaven." In the afternoon Bishop Vincent addressed the ladies and conducted a C. S. L. temperance service at the Grand Hotel, Lincoln, preached to-night. The conference closes to-morrow.

Missed the Jugular. BENKLEMAN, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—James Hamilton, a son of one of Dundey county's prosperous farmers, made an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide this morning by cutting his throat with a knife. He was taken to the hospital, however. Dr. McClane was summoned and dressed the wound. He is about twenty years of age and has been demented for the past two months. He will be sent to the asylum at Lincoln.

The Growth of Newport. NEWPORT, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—Among the flourishing young towns situated on the Fremont, Elkhorn, & Missouri Valley railroad in the Elkhorn valley, Newport is fast coming into prominence. She has succeeded in making herself the commercial center of Rock county. The surrounding country, which but three years ago was an unbroken expanse of rank grass and luxuriant meadow valleys, is now dotted over with pleasant farm homes surrounded by waving fields of grain and corn, attesting the prosperity with which this section has prospered. The latest industry which has been added to Newport is the butter and cheese factory, which is owned by George C. Holt & Co. of Kansas City. It is the most complete and much the largest establishment of its kind in the state, having a capacity of 200,000 pounds of butter per day, with all the improvements known to the modern manufacturer of butter and cheese. This is the first decided move made to convert the rich Elkhorn valley into the great dairy country for which it is so especially adapted.

The Stone Company Sued. PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special to The Bee.]—The petition in the case of Francis N. Gibson vs. E. L. Reed and the Wyoming Water & Power company has been filed in the office of the district court. The petition states that in 1877 the defendant, Reed, gave a note for $5,000 for value received, bearing interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum. The interest has been paid only to June 15, 1890. One hundred shares of the Wyoming company's stock, par value $10 a share, were given as collateral. Plaintiff now brings action to compel said Line & Stone company to transfer the stock to her name.

An Elba Fire. ELBA, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Last night the residence of W. H. Corey was discovered to be on fire and by the united efforts of the town's main building was saved. Loss from $300 to $500, covered by insurance.

A Missing Mason Found. KEARNEY, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Telegraphic advice was received here to-day from Perry Johnson, of Council Grove, Kan., stating that John A. Greenlee, the missing Mason from this city, is there and insane. The Masons here were notified of the affair, and Secretary R. E.

FRONT LEFT THIS EVENING TO BRING HIM

Back to the County. On Thursday about 10,000 people were on the grounds. There were more entries than ever before, especially of horses. The old pens were not nearly so full as they were. The cattle and horse stalls were full, also the sheep pens. The display in floral hall was fine, especially in the works by the ladies. Vegetables were too hard to handle and corn that stood on the stalk as tall as a seven-foot corn could walk under the ears were featured. J. T. Halsted, of Trainball, had on exhibition three year-old mares that was said by good judges to be the best Norman mare of the age in the state. She weighs nearly fifteen hundred pounds.

Finis Borses Soli. ASHLAND, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—C. G. Hayes, a stock buyer of Edgar, who has been in this city for the past few days buying fine horses, left to-day with seventeen of the finest horses in this part of the country for which he paid $7,500. He drives them to his home whence he will ship them to St. Louis.

Tired of Life. GRANT, Neb., Sept. 21.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—Robert Braden, a farmer living south of Grant, becoming tired of life, took a dose of laudanum yesterday evening to end his days. Dr. Cooper was summoned and by administering proper remedies has braced in a fair way to recover.

Successful Drawing Room Readings. A slender, graceful woman, in an aesthetic gown of black, with a voice of perfect harmony, held the rapt attention of some fifty ladies and gentlemen in Mrs. John Horbach's drawing room Saturday evening. The lady was Mrs. John Bailey, of New York, the apostle of physical culture and the voice. Her first appearance before an Omaha audience was under the most favorable auspices and she was given a reception which was indeed flattering. Her appearance, her easy, graceful and a charming address, her pronunciation and education are admirable, and her self-possession is of such perfect refinement as to suggest utter unconsciousness of self. The programme embraced recitations, serious and intense, with a pleasing gaiety interspersed, giving her an opportunity to exhibit the wide range of her powers. Her negro dialect and Irish brogue were extremely diverting, and elicited enthusiastic applause.

Rotary Snow Excavator. Union Pacific headquarters were invaded every day last week by a fat jolly gentleman who owned a patent snow plow, which, he said, not only beats anything ever invented, but will stand the test for all time. It bore as a distinguished title, "Jill's Improved Centrifugal Excavator," and is so constructed as to be an effective horror to either snow drifts or land slides. The gentleman came to Omaha to show his plow, and he comes from Brooklyn, N. Y., and his countenance somewhat resembles that of Charles Francis Adams. The plow offered by him is an improvement on Jill's rotary, in which the revolving knives have been replaced by an immense auger, that simply forces its way into the snow, operating at such great rapidity as to send the beautiful a distance of 150 feet. Three very severe tests of the plow were made at the headquarters of the Union Pacific for two, to be delivered here next month.

Another pair of Jobst brothers has arrived at the home of Jake Jobst, of the contracting firm of Jobst brothers. Prof. Wallner, who has been the instructor for the Liederkranz, a German singing society, has gone to Germany. The society escorted him to the train in a body.

Thomas Collyer, of Rhinecliff, who was in Mr. Collyer's employment for thirty years, invented an apparatus to make a strike on the bell in the tower that stands a hundred yards away. Mr. Collyer owns the clock and the apparatus. The two weights weigh forty pounds. The clock is as bright now as when new.

Impurities of the blood often cause great annoyances at this season; Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, and cures all such affections.

The Frog Rides the Turtle. In a Hartford restaurant a large green turtle and a frog are inmates of the fountain tank. A frog cannot always remain under water, and there is no chance for the fellow in question to reach a landing place on the side of the tank; but he has discovered that the top of the turtle's back is out of the water except when the turtle dives. So he mounts the back. When the turtle goes under water he swims around until the back comes to the surface again, when he mounts and continues his trip.

Three Sundays to Meditate. A condemned criminal in England must be allowed to see three Sundays between his sentence and his execution. Of course, he can't see his family. A little over two weeks, but the three Sundays must pass over his head before the gallows claims him. The custom is a relic of medieval times, when a criminal was allowed that much of a respite to prepare for death.

SIGNS OF DISINTEGRATION.

The Iowa Democratic Ticket Not Very Cohesive.

BOIES A VERY BITTER PILL. The Farmers' Alliance May Not Swallow Him—The Coming Contest Promises to Be a Very Tame One.

Organized Failure. DES MOINES, Sept. 22.—[Special to The Bee.]—The "go-as-you-please" ticket nominated by the democrats at Sioux City this week already begins to show signs of disintegration and it is doubtful if it can hold together until they meet their "Waterloo" in November.

The bourgeois seemed to have become somewhat weary of their railroad allies and gave the cold shoulder to several corporation cappers who aspired for places on the ticket. Boies, the candidate for governor, however, is a thick-and-thin railroad lawyer and hails from one of the strongest corporation centers in the state. The railroads have made Waterloo what it is, and no candidate from that town could be expected to develop any positive opposition to the wishes of his benefactors. The democratic farmers who belong to the alliance will swallow Boies with a very fawn, and some of them are likely to kick clear over the traces and vote for Hutchison.

Bestow, the candidate for lieutenant governor, is much more acceptable to the farmers, he having already, as a member of the state senate, made something of a record as an anti-monopolist.

Judge Hranan may poll his party vote, but being pitted against so popular a candidate as Bestow, he is not likely to make any alarming inroads into the republican columns.

David Morgan, the democratic candidate for railroad commissioner, is an anomaly. He is a Quaker and, it is said, is also a radical prohibitionist. Just how and through what influence he was led into the democratic circle is not known, but it is suspected that he is only a democrat by brood, and if the truth were known, he is only a little sour over some local matter and is only willing to stay in the democratic party so long as he has some assurance that the republicans are not likely to agree in saying that he is an excellent man and a true-blue anti-monopolist, and if this is the case he will retire from the ticket and move to make the election of Spencer Smith unanimous. Wells and Lund and the railroad combine proved a disastrous failure last year, and only served to run up a majority of 50,000 for the republican ticket.

This year the democrats have gone to the other extreme and the result will likely be the same. The republicans are not satisfied with Spencer Smith, and they are not satisfied with the democratic and union labor candidates remain in the field. The moss back democrats, so far as heard from, do not take kindly to the same. All three of the leading candidates were republicans during the war, and "war issues" have not been entirely forgotten by the average voter. To vote for the "black" republicans, even though running on the democratic ticket will be more cour than they can swallow without a special effort. All three of the leading candidates are very easily as the campaign progresses.

The license plank, which was finally adopted, is very acceptable to the "slough water" districts, but is gail and wormwood to the river counties. The local option feature is very repulsive, and the minimum fee of $500 is too high in the estimation of the enterprising bootlegger of Dubuque or Davenport. The average democrat of the river counties, where prohibition is not enforced, prefer the present policy to strict license law as contemplated in the resolutions passed by the state convention.

The effort to make a breach between the Farmers' alliance and the republican nominees for governor and lieutenant governor has fallen flat. Both Hutchison and Poynter have declined their position on the railroad question and both endorse the position taken by the recent state meeting of the alliance. The alliance is very anxious that the present law be maintained and strengthened by giving the commission power to make joint rates over two or more connecting lines, and this will undoubtedly be done. It looks now as if the campaign would be devoid of any special interest.
