WIZARD AND CHINAMAN.

How the Great Hermann Imposed on a Too Credulous Celestial, "Talking of the Chinese play here," said a well-known lawyer to a New York Sun reporter, "I never had more fun than I did at a Chinese performance in San Francisco several years go. I went there with Hermann, the magician, and several San Francisco journalists. It was in the Chinese quarter, and the performance was the adjourned set of a play that had been started a month before. In the lobby were a lot of Chinese peddlers selling Chinese sweetmeats, oranges and other fruits. Herrmann made a dead set at the orange man, a thin-faced, avaricious tooking fellow, who wore a queue about five feet long. Herrmann ought an orange and cut it open. With an exclamation of delighted surprise, his eyes sparkling and his face lit up with smiles, he drew a $5 gold piece out of the pulp and held it up so that the Chinaman could see it. The latter's eyes bulged from their sockets and a pained look of disappointment crossed his expressionless face. Herrmann bought three more oranges, and from each he drew a shining fiver. By this time the perspira-tion rolled in beads down the Chinaman's face, he looked so sick I felt sorry for him. He gathered up his stock, muttering to himself, and when Herr-mann wanted to buy another half-dozen the Chinaman refused to sell them. "'I'll give you a dollar for them,' said Herrmann.

"The price was only 12 cents, but the Chinaman was tired of giving away gold pieces.

"'Me no wantee sellee,' he said, shrilly. "A few moments later he retired into a corner, and, with the air of a conspirator, began to cut up his oranges. One after another they went, and his look of disappointment became darker and darker as the magic gold pieces failed to appear. It was actually tragic when the last one was gone, and Herrmann gave him $1 to prevent his committing suicide." Will you suffer with dyspepsia and liver complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is

"What do you suppose is the most salable article we have?" asked a Nassau street stationer of a New York Sun reporter; "that is, what we sell the most of? Pads of writing paper? No, sir. Scrap-books. The growth of the demand for scrap-books is remarkable. Everybody seems to keep clippings, The present demand is the growth of about five years. Up to within a couple of years we always put the words 'Bills' or 'Letters' on the back of the book, with the idea that the books wer used for filing letters and bills chiefly. There has been a complete revolution in the trade. Now we make the backs of plain teather—no lettering is put on at all. The books are used for bills and letters as much as ever, but the chief call is for saving newspaper clippings. In the offices of most of the bankers, brokers and railroads down town, a boy is regularly employed to paste in clippings which re-late to the business in hand, and which have previously been blue-penciled. These offices buy scrap books by the dozen. All sorts and sizes are wanted, but one with a plain cover and a page large enough to hold three half-column clippings from the Sun is the favorite, The envelope systems for saving scraps
