Captain C. A. Dempsey in Court-Martial Answers the Charge.

A' FLETCHER - SCANDAL RELIC,

The Principal in That Case Being the Leading Witness in the Sequel, With the Accused. as Cross-Examiner.

Before the Court.

The sequel to the court martial of Lieuterant Colonel Joshua S. Fletcher took place yesterday morning in the trial of Captain Charles A. Dempsey, company B, Second infantry, in the court martial room, army headquarters, Ban building.

The detail of the court was as follows: Colonel Heary A. Morrow, Twenty-first infantry, presiding officer; Captain P. Henry Ray, judge advocate; Major James S. Casey of the Seventeenth infantry; Major Daniel W. Benham, inspector of small arms practice, Seventh; Major Edgar R. Keilogg, Eighth; Captain William S. Worth, Eighta; Captain Clarence M. Bailey, Eighth; Captain Thomas E. Rose, Sixteenth; William M. Van Horn, Seventeenth; Captain Stephen P. Joceiva, Twenty-first; Captain Daniel T. Wells, Eighth: Captain Patrick Cussack, Ninth cavalry; Captain Martin B. Hughes, Ninth cavalry; Captain Clarence A.

Stedman, of the same regiment. The charges, consisting of conduct unbecoming an officer of the United States army, abusive and opprobrious language, and assault upon Colonel Fletcher, were read to the In response to the interrogation of the court, Captain Dempsey pleaded not guilty to all the charges and specifications, and Colonel Fletcher was called to the stand. The colonel bustled in in a highly nervous manner, and doffed his flowing cape and cap upon the feporters' table, and seated himself at the table before the judge advocate. His face was very pale, and there was a noticeable twitching of the nerves about the mouth, while he trembled perceptibly. He was evidently much perturbed. In his testimony, the colonel said: On the morning of the 19th of June last, Captain Dempsey was sitting on the porch in front of his house. Mrs. MicFarland, my wife's sis-ter, called him into my house. She yelled to him: "Captain Dempsey! Captain Dempsey, come in here." He came, and Mrs. McFar-land continued: "Colonel Fletcher accuses and continued: "Colonel Fletcher accuses you, captain, of having improper relations with my sister, Mrs. Fletcher. The captain immediately seized me by the blouse and said: "Did you say that?" I said I did not. Mrs. McFarland cried: "You did, you did!" I raised my hand and said: "Before God, Captain Dempsey, I did not, and if you will wait I can explain all this. There is something behind it all.

Mrs. McFarland continued her accusations in a loud tone of voice. Again 1 held up my hand and said "Captain Dempsey, I never said this, so help me God." He then said, 'You are a damned coward and a liar," and released me. He remained a moment longer and departed. In the evening he returned with Adjutant Kinzie when the latter came to report roll call, Dempsey said, "I demand an explanation." I said, "Captain Dempsey, I'll give you an explanation in the morning, in the presence of some officers, when everything is calm and quiet. He replied, "You are a damned list and a coward," and walked away with the adjutant. I did not request him to call at my house. Lieutenant Kinzie was present at this second interview. Captain Dempsey's manner was disrespectful and un Cross-examined by Captain Dempsey, Col onel Fletcher was asked: When Mrs. Mc-Farland told me what you said, what was the first thing I did? "You seized me and said: 'Did you say

"Did you make a motion with your hand!" "What called for the declaration from me that you were a 'damned liar and a coward?'

"Nothing that I know of, unless it was "Did Mrs. McFarland say that you called her sister 'a dammed thief and a liar?' '' very violent and continued to charge me with the allegation against you." "In addressing Mrs. Fletcher, that morning, did you talk loud enough for me to hear you that morning!" "Yes, I raised my hand, when I declared that I had never said that." "Did you exercise the functions of a commanding officer toward me at that time?"

"I think not. I did not place you under "Why did you not!"

"For the reason that I thought I could satisfy you that I never made the accusations; that I could avoid publicity, save my wife's name, prevent an ugly scandal and save you trouble; that I could tide the affair over and avert trouble for all of us. "Why did you finally take action in this matter as regard to myself!" "Because I found that my explanations were not accepted that the thing had become public, become a scandal and I could not prevent it. That was my sole reason. I felt that it was my duty."

In redirect examination he was asked if he had waived any of his rights as commanding officer when the episode occurred. "Yes, sir," was the answer.

"Do you deem it one of the prerogatives with your understanding of the regulations of a commanding officer to waive any of 1 rights or duties when in command of a post! I do, if it is for the good of the service? "Did Captain Dempsey at either of the times mentioned shake his fist in your face?"

"No. I don't say that he did."
"Did you inform Captain Dempsey or give him to understand that you waived your authority and privileges as a commanding

Lieutenant Kinzie was next called to the stand, his testimony being little more or less than corroborative of Captain Dempsey's, so far, at least, as the first meeting between Colonel Fietcher and Captain Dempsey was Afternoon Session.

The court reassembled promptly at o'clock, Captain Cusack being absent. The judge advocate announced that he had one more witness, Mrs. McFarland, by whom he expected to prove that Captain Demosey did seize Colonel Fletcher and call him a liar and a coward, and wanted to know whether this evidence could be adduced without bringing her forward, as she was in bad health.

Captain Dempsey said he was willing to admit what the judge advecate expected to prove by her. The court was here cleared for deliberation. On again being thrown open the judge advocate announced that Mrs. McFarland would not be called. The prosecution then rested, and the evidence for the defense taken up. Colonel Pictcher was the first witness. He cution of your office during these interviews as my superior officer!"

"Did I disobey any command of yours on these occasions? No. I think not."

"No. I think not."
"Did I offer you any violence except by soizing you, as you have stated, on the morning of the 19th?"
"No, except the language you used toward ing become public. I thought then it my duty to prefer the charges." Captain Demosey—When was this so-called expianation made?

"At the moment when I declared before my God that I did not make the charges alred against me The Court-Was your action taken of your wn accord? "It was. And I still say that I never made these charges; that they are false; I never made these charges; 'continued the colonel, vehemently and excitedly, 'against Captain Dempsoy, Dr. Henderson or any other living man, I swear this before my God. They are false; they emanated from a bad woman, a woman of bad reputation, Mrs. McFarland." The court ordered the latter sentence stricken out.

The court here adjourned until to-morrow morning at 3 o'clock.

THE K. P. GRAND LODGE.

The Annual Session Will Begin In This City To-Day.

The Knights of Pythias grand lodge will begin its annual session in the hall of Nebraska lodge No. 1, on Fourteenth street, between Douglas and Dodge, this morning at 10 o'clock.

Mayor Broatch will deliver the address of welcome, offering the visitors the freedom of the city. The response will be made by Grand Chancellor W H. Love, of Lincoln. Following this, the lodge will go into lose session for the examination of creden-tials, etc.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock the members of the grand lodge will be taken for a drive about the city, under the auspices of a com-mittee composed of representatives of all the city lodges. The party will start from the hall where the session is held, and will go from there to Sixteenth street, thence parth to Wirt to Twenty fourth to Company north to Wirt, to Twenty-fourth, to Cuming, to Lowe avenue, to Farnam, to Twentyfourth, to Leavenworth, to Sixteenth, to Vinton, to Tenth, to Mason, to Eleventh, to Farnam, thence to Tue Bre and New York Life buildings, where the party will alight and inspect these buildings, thus completing a most enjoyable programme.

Wednesday morning the session will be resumed, and, from all appearances, will be closed by Wednesday evening or Thursday noon, as there has been no business of any par-ticular importance developed which will prolong the session.

Two committees have been appointed to ook after the entertainment of the grand odge during its session. The first of these is the executive committee, of which Dr. S. R. Patten is chairman, with U. B. Balcombe,

C. P. Murphy, George Sabine and Julius Treitschke as assistants. The other is the reception committee, composed of Charles Bachmann, chairman, and Will L. Scism, James A. Brown, Captain Hayward and F. S. Dow. This last committee entered upon its duties this afternoon, when the delegates began to arrive.

E. F. French, the grand keeper of the records and seal, has prepared his annual report, which will be submitted to the grand lodge this morning. Among other things, it will say: The state or the order in Nebraska, as indicated by reports from the various lodges, is most gratifying, although the net increase in membership has not quite equalled that of the preceding year. A great number of new lodges has been organized and four vacant numbers in the roster filled, so that now, for the first time in many years, every member, from 1 to 122 inclusive, represents a live lodge.

The work of the year may be summarized as follows: Number of charters restored phans' fund, $546.46.

The value of lodge property and investments amounts to $40,442.51. The grand lodge receipts for the year end-ng October 1, 1889, were $7,133.12; cash balance on hand as per last report, $3,403.05; total, $10,586.17. Dispurements during year, $6,653.79; balance on hand, $3,882.38. Amount of real estate leans and interest, $3,225. Total cash assets of grand lodge,

They wanted to be employed to hunt Mrs. Colonel Babbitt's black French poodie. It is understood that he has negotiated the Metz Brothers, Storz & Her, and Jetter & Young, South Omaha, with a view to ac-quiring their breweries at the prices pre-viously asked, providing they can be induced to sell without Krag's brewery being included in the deal. By holding out for $1,000,000, Mr. Krug, it is said, prevented the sale as far back as last July. Maloney offered Mr. Krug $800,000. This sum was refused. A Patriot for Dollars When the inspired writer penned the sentence "Love of money is the root of all evil" he, in the vernacular of the western miner, "struck pay dirt."

Love of money and politics are responsible for many strange happenings. Here is a case in point:

About three weeks ago the public was nolified by the press of the city that the Polanders of Omelia had formed a political club with a view of taking an active part in the coming elections.

Dr. Slominski, late of Poland, Bohemia and Russia, later of Unicago, who has an office on South Thirteenth street, between Howard and Jackson, is president of this society, in fact, the doctor is responsible for

A desire to ascertain what position the club will occupy in the coming election is what prompted a reporter to visit the doctor's office about a week ago.

with diamonds and radiant with enthusiasm. This latter feeling was doubtiess prompted by the fact that the doctor is a "specialist" and believed he had a case in view. "Doctor," began the reporter, "I under-stand that the Polish crizens of Omah Omaha have organized a political club and that you have been chosen as its president?" "That is true," replied Slowinshi.

The "president" sat in his office ablaze

"Well, doctor, I am here in the interest of man who wants an office, and in order to get it must have a little support. What is the olitical complexion of the organization, and ow many members are there on the roll! The Poles as a rule are democrats-by the way, what is your man? Oh, a democrat! Well, as I said, the Poles as a rule were democrats, but this fall, under my guidan e, they propose to take independent action The society numbers now about two hundred and fifty or three hundred members, and is gaining every day. What does your man

"He is working for the nomination for ounty commissioner, and wants support in the coming democratic primaries.' "My club embraces a few republicans," in-terpolated the specialist, "but they will do just as I tell them. In what district does your man live?"

"The second," was the rejoinder.

"That's good," said the doctor, "my men nearly all live in the Seventh ward, although there are a number in the Eighth. Now understand, the society is independent, but will support any man I say. They will vote for no candidate, democratic or republican, without first consulting Dr. Slominski. They will go to the polls like sheep, if I say it's right, and will do just as I say in every particular "I have had a great deal of experience in elections," continued Slominski, "When Carter Harrison was a candidate for mayor of Chicago, I organized the Poles and was president of eight clubs. I voted 'em just as I pleased. Why, on election day I was arrested three times for swearing in illegal votes. My, what a 'reasting' I did get in the newspapers. But I didn't care, I made $2,000 just the same."

"Well, doctor, can you help us out a little in this matter!' "Why, of course I can. I can give you the solid support of the Polanders, and, in addition, I can help you out on the Russian vote. The Russians are going to form a club, and I speak Russian better than I do English. Besides there are about twenty families of them related to my wife, and that helps, don't "Well, doctor," said the reporter, "my man is well fixed financially, and won't object to putting up a little sugar. Now, how shall we fix that?"

"Oh, you bring your man around, and 1 guess we can make arrangements all right, ad here the reporter took his leave. On Friday last another visit was paid Slominski. He greeted his caller warmly, "Come right in," he said, "and sit down. Here are some imported Russian eigars and igarettes, help yourself, I thought you had hat he had been so busy he could not call "Well, well," jerked the doctor, impa-tiently, "what does your man say? What does he want to do and where is he? Does he know that we held a meeting last night, and that we had an attendance of over 400? Oh, I wish he could have been there. Now, say." he continued, while his listener was vainly trying to frame a single reply to all his questions, "I will tell you what I am working for. I want to build the Poles a I am working to that end. agree to vote you 400 men for $150-$100 for the church, and $50 for myself. Of course," he added, "I will have to buy the men some eer and pay two or three ward workers.'

"But how will you satisfy us that you are teeping your promise?" was asked. "Why, I will call a special meeting of the club right away. Will take you and your man right down; make a speech to the men, and tell them that your friend will give them $100 to build a church if they will all yote for him in the primary, and they will do just what I say. I have spent lots of money this fall already and I want to get a little of it back. Oh, I know how to work this thing just right. I wouldn't support a man as cheap as that for any other man beside yourself. A man came to me the other day and wanted me to vote my men for him; said he would give me $300 and his horse and buggy, but I told him he could give more to a Polish church than that. Why, I told the men a few nights ago that we might just as well make something out of this as not. You can trust me for doing what I say, and no one will be the wiser for it. Carter Harrison gave me $2,000 and promised to make me health officer if I would help him out. I did so, and was arrested three times on election day. You see I was president of a lot of Polish clubs, and there are about eight thousand Poles in Chicago. So I had to walk around and see that things were going all right. All day I floated around. At one polding place I swore in about two hundred or two hundred and fifty votes. Knew the men. oh, I guess so, but I didn't care to be caught at the business. One of the judges was sitting on the pile of vouchers, and when he rose up to look over the table I stole them and took them to a drug store and burned 'em. When I was arrested on the charge of hav-ing sworn in hundreds of illegal votes, the papers could not be found and I was released. It was a great piece of work." "This matter, you say," continued Slo-minski, "relates only to the primaries; elec-tion is different. My men all work and will have to come up early. They can't lose two "Oh," said the reporter, "if he gets the nomination we will have another talk. I suppose you wouldn't object!"

'Not at all," said the specialist "And a little present wouldn't be out of the way 'Not at all," again responded Slominski. "Well, consider the matter settled; we give you $150 to 'build a church.' I will have my man here to-night. "One hundred for the church, fifty for me," said Slominski. "It will be all right, only mind you, you nor your man must never say anything to anyone about this matter, for if you do I will never forgive you and instead of helping you will go against you."

There is no doubt but that the pos-sessions of the company here are of vast importance. The Union Pacific has filed a proposition relative to the refunding of the debt, but it is a lengthy document and I have not considered it at length.
