The Bethany Baptist Church society entertained a dime sociable at the residence of S. Chapman, 710 Third street, last evening. There was a goodly number present, and the occasion was a very pleasant one.

There will undoubtedly be a large attendance at the driving park this afternoon if the weather is warm enough to make it driving and a comfortable time for spectators in the grand stand. The horses entered are well matched and there should be some interesting exhibitions of speed.

V. P. Williams et al have filed two petitions in the district court against William Siedentopf. The plaintiffs, fifteen in number, claim by inheritance lots 1 and 9 in block 23, lots 3, 14, 22 and 23 in block 38, and lots 1 and 7 in block 32, Perry's addition. Mr. Siedentopf has a tax deed interest in the property.

The Kildare woman, who was killed in a house of prostitution at Covington a few days ago, was well known to the police department, having paid a monthly "fine" into the Bluffs treasury until a few months ago. It is stated that she received the first round beatings while here, and accordingly figured in police court.

John Gilbert has contracted with the owners of the Healds to put in a large steam heating boiler and also place a number of closets, washbasins and other needed sanitary appointments. The work will be commenced at once. Mr. Gilbert has also received the contract for doing the plumbing work in twenty Omaha residences, the total cost aggregating about $10,000.

A number of the friends of Anton Rink were somewhat surprised at his conduct yesterday, but his eccentricities were pardonable under the circumstances. He was kept so busy during the early part of the day describing the wonderful qualities of his newly arrived hair that his tongue became weary and he fell asleep before the first round of cigarettes given by the wholesaler just the same.

A little difficulty over a game of pool led to quite an exciting scrimmage in a centrally located billiard room in the city yesterday morning. The participants were a well known young man of this city and the traveling representative of a leading illustrated weekly. Bystanders interfered before the first round was finished, but not until the local pug had drawn first blood. The visitor was not so severely hurt and the matter was hushed up as quickly as possible.

The Stables of the Transfer Company Go Up in Smoke.

ANOTHER MINIATURE REBELLION. The Motor Company Hurrying Down Fifth Avenue—The Electric Light Company to Make Several Changes—District Court.

A Disastrous Fire. A disastrous fire occurred at the corner of Tenth avenue and Fourth street about 7 o'clock last evening, by which the stables of Cousins & Nansel, otherwise the Council Bluffs and Omaha Transfer company, were entirely destroyed.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, and while some are inclined to think it was the work of an incendiary, there are reasons for thinking that it may have been otherwise, and that a criminal was the guilty party.

Last night, owing to the great crowd that thronged to the scene of conflagration and the incalculable excitement, it was impossible to find out the cause of the fire, and others who were in the stable at the time the fire broke out, but it is very probable that when the fire broke out, the stables of the transfer company were filled with a large quantity of merchandise of various kinds, which the company had either on their wagons waiting to be delivered this morning or placed there for temporary storage.

This was the largest fire that has occurred in the city since the Stewart packing houses were burned six months ago.

THE OMAHA DAILY BEE: SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1888.

seems that Mr. C. B. Judd has employed a woman to look after a number of new cottages which he has been building on that avenue. The story told by Knight is to the effect that at a late hour Thursday night he heard the watchman engaged in a tussle and chase after some one, and he seized his revolver and started out to assist him.

The watchman had no revolver, and Knight immediately turned back on the retreating party, who returned the fire.

Several shots were exchanged, but no one seemed to be killed, or even uncomfortably injured. Suffice it to say that the stranger got away. Knight alleged that he picked up a shirt sleeve with blood stains on it, and that he hit the fugitive, as the "shot to kill."

Knight was positive that the fellow was a first class burglar, and that he had a lot of money, and a bundle of rags saturated with oil was also found near the building.

The fight to the official ears, and the police started out to investigate. The rags were found, and the place where they had been thrown, showing that the burglar had been there, and that he had been there for some time.

It seems that the burglar had been there for some time, and that he had been there for some time, and that he had been there for some time, and that he had been there for some time.

concerns cannot be regarded as beneficial or as having a particularly elevating effect upon the minds of those witnessing such performances. Nevertheless a rattlesnake chorus would most likely prove a great attraction in the dime museum of the present day.

Attacked by a Squirrel. A little son of Charles Sumner, not quite two years of age, while out with his mother and sister yesterday in close vicinity to their home was attacked by a large gray squirrel, says a Canton, Mass., special to the Boston Journal.

The mother attempted to scare him away by instead of running off, the animal climbed up her little boy's dress to his face and bit and scratched him in many places, making the child scream with fright and pain. The child fell to the ground, but the squirrel still held on to his face and bit and scratched him in many places, making the child scream with fright and pain.
