COMISKEY AND THE BROWNS.

The St. Louis Crack Club Badly Beaten By the Cowboys.

A VERY ORDINARY EXHIBITION.

Brooklyn Again Defeats New York in the World's Championship Series-Turf and Diamond Notes of Interest.

Kansas City 14, St. Louis 8. The game at the ball park yesterday afternoon between the St. Louis Browns and Kansas Citys attracted a crowd of several hundred hardy enthusiasts. The game was one of the series these two teams are playing for the championship of Missouri, an honor valued at least at sixty-five cents. The hyperborean weather alone accounts for the slim attendance, and to-day, if there is an improvement in this, a much larger crowd will assuredly be on hand.

Yesterday's contest was what might very properly be called a very ordinary game, and many of the prejudiced spectators left the grounds firm in the belief that the Omahas could have made monkeys out of either aggregation. The great Browns were changed about in a manner The great that almost obscured their identity, and in no way did they succeed in distinguishing themselves, outside of Tip O'Neil's tremendously long home run hit.

The Cowboys, which are composed almost wholly of last year's Western association players, jumped onto young Stivetts. Com-mey's latest phenomenal rotator, and made him wish that he was under the daisies. It was biff! bang! smash! all through the battle, and after seven innings had been recled off, and the Four Time Winners were hopelessly trailing, Umpire Ramsey called the game with his left hand, leaving the score 14 to 8 in favor of the cow punchers.

Brooklyn 10, New York 7. NEW YORK, Oct. 23.-|Special Telegram to THE BEE. |- The fourth game of the world's championship series was played at Washington park, Brooklyn, to-day. Brooklyn again won an unsatisfactory game, only six innings being played. Both teams were wrangling continually, and feeling ran high. The Giants lost all chance to win by poor work in the field. Score: NEW YORK. | BROOKLYN.

The Game To-Day. The Browns and the Kansas Citys will play their second game at the ball park this afternoon, and with good weather a large crowd will turn out. Game will be called at 8 o'clock sharp. The Omaba's Banquet.

The Omaha gun club's annual banquet took place last evening at Maurer's. The spread was very tempting, and the "crack shots" present did ample justice to the same, many of them demonstrating a better capacity for gastronomic exploits than they possess for smashing blue rocks. Major John Petty delivered the address of welcome, bringing tears to the eyes of all around the board Frank Parmelee replied with such a degree of eloquence that the blue points turned over in their shells. The gentlemen all enjoyer in their shells. The gentlemen all enjoyed themselves after their characteristic way. and many were the good things got off "ove the wainuts and the wine."

Robinson Thinks He Can Win. The catch-as-catch-can wrestling match be tween Tom Conners, the champion of America, and Frank Robinson, the Dakotan, which is to come off at the Coliseum next Saturday evening, is exciting much interest in sporting circles, and there seems to be considerable doubt as to the outcome. Robinson is train ing bard, and showing up harder and better every day. He says he is confident of giving Conners, one of the most exciting bouts of his career, and that if he don't finally defeat him, he will be surprised.

Davis and the Unknown. The Gate City Athletic Club is making elaborate preparations for the fifteen round sparring exhibition at their rooms Friday night, between Jack Davis, the big 'un fron Denver, and the Unknown from St. Louis

The ring at the club room is being carpeted and preparations made for the accommodation of a large crowd.

Russia Will See That Turkish Outrages in Armenia Cease.

LONDON, Oct. 23 .- The Turkish officers in Constantinople have been thrown into a fever of excitement by the discovery that Russian agents have been at work for over three months in Armenta gathering evidence of cruelty and outrage practiced by Turks and Kurds upon helpless Armenian christians. Russia now has a case to justify in the eyes of Europe an invasion of Armenia to shield the chris tian inhabitants against the revolting cruel ties heretofore repeatedly charged but never proved against their Turkish masters. There is every evidence that the porte has become thoroughly awake to the peof the situation and that the long-sought forms in the administration of Armenia will be put in force with feverish baste, and tentatious publicity to the ear of christian Europe.

The Style in Missouri.

WILLOW SPRINGS, Mo., Oct. 23 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE. - A sengational horse-whipping episode in which an angry beauty and two prominent citizens figured, took place here yesterday. Fanny Osborne, aged eighteen, received a letter from Travis Taylor, a married man, asking her to elope with him. Miss Osborne showed the letter to her mother, and, securing a rawhide, the two women came down town after Taylor. They encountered him in . front of Justice Young's office, and while the mother held the man the daughter plied the whip. Justice Young arrested them, and a prominent citizen furnished bonds. Then, as the justice stepped out of his office, both women attacked him with the whip until he was forced to run. The crowd looked on and cheered. The justice did not attempt a second arrest

Granted an Absolute Divorce. TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 23 .- Special Telegram to THE BEE. |-An absolute decree in divorce was yesterday granted to Mrs. Chn ton F. Ferry upon a cross-complaint to that filed by Mr. Ferry. Under the decree Mrs. Ferry is awarded the care of the child and receives from Mr. Ferry $50,000 as her portion of the estate. Mr. Ferry states that he made no contest of the complaint for his wife's and the child's sake to avoid scandal This is the case growing out of the sensa-tional developments in Paris recently, where Mr. Ferry was representative of Washing ton territory at the world's fair.

Mencel's Bory Cremated. NEW YORK, Oct. 23 .- | Special Telegram to THE BEE. |- The body of Antonio Men.ci, friend and associate of Garibaldi, was reduced to dust yesterday by incineration. Meucci was a free-thinker, and he had stip ulated that no religious ceremonies should be performed over his remains, but there were Masonic rites attended by a large number of Italians. In the room where the body lay, at the late Lome on Staten Island there were numerous wreaths of ivy and laurel. On the wall hung a wreath of immortelles which had been sent by Saivini, the tragedian, with the inscription, "To Garibaldi's Friend."

A Unique Insurance Case.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.- | Special Telegram o THE BEE.]-A unique insurance case terminated in Judge Hawes' court to-day. Mrs. Anna Zak recovered a verdict of $1,090 against the high court of the Independent Order of Forresters for the death of her husband, Jan Zak. Zak was expelled from the order because of immoral conduct in leaving his wife and going to live with an other woman. He returned to his wife, who nursed him during his last illness. The court decided that the expulsion was because Zak was not given a chance to de fend himself.

Investigating the Kibbe Murder. CREIGHTON, Neb., Oct. 23.-[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-County Attorney Rice to-day examined six witnesses in attempting to solve the mystery of the Kibbe murder. The murderer is still at large and no clue has been found as to his mentity. No doubt remains, however, that Kibbe was stealing grain and was shot by parties unknown, who were on the watch.

Politics in Hall County. GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Oct. 23.—[Special to The Bee.]—Politics are quieter here this campaign than ever before in the history of the county. It seems impossible to arouse the public. The cause for this lack of interest is unaccounted for, except that the effects of the campaign last fall have not yet worn off. The candidates are the choice of their respective parties and of no clique or faction. Hall county gave the national republican ticket last fall over 300 majority, but in county politics one-half that number is all that can safely be counted upon, and even this is unreliable, owing to the large foreign element. The republicans have nominated a strong ticket, which will undoubtedly be elected in full, but it will require lots of work, as the democrats have selected their besmen, those that will poli their full party vote. New complications have arisen in regard to the postmastership. Frank Sears appeared in the field last week supported by a large number of influential republicans. There are now three condidates out, but Scorff's chances are not to be counted with Murphy's or Sears'. From the present outlook a strong compromise will defeat the field. Higgins' term as register of the land office expired September 30, but as yet no succesor has been appointed. Hall county has two candidates for this office—Schlotfield and Representative Demuna—and one John and Representative Denman-and one, John D. Moore, for receiver, but Baker's term as receiver does not expire until June 30, 1890.

A Well Patronized Road House. PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Oct. 23.- | Special to THE BEE. |-Last Sunday two well known young men hired a horse and buggy from a livery stable in this city and started for a drive into the country. When about four miles from the city they stopped at the house of a farmer, who owns a very large vineyard and who manufactures large quantities of wine each year. After purchasing several bottles of the sparking liquid and drinking to their hearts' content, they started for home in a very hilarious and inebriated condition The horse, which was a spirited one, became frightened and ran away, throwing the men in a ditch by the roadside and completely de-molishing the buggy. The men were not seriously hurt. The farmer stores his wine in a large cellar on his place, which now con-tains several hundred barrels. For many nonths the cellar has been a favorite resor for lovers of the beverage. Young boys who place and often become badly intoxicated be fore they leave. Hecently several young girls of respectable families of this city have been enticed to the place, provided with wine by their escerts, and after imbibing too freely returned to their homes in a disgraceful condition. Calls for wine are answered promptly at all hours of the night by the pro-prictor, and on Sundays he reaps a harvest.

A High Old Time. LOUP CITY, Neb., Oct. 23 - Special to THE Brg. |-Four men who attended the entertainment at Arcadia last night and who had evidently given that town a "rosy tint," came down this morning still in a most hi larious frame of mind, and proceeded to touch up this city in a similarly artistic man ner by turning over a billiard table in one saloon, assuming the management of a blacksmith shop and firing the workmen into the street and ending their season of disgraceful festivities in another saloon by pulling from his chair Mr. G. Holmes, an aged and inoffensive citizen, throwing him down and fracturing his arm near the shoulder joint. This accident somewhat sobered them up, and calling a surgeon they had the fracture attended to and paid the bill. However, as Mr. Holmes is seventynine years of age, it may prove more seriou than anticipated.

Sarpy County Prohibitionists. SPRINGFIELD, Neb., Oct. 23 .- | Special to THE BEE. | -On Saturday the prohibitionists met in convention and nominated a full county ticket. Resolutions adopting the platform of the state prohibition party were read, and necessary arrangements were made, atter which Mrs. C. M. Woodward, of Seward, addressed the convention. Saturday evening an attentive audience listened to Mrs. Woodward, after which she organized the Woman's Christian Temperorganized the Woman's Caristian Temper-ance union of Sarpy county with the follow-ing officers: President, Mrs. Anna J. Rogers; vice president at large, Mrs. Leach; corresponding secretary, Miss Mary Swain; recording secretary, Mrs. Saulsbury, of Papillion; treasurer, Mrs. Frazier, of Fair-view.

Mrs. Woodward again addressed the people at the Methodist church on Sabbatt afternoon and concluded the series by meeting for mothers this afternoon.

They formed their orces about 10 o'clock and went to where the Short Line is trying to put in a "frog" to get on the bridge, taking coupling pins, hammers and axes to pound with. They kept up their pointding until 12 o'clock, when the Omaha road sent a train loaded with men over from Sionx City. The pounders then quit work and hid themselves in the tall grass on either side of the track to see what would be down. Considerable profanity was indulged in.

FOUR BOATS ASBORE.

Coal-Laden Vessels Wrecked on Lake Michigan.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 .- The steamer D. Ballantine, her consort, the barge Ironton, and the tug Protection went ashore in a bunch at Winnaka last night about 10 o'clock. It was reported that the schooner America was ashore not far from them. It is hard bottom where the vessels struck, and with heavy seas running the chances are that they will be broken up. The Evanston life saving crew was notified, and there is thought to be little danger of loss of life. The vessels were laden with coal and are owned in Cleveland.

As soon as the life saving crew arrived on the scene it began the work of rescue. The crews of the barge and tugs were taken ashore safely, but those on board of the schooner preferred to remain with their vessel. The Ballantine will probably be a com-plete wreck, but the barge and tug will prob ably be hauled off to-day. The Ballantine is valued at $43,000.

it was finally decided that a special committee should be appointed to investigate the matter and consult some attorney and act in the premises. The following gentlemen were named as such committee: J. E. Riley, A. E. Coggeshall and Albert A. Ritchie.

After a few general remarks about the making of a poil list of voters the meeting adjourned till Saturday at 8 o'clock. It is understood that vigorous steps will be taken to test the new registration law and the late action of the city council.

German American Buergerverein. The central club of the German-American Buergerverein held its regular meeting las night. Phil Andres stated that Jacob Houck charged him with having attempted to change the Buergerverein into a democratic club and in consequence he wanted to tender his resignation, which was not accepted. Otto Kinder reported that a committee had seen Mr. Segelke in behalf of the funds left by the anti-prohibition club, but that he would not deliver them, stating that he had no right to do so; the fight was not over yet, and the funds had to be used only for this nursone. Gunpowder. More than one hundred tons of gun powder are stored in three magazine on a small island in the bay but two miles from New York city and within 800 yards of the Communipaw docks at Jersey City, says the New York Times. The island is known as Ettis Island, and is three acres and a half in size, with a rough, rocky back on all sides. It has been in use as a powder depo or the navy department for nearly thirty years, and all the buildings on the island, of which there are eleven are of a plain, old-fashioned appearance although they are said to be still sound and good for many years' future service. The main building is circular in form, and is built close to the water' edge on the northern extremity, facing New York. It is a somewhat straggling looking building from the outside, being irregular in height, and painted a bright yellow; but inside the greater portion of the 100 tons of powder now on the island is housed and inspected

There are two kinds of powder in the magazines. The prismatic powder, of which there is 130,000 pounds, or about sixti-five tons, is packed in small square boxes, and the common cannon powder of which there is 200 barrels, or about forty-two tons, is stored away in barrels, as there is less danger of combustion from this grade of powder than from the other. Inside the magazines, the powder is kept, the cases and barrels are carefully ranged in rows along the walls, and a daily examination of the condition of the combustibles is made. On fair days the magazines are opened and aired, but great care is taken to exclude the damp. No one is allowed to enter the powder magazines without having first removed his shoes, and even then he is cautioned not to handle anything dur ing his inspection of the great storerooms, while a vigilant watch is kept to see that he observes the commands properly.

Besides the circular storerooms there are two others, standing near the center of the island, which contain powder. Then there is a large building, half workroom and half storeroom, for cartridges and gun cotton. In this building a force of three men is employed in preparing the ammunition for war ships. In this workroom there are half a dozen kinds of gun charges These are the one, three and six-pound shells for the Hotchkiss breech-loading gun, and the five, six and eight-poun shells for large cannon. Some of these shells are plain, while others have steel tips, and their shapes vary according to the make of the gun to which they belong.

One of the most interesting of these charges is for the six-inch ritle bore.

The charge is composed of numerous small pieces of compressed powder of a peculiar six-sided shape. The man employed in making the charge begins by placing a round piece of board be-fore him on which are painted figures exactly resembling the bits of compressed powder used. He then inserts an iron red in the center of the board. after which he attaches the powder to it by round holes bored through the center of each piece. When the first pile is made he begins to build the blocks up around it until he has a column of a circular form about five inches in thickness. A cotton bag is then placed over the charge to keep it in place, the iron rod is removed, and the bag is incased in a copper cylinder until used. This is the most complex and difficult charge used in the navy department.

Two of the buildings on the island are residences, and the remainder are used as workshops and magazines. All are painted a bright yellow. The residence of Gunner Smith, who is in charge of the magazines, is a commodious brick structure, two stories in height, facing the entrance to the big bay. Near the main magazine stands an engine house, containing a stationary engine capable of throwing water to any part of the island. A hose and reel are attached to the engine house and the flow of water can be conducted to any part of the island with little de-Owing to the close proximity of Jersey City, a close lookout is kept for sparks coming from that place.

The regular force of watchmen in charge of the magazines numbers four, but there are now eight men on the island, not counting Gunner Smith This increase is due to the vast amount of work required to load the shells for the men-of-war that are soon to sail. The empty shells are sent to Ellis Island from the projectile depot on Governor's Island, and all the loading has to be done in the shops adjoining the magazines. This is due to the fact that all the incoming ships leave their ammunition on Eths Island before entering the harbor, and do not take on any ammunition again until they are on the point of leaving the bay. Every facility for hastening the work of loading a ship is to be found on the island. There is a small railway leading from all the principal buildings to the wharf, on which the powder and shells can be conveyed more quickly and safely than by hand. A small pier, projecting into the sea, affords landing for the smaller steamers and sailing vessels.

The contents of the magazines, at present, are principally powder, gun-cotton and torpedoes. Although the island is so near Jersey City and New York, it is not easy of access. In the first place, it is necessary to gain per-mission to land on the island, and then it is necessary to find some sort of craft to convey you there. After spending an afternoon in searching for the proper officer to whom to apply pass, and then undergoing a chilly submersion while venturing out in a small sailing vessel, with the intention of gaining the island before dusk, the pleasure gained by the contemplation of the plain looking buildings on the sland would scarely overbalance the perils encountered.

The Czar's Favorite Diversion.

The Schloss of Fredensborg, where the king and queen of Denmark have been entertaining the Russian imperial family, the royal family of Greece and the princess of Wales during the last is twenty-eight miles from Copenhagen, says the London World It was completed in 1722 by Frederick IV., who christened it the castle of peace. The Schloss is approached from the road by an avenue of limes, and it is an immense building, containing 400 rooms. There is a spacious courtyard, and the principal apartments look out the park. The center of the building is much higher than the wings, and here is the dome hall, where the royal party usually dine. The park at Fredensborg is very beautiful and of vast extent. It is bordered by the Esrom Lo, a wide lake, on the opposite side of which is the great Grib forest, full of beech trees and swarming with game. There are a number of boats and a couple of steam launches on the lake, and the czar goes out on the water every fine day; but his favorite pastime at Fredensborg is pursch shooting-i. e., shooting from a carriage either by moonlight or at day The gardens are very quaint break. one of them being filled with marble statues, columns, seats and figures which date from the seventeenth century. The park is famous for the Northmen's valley, which contains about seventy statues of Norwegian peasants in their national costumes of the seventeenth century.

Uncle Sam's Boys and Girls.

In 1880 there were 50,000,000 people n the country, and about 682,000 more males than females. That was only because more males were born; the females live the longest. Of the centenarians 1,400 were men, and 2,907 were women. The boys start out nearly 1,000,000 ahead, and are in the majority until the sixteenth year, when the girls are a little more numerous. Sweet sixteen is a numerous age anyhow. that first one and then another is in the majority, the girls gradually gaining after thirty-six, and leaving the men far behind at seventy-five. To balance this longevity of the females, in almost every state a few more boys are born; not many more, but always a few. It is astonishing to see where the census gives thousands and hundreds of thouands of boys and girls under one year old, there are, with one or two exceptions, always a few hundred more boys, and only a few hundred more,

Good Words for Wilkie Collins. Those who really knew Wilkie Col-lins recall with sadness his singular kindness and charity of beart, and the singleness and simplicity of his character, his trustful nature, his old-world courtesy of manner, his entire freedom from anything like literary envy or jealousy, and his tenderness for all dumb creatures, says London Truth. In literature, Walter Scott was the object of his worship, and he probably never passed a day without taking up one of the Waverly novels, and he had a very warm admiration for the genius of the elder Dumas and of Bulzae, but especially the former. With recent con-temporary French literature he had little sympathy. Of the works of his close friend Dickens "David Copperfield" was his favorite, and Boswell and Lockhart were constantly in his hands, and were what Montaigne would have called his bedside books. •
