STRANGE CHINESE SIGHTS.

The Big Pacific Steamships Transformed Into Joss Houses. FATE OF THE IMPORTED WOMEN.

San Francisco, Oct. 22.—[Special to THE BEE.]—"If you'll come with me into the fore-castle of the ship, I'll show you something worth looking at," said a custom house inspector to your correspondent on the deck of the City of Peking.

The inspector leading the way through gloomy apartments until the nostrils of the pilgrims were filled with that indescribable odor which Chinamen have a monopoly, and the entrance to the fore-castle yawned grimly wide before them.

The floor of the room was bounded by a triangle whose vertex was the stem of the ship. The floor was half covered with chests constructed after one pattern and of the same size. Upon six or seven of them the owners were reclining smoking Chinese pipes and gazing with "rapt admiration" at a black and sooty "god" inclosed in a gorgeously painted shrine.

here and that there is a society organized for their protection. Women are valuable articles, you know. Almost any of them is worth $1,500. The ease with which the Chinese women are landed was well illustrated the other day.

Senator William Stewart, of Nevada, appeared in Judge Hoge's court the other day on an order to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court.

When Mr. Fox made an effort to obtain the Light House, he found that Senator Stewart had taken them east beyond his reach. He heard no word from them. His letters, he alleges, were unanswered, and he was not even informed that one of the children had died.

Sir Edwin Arnold and daughter have sailed for Japan on the Pacific mail steamer Belgic. A large delegation from the Century club of this city, and many personal friends bade farewell to his charming daughter.

California can do. Among the delegates are many men distinguished in official life, ex-governors and congressmen. The session will last ten days. It is expected that a great many friends will accompany the delegates.

The rains have injured a few grapes and a little hay, but at this season it is to be expected that anything left out of doors will get wet. Showers in October are natural and desirable.

Having a disastrous effect upon the Chinese business firms of this city and coast. The records of every passing month show a number of failures of mercantile houses in Chinatown, and the prominent Chinese merchants themselves admit freely that the entire Chinese interests are doomed to result in one big history of failures within the next five years.

During the weeks he has been stopping in our city, our people have become well and favorably acquainted with him, and believe that he will honestly, faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of his office.

POINTS ON THE CANVAS-BACK.

A Few of Which John Chamberlin Knows Nothing About. WOULD'NT WASTE SHOT ON 'EM.

The Wary Canvas-Back. The Chicago Herald of last Sunday contained a lengthy disquisition on the canvas-back duck by John Chamberlin, which would pass current as an able article with all those who know nothing about the nature, habits and characteristics of this royal game bird.

As a starter, it is asserted that the Chesapeake canvas-back is really the only canvas-back, excepting from the standpoint of the naturalist; that the North Carolina, the Illinois, Texas and California canvas-backs, in gastronomic merit, are no more to be compared to the bird that frequents the Chesapeake and its myriad of tributaries than the mud-bun can be likened to an acorn-fed mallard. This is the first misstatement.

The writer has killed canvas-back on the Chesapeake and at Carrington, too; also at Koshkonong, near the Illinois coast, as well as here, over the waters of the Missouri and the Platte, and it is asserted, with emphasis, that the canvas-back of Koshkonong and the lower Illinois, has no superior in the world—in fact, the birds here are, on an average, bigger, fatter and more luscious and more palatable than the birds first mentioned.

And then, too, it would require the most convincing evidence that could possibly be furnished by means of culinary perfection to induce the confession from the Nebraska ducker that any bird in the world even beats his canvas-back in the matter of beauty he brings to bag every autumn along the Loup and the Elkhorn, and in the marshes of Honey creek, Onawa and Wabasha.

THE ACTUAL RESUITS.

THE PROVIDENT SAVINGS LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY OF NEW YORK.

Paid to September 1st, 1889, Death Claims of $1,292,000.00. At a Total Cost to the Holders of the Policies of 64,967.25. The Ordinary Life Premiums of other Companies would have been 204,641.31. A Saving in favor of the Provident Savings of 69 per cent. 139,674.06. Or in other words the same premiums would have secured from other Companies (ordinary life rate) only 410,210.00. Instead of the amount paid by Provident Saving 1,292,000.00. COMMENT IS UNNECESSARY.

continues, "is not the natural progenitor of our sooty turkey, or derives its name from its resemblance to that edible." It is doubtful whether Mr. Chamberlin ever saw any wild cery, (vallisneria spiralis) for it bears the remotest similarity to our table cery, but it is, as stated in these columns of last Sunday in answer to a correspondent, a thin, narrow, grass-like plant, always found in the remotest swamps of celery flavor, but pungent and delicate in taste.

Still another inaccuracy of Chamberlin's is that he says the canvas-back cannot be taken in a net. He is right, however, when he declares them the most difficult of all wild fowl to bring to bag, but this simply means their incredible velocity of wing and their extreme wariness, and not their refusal to decoy. Under the most favorable auspices it requires a quick eye and an accurate and unerring aim to stop a canvas-back, and the hunter must be scrupulously cool, and careful and cautious at all times.
