"DONE UP" A SWEDEN.

The case against George Myers, for the killing of Ned Platoon, on the night of Decoration day, is on trial before Judge Hepsell.

The evidence adduced does not differ materially from that offered at the preliminary trial of the case in the police court. The facts as shown are that Myers, Platoon and several friends were playing pool in a saloon at Twentieth and Cuming streets until nearly midnight.

In the trial of the case Miss Paul, a new witness, was introduced by the state. She lived at Myers' house at the time of the tragedy. She testified that when Myers came home that night he told her wife that he had "done up" a Swede and would show them that they couldn't run the town.
