Two Remarkably Mean Men

Two Remarkably Mean Men. Louisville Commercial: One of the richest men in Louisville some time ago rather reluctantly gave his note of hand at six months' time for the sum of §500 to aid in the establishment of a most worthy charity. The time has not yet expired, but the institution was pressed for funds and the managers asked the millionaire to anticipate the maturity of his note and help them out. Much to their surprise and disgust he com-plied by discounting the paper for fifty-five days' interest. The transaction got on the street and has been talked about for the inter few days. said a down-town business man sturday to a group of friends, "I used to know a citizen of this community, who was just about as 'noar' a person, as the Yankces say, as over I met. I give you my word that this old codger, who was in the drug business on a promi-nent theroughfare, used to go to a pop-ular saloos, where an elaborate free lunch was set out every day at just noon. He would walk up to the bar, buy a five cent eigar, which he invariably put carofolly away in his pocket, then he would tackle he lunch. And my! how he would make the soup, the cold ment, the salad, the choese, the pickles dis-appear. For fully fitteen minutes he would make the soup, the cold ment, the salad, the choese, the pickles dis-appear. For fully fitteen minutes he would minister to the needs of the in-ner man, then would wash his hands and return to his apothecary shop as well satisfied as most pon would feel after a dinner at Delmonico's. But what do you think he used to do with that five-cent cigar-for he never smoked? Sold it to the first customer who came in for 10 cents."

their fine Berlin and Frankfort gar-ments to don the curious costumes of their forefathers, and to learn to bake, and scrub, and wash as their mothers and grandinothers did before them. The cleanliness of the "Gressenar!" has made them famous throughout Italy. It is a proverb that their barns are cleaner than other people's houses. German is spoken in the family, French in the churches, and Itulian in the schools. Consequently all the Gress-onars know at least three languages. Artificial Teeth.

The finest artificial teeth are made of the best ivory, but the great majority of false masticators now in use are simply pieces of specially prepared hard mores-iain, says the Surgical Roporter. The following is one of the processes adopted for their manufecture: Fine encined or roasted quarts powler, well-ground fluor-spar, china clay and a very little oxide of the are very intimatoly mixed and ground together, and sitesward made into a soft paste with water. This paste is poured into molds of various kinds and sizes of teeth, and allowed to set. The plastic grinders are then transformed to a furnace, where they are "cured" — that is, half-baked or hardened to a minace integer they are they are covered with an enamel made of paste of spar and quarts, and finally subjected to an intense heat until they are sufficiently baked, when they are ready for the dentist.
