at the house of Signors Teresa Tofl. No. 30 Vin Cernaia, Rome, by two parties, who said they were for a German ycentioman staving there. There happened to be a German lodging in the house, and Signors Tofl, believing the boxes were for him, took them in. When the German examined the contents he declared the boxes were not for him. The landlady allowed him to remain a few days, thinking there must have been some mistake, but no one turning up she tried to find the porters who carried them to her house, but in this she was unsuccessful. She finally consulted the police, who exhausted every in-quiry in vain and took pessension of the boxes, which new He in their custody. I have seen the boxes and have been an-formed of their contents, but I have not been allowed to inspect them. Amongst a number of books in French, English and Italian is the will of Jeseph Colgaits, who died in America on June 13, 1855, and an envelope addressed to Eugenia Colgate, No. 55 John street, New York city. There are also others addressed to Italians in Kome, who, however, can't be found. The Horald's expedition to meet Stanley is warmly approved by the French, German and Italian papers, and the editorial of the Independence Belze, cabled you some three ago, in reference to Stanley and the Herald, has been reproduced by fifty three different newspapers in France alone and is rapidly making a tour of the entire continental press. The little commune of Audes, department of Allier Tremdouze, is in commotion. Abbo Martin was robbed of 00,000 france under the following circumstances. He relates the story himself: "At 2 o'clock in the morning of November 13 I was in bed anteen. I sud-denly felt the clutch of two strong hands about my threat. I was gapped with a bootjack and my head was covered with a bootjack that fould neither do-fend myself nor shout for help. I felt the point of a sharp steel instrument pressed against my ear and a man's voice exclained: 'If you move you are a dead man.' The rob-bers then found the sum of 00,000 frances. which whole district of modern but very un-alubricus habitations had to be bought up and cleared away. The Ghette, though not amongst the unhealthy list, was thus en-tirely swept away, and six new bridges also were begun. Only one of the latter, Ponto Garibaidi, has been finished. To presecute these immense works thousands of masons, Garinaidi, has been finished. To presecute these immense works thousands of masons, brickiayers, painters and carpenters were induced to come to Rome and all went on mercily till the funds began to lack. Then one by one the different works came to a standstill, workmon were thrown out of employment, and then dis-content, which culminated in the disorderly rows and roots of February 5 last. The subborites, round to do something, arcsited a number whom they designated the ring-leafers, and who, by the way, have not yet been brought to trial. (We want habeas corpus in Italy). Others were sent by the government to ther homes in warding pain of the kingdom with injunctions not to re-turn to Rome, unless they should first be an-pointed to work here, under benalty of im-prisonment. Another large loan was con-tracted and several of the interrupted works were recommenced, and If you move you are a dead man." The rob-bers then found the sum of 60,000 france that I had received the day before and tool it away with them. As they did this they cut the cords with which my brother and myself and been bound and disappeared. It would be impossible for us to recognize the robbers even if we should see them." The history of these 60,000 francs is very The history of these 60,000 reaces is very curious. They are the annual revenue re-ceived by the abbe for a number of years. It seems that ten years ago a haggard young man, clad in rays, called upon the pricet and said that he had dishonored his family, wanted and several of the interrupted works ware procommenced, and thus the discontent was atilad for a time. The alarming fact new comes to light that the munichelo has thrown its last state, that it is staterly impossible to go on without pecuniary help from the government, and that suich help must be given at ence before winter sets in. The king has critered a commission of inquiry into this state of affairs. Doubt was to be done nobedy seems to know, but as to be done nobedy seems to know, but as to be done nobelect.

Outshines All Other Subjects. Hongriad 189 by James Gorden Benard. Toxnoo, Nov. 31.-New York Herald Cables—Special to The Hrs.1—Although there is a little bit of a sire going on in the political world, owing to the natural anxiety of the Gladstonians to flud out exactly where they stand, and to the growing perpictives of the outervalues, yet the main interest still centers round those dreadful social ascandals to which I roferred last week, and to which I noterred last week, and to which I noterred last week, and to which I an compelled to rotarn, for although many of the great London papers maintain silence with regard to them, the public is not silent. In every circle these scandals and events to which they are likely to give rise, form continuits subjects of discus-ation. How can it be otherwise, considering the names which are associated with them 1 As for supposing that the newspapers have prover by keeping silence to hush up the models which is the met here hough As to apposing that the nowspaper have power by keeping silence to bush up the whole affair, that is the most hopeless of delumions. The "secret" is now a very open one, and too many persons are deter-mined it shall come out to afford any chance open one, and too many persons are deter-mined it shall come out to afford any chance of permanent concealment. Let the mility persons be brought to justica. That is the first, last and inevitable requirement of the situation. There is no compromise possible, and there ought to be none. The injury that is caused by the oresent state of affairs is incalculable. Scandal mongors are going about repeating the names of entirely innocent persons and accusing them of complicity with the crimes. In this way listeners increase hour by hour until if one histonet to all that is said it might be supposed that haif the mon of fashion about town were enveloped. Conjecture runs wild and scarcely anyone is spared. Fire of this kind soon spreads, ns we all know, and it is impossible to say where it will stop. For this reason, among others, and guided by his usual discretion and knowledge of the world, the prince of Wates immediately on his return to London the greater may further attempts at concentant He has been absets from London the greater at of the theme of public runor, and of course he can't be held responsible, directly or indirectly, for what has been done or left undon to public of renders in the doubles. He is not minister of justice, but he doubless has a correct ap-preciation of the increase of mischief that would be occasioned by efforts to screen the criminals simply because they occupy high stations in society. If anything could strike a density blow at what may be called aristo-cratic institutions it would be that. The fast is that the heavy forema of sumes has now fact is that the busy tongue of rumor has now been darted at so many persons in the very highest circles that for the protection of society itself prosecution is indispensable. There is not the least reason to doubt that some of the gentlemen-to give them their society itself prosecution is indispensable. There is not the least remaon to doubt that some of the gentiomen-to give them their conventional name-who have been traced to the abominable house went there innocently. They were taken there by friends merely to see what was going on, and it is possible that some of them thought it was a gambling house. At any rate that will be the defense set up in a few onset. Of course it will be for the jury to decide whether this is a creditule story. The actual proof of guile can't be arrived at in all cases. That is the root: on which the news-papers that publish names are lakely to come to grief. They can't possibly hold the evi-dence which will be requisite to prove their accusations. But is there no evidence int There is, and upon that will hang a good deal when parliament are fully resolved the averything shall be dragged into the light of day, coule uw could. They will be found as a raile on the radical side of the house of commons. which persons who are well known to nave been guity, have been suffared to escape. Home Socretary Matthews can't possibly be ignorant of the circumstances connected with these proceedings. At any rate it was clearly his business to know all about them, consequently there will undoubtedly be a formidable attack made upon bim when the session opens. I have heard it stated that the radicals confiduatily satisficate being able to drive him from office on the stread that the radicals confiduatily satisficate being able to drive him from office on the stread the head doue acything which can properly render him amenable to severe party consure. If the persons hurs ist down are inno-cent, as I can't doubt is the case, at least in some instances, what a horrible vrong is inflicted on them by the foul stam which is now cast upen their sames. That is again and again considerations which show the authorities the folly of supposing that permanent concellment is possible. Of course there will presently be some paper or other a little bolder than a local imper which has been hinled up today that will publish the whole list. The editors will forthwith be sent to prison. But can the matter rest there is up that if the police authorities will not do their duy the press must not be prosecuted for trying to commet them if is it desirable to have a series of press persecutions in com-mention with such as senatal as this?
