sticks, a little clock in ormois and dainty accommanients too many to describe.

Adjoining this room is a dressing room, and here she tilts her blonde head and pensively droops her snowy lids before a dressing table, the wood of which is entirely covered with blue and white sath, with jewels of crystal glass set in the frame at intervals. On the table stands a large plate glass micror and the brushes and comes in repeases silver, the perfumed waters and delicate loitons that go to make up a fashiomable girl's paraphernalia stand beneath a fantastically snaped blue sath canopy. A chair and a second and smaller side table corresponding make up the complete service of this shrine to the graces and vanities.

The fair maid who is more literary than frivolous will have an old-fashioned mahogany writing desk, littered with heaps of crested note paper, silver instand and pen, and a dezen other utensits in silver standing by the window of her den.

If she doesn't take to mahogany her desk will be rosewood with spindle legs and looting as if it might have belonged to her grandmother, who penned hove letters seated before it with a quill that needed mording, and perhaps misspelied not a few of her words, save the Philadelphia Times. Instead of rosewood there may be sixtoonth century oak, massive, simple in shape and mounted with siter.

Something for the New Year.

The world renowned success of Heatetter's stomach bitters and their continued hophiarity for over a third of a century as a stomachic, is scarcely more wonderful than the welcome that greets the annual appearance of Heatetter's almana. This valuable medical treatise is published by the Hostetter company, Pittsburg, Pa, under their own immediate supervision, employing sixty hands in that department, they are running about eleven menths in the year or this work, and the issue of anne for 1809 will not be loss than ten millions, printed in the English, German, French, Webis, Norwegian, Swedish, Holiand, Hobenian, and Spanish, and the same of predict of the efficacy of Hostetter's stomach bitters, amusement, varied information, astronomical calculations and chronological items, etc., which can be depended on for correctness. The almana for 1880 can be obtained free of cost from drugsists and general country dealers in all parts of the country.

Inventions of a Woman.

Inventive activity is to be noticed in the rubber world as well as elsewhere. At the present time there are in process of development and already before the leads of three large rubber shoe factories three different machines for cutting soles at the rate of 10,000 pairs, day. It is noticeable that one of these mechanisms is the invention of a woman, who, to use in expression of her own, "has made the building of heavy machinery a special business for many years." This might sound as an idle boast, but for the fact that a very complicated machine in paper manufacture, the invention of this same femining genius, is in wide use, and has already netted her many thousand dollars.

Among the incidents of childhood that stand out in boid relief, as our memory reverts to the days when we were young none are more prominent than severe siekness. The young mother vividly remembers that it was Chamberlain's Cough Remody cured her of croup, and in turn administers it to her own offspring and always with the best success. For sale by druggists.

She Has Pretty Feet.

It is said that the handsomest foot in Detroit is that of a girl who works in a cigar factory, says a writer in the Philadelphia Record. It is not so small, but it has the Spanish instep, perfect shape and the natural arch, under which an apple could be rolled. She was discovered at the time when there was a craze in art for impressions of feet, and her foot served as a model for one whole winter. During that time she learned to wear eastern-made shoes, and her feet are such a delight to the gallant knights of St. Crispin that they only charge her half price for their work. By an accident of birth the girl is a Virginian, and the women of Virginia are famed for their small feet.
