WHAT THE POPE READS.

He Admires Dante and Physically

Resensibles Him. After Mr. Glaistone, Pope Leo the Atter Mr. Glaistone, Pope Leo the routine of his work would kill an ordi-mary man. There is no detail too small for him to pass over, and from daybreak until after midnight he devotes his time to the deurch and hierature. These was a surround him know when he is particularly tired or worn out, for then be takes down a volume of Danke and reads with the avoidity of a school girl enjoying her hrat novel. Of all the authors, Dante is the pope's favorite, and it has been remarked that in physique he is not unlike the ac-cepted idea of that great Italian. Ho reads Dante for piessure, but for keop-ing himself well informed on all that is happening out of the church as well as in it, be reads not only American books, but newspapers and magazines, and it may surprise American readers to know that he is well informed on all the topics of the day outlight, re-ligious and social. He has taken a deep interest in the cause of labor in the United States, and reads everything bearing on that subject which comes to hand. Once a week a well selected bande of American newspapers is sen-to the vatican, and the pope and those that surround him know not only what is going on in the United States, but they are familiar with the calibre and echaracter of the men who make have and enforce them. It is so in Er gin d also. In andition the is one is not and also. In andition this correspondence in the British empire, he follows with eager interest the reports in the oute of labor. Much the same plan is followed in Germany in Ince from overy corner of the world each week is sent to and on further enderce. The books that interest Lao the most and any for future reference. The books of all sorts of types from all word, the the valience, so in Er gin d and on futures reference.
