Beged Invention of an Aerial Ball-

Alleged Intention of an Aerial Hall-way. David Thayer, A. M., M. D., is just out with a pamphilt setting forth a mighty novel proposition, in detail, on "An Aerial Railway for the Explora-tion of the Polar Zone, and for Air Transit Over Water and Land." Noth-ing more readable in the Jaies Verneo line was ever evolved in brief, writes a Bootop correspondent.

Boston correspondent. This investion of the serial railway

This invention of the normal railway points the way to the first step in the solution of the sublime problem. The actial railway consists of an apparatus which is neted upon by two forces, the first of which is the wind acting by oblique impact upon the surface of acro-planes or kites, and the second, the re-sistance to that same force, by means of a drag at opposite ends of three or more draught inces. Force No. 1 is the di-rect action of the wind upon the aero-planes. Force No. 2 is the resistance which the drag offers to that of the wind.

wind. By the judicious use of these two forces we are enabled to travel over water and land, over seas and oceans; to explore unknown regions of the polar water and land, over sens and oceans; to explore unknown regions of the polar zone; to cross the periries and pampas of North and South America. the arid steppes of Russia, the sandy plains of Africa; to carry the lifeline and needed applies to shipwrecked mariners; to ascend to great attitudes for purposes of observation; to visit with little ex-pense and trouble any of the islands of the Pacific archipolagos; to reach the Northern and Southern Poles, and other tocalities which, by other means, are difficult of access. The apparatus consists of several sor-les of aeroplanes or kites, and the drag linos of these kites are attached to some impediments or drags. In the water the drag may consist of a number of boats fastened together, sometimes called a cratamaran, to increase the re-sistance of the wind, thereby diminish-ing the velocity of the aeroplanes or kites. If the catamaran to insoficient in its resistance to the force of the wind arting upon the aeroplanes or kites, we may add logs of wood to the drag, or any other method of increasing its weight and resistance. The drag, when traveling over the land, consista-of wheels and axles with a brake; when traversing over ite it consists of heavily laden sledges and away additional device
